EXPLANATION OF NUMERATION.

The system of numeration will be easily understood, as the heavy numbers such as 44 and 45 on the left side of page 207 precede heads of families and have been repeated from pages 179 and 180, where they appear as light faced figures preceding the same names as children of the families of numbers 18 and 19. Similarly the light faced figures, 106, 107 and 108 on page 207 will be found repeated as heavy faced figures on pages 260 and 261, preceding the same Christian names as before, but as heads of families. Thus one can trace lines either way through the book.

The small numerals just above, and to the right of the names, indicate the generation.

PREFACE.

TO THE WAKEMAN FAMILY:

This genealogy is offered to the family with a feeling that it is very far short of what a good and complete history of the family should be; and while some of the statistical omissions are owing to a lack of ability on the part of the author to procure them from various records, a part of this is owing to loss or the destruction of records of churches or towns, and of valuable papers belonging to earlier members of the family; a notable case being the burning a very few years ago of pamphlets and papers that formerly belonged to the Rev. Samuel Wakeman by a New York city teacher, to whom they descended. These papers, etc., would have sold for considerable money. The scattering of our family in nearly every state of the Union, many moving and leaving little or no clew, has been another obstacle.

The work had its inception in data left the writer by his father, which included only his direct line; and at the time that the writer was adding to it he met the Rev. Levi H. Wakeman of Stamford, Conn., who had collected considerable historical matter from colonial records, which he contributed to the work.

From this start search was made through various church and town records, and many families in the old home town of Fairfield, Conn., were seen, also the addresses of others were procured and written to, so that gradually an accumulation of data was made. This was followed up with reasonable diligence from 1874 to about 1880, and from replies obtained, more addresses were added to the list. During the time from 1880 to 1895 comparatively little progress was made, and in the early part of 1896 it was thought that the data on hand should be rearranged, showing just where further data was needed.

In doing this it was found necessary to write to some of the parties. From their replies and from many directories many addresses were procured and circulars sent out. Mr. F. E. Sands, a Meriden member of the family, offered to assist by furnishing the blanks and circulars needed, and has rendered material aid. Mrs. B. Wheaton Clark, of Lockport, N. Y., has also been diligent in collecting data regarding the family. Rev. J. B. Wakeman, of Rock Rift, N. Y., Mrs. Lydia Gould, of Sidney, N. Y., Mr. G. B. Wakeman, of Unadilla, N. Y., Mrs. Mary Wakeman, of Lawyersville, N. Y., and many others have helped very much in the matter.

When, in June, 1897, it was thought best to start a more active research as to our English ancestry, subscriptions were asked for to defray this expense, and the responses have resulted in our procuring English data desired at about one-tenth what many have paid for similar results. Contributions for this work were received from the following:

Mrs. W. D. Gookin, Southport, Conn.
Mrs. C. B. Tompkins, of New York City.
Mr. Jesup Wakeman, of New York City.
Mr. Samuel Wakeman, of Ballston Spa, N. Y.
Mr. J. Finlay Wakeman, of Ballston Spa, N. Y.
Dr. Emory McClintock, of New York City.
Mrs. E. B. Proctor, of Boston, Mass.
Mr. W. B. Wakeman, of Arcadia, La.
Mrs. W. B. VanWagenen, of Southport, Conn.
Mrs. A. M. Longacre, of Philadelphia, Pa.
Mrs. W. W. Wakeman, of Southport, Conn.
Miss Cornelia W. Crapo, of Brooklyn, N. Y.
Mrs. L. B. C. Evans, of New York City.

Messrs. J. F. and Samuel Wakeman, of Ballston Spa, also collected valuable inscriptions from cemeteries that were of assistance.

Mr. Edward Deacon, of the Fairfield County Historical Society, has rendered invaluable aid and assistance, both in collecting American data and in connection with the English researches, which he was very well qualified to do, owing to his thorough familiarity with English methods and sources of information.

Dr. Emory McClintock (a member of the family), of New York City, has laid the family under great obligations to him because of the great personal interest he has taken in the work, giving to it the benefit of his researches in libraries, of a trip to England, and of research there at a considerable expense of time and money. He has also, by English correspondence and a liberal use of fees, procured much valuable information regarding our early English ancestors, and has given us the benefit of his scholarly mind and excellent understanding of such matters. To those who may notice omissions, or who fail to see any family names or dates that they think should appear in the book, we would say that if they will send them to the writer at Southport, Conn., he will see that they are arranged and printed on separate sheets, to be gummed in the book at the proper place, stub leaves being inserted for this purpose.

Thanking all who have helped in the matter, and asking the charitable consideration of all for errors or omissions,

I am very truly your kinsman,

ROBERT P. WAKEMAN.

I.

When thought and memory backward turn,
With love for all ancestral lore,
We find there's much that we can learn,
As research yields so rich a store.

II.

Oh, yeomanry of early days!
Of Puritan New England's birth!
Ye brought across broad seas the ways
Of righteousness and sterling worth.

III.

For ye were found in walks of life,
Where trust and honor were reposed,
Bearing your part in battle's strife
Ere the dark tomb your forms enclosed.

IV.

By you our sturdy laws were made
In early stern Colonial days,
With blue-law feature, strict and staid,
As Old New England's rigid ways.

V.

While many followed arts of peace,
And preached the word, or tilled the land,
Erst as physicians, illness eased,
Or practiced law with vigorous hand.

VI.

Earnest and true the lives ye led;
High was the goal of all your aims;
Ye earned by toil your daily bread;
With pride our history writes your names.

VII.

And now with reverence and respect
We tread the ways our fathers trod,
Pursuing on with zeal direct
The path to righteousness and God.

CHAPTER I.

ANCESTRY OF FRANCIS WAKEMAN.

THE word "Wakeman" is defined in Worcester's dictionary as "the title of the chief magistrate of the town of Ripon, Yorkshire, England." It seems to have meant "wide-awake man." At one time it was pronounced as if to rhyme with Parkman, or rather with what the latter would be—Pa'kman—if the "r" was silent; but by about 1650 the pronunciation had changed to "Wackman." At Ripon the title descended from father to son and gave rise to the surname of Wakeman.

From 1473 to 1479 William Wakeman was priest of the chapel of St. Mary at Kidderminster, near the northern border of Worcestershire. At the same time John Wakeman lived at Drayton, a small hamlet some four miles distant, in the rural parish of Chaddesley Corbett. The family tradition, recorded by Burke, makes them brothers, sons of a William Wakeman. The same tradition states the name of John's wife as Alice Wormelay.

The earliest pedigree now extant is that of the Wakeman's of Beckford, in Gloucestershire. It is given in several ancient manuscripts preserved in the British Museum, and may be found in the "Gloucestershire Visitations" published by the Harleian Society. Under the Tudors and Stuarts it was customary for the heralds to make tours or "visitations" throughout the various counties of England, stopping at the houses of the gentry to bring their pedigree up to date and, when necessary, to arrange for reviving or granting coats of arms. Those who declined to pay their fees were regularly listed as not entitled to be classed as gentlemen, some of these lists being still preserved. In 1586 the heralds granted to Richard Wakeman of Beckford a coat of arms which, according to the "Blazonry of Episcopacy," had belonged to his uncle, John Wakeman, bishop of Gloucestershire, from 1541 to 1549. The names of their fathers and grandfathers preserved in the "Visitation" may be accepted as having been stated by them to the heralds, and probably also those of elder brothers, as follows:

John Wakeman of Drayton,
William Wakeman of Drayton,

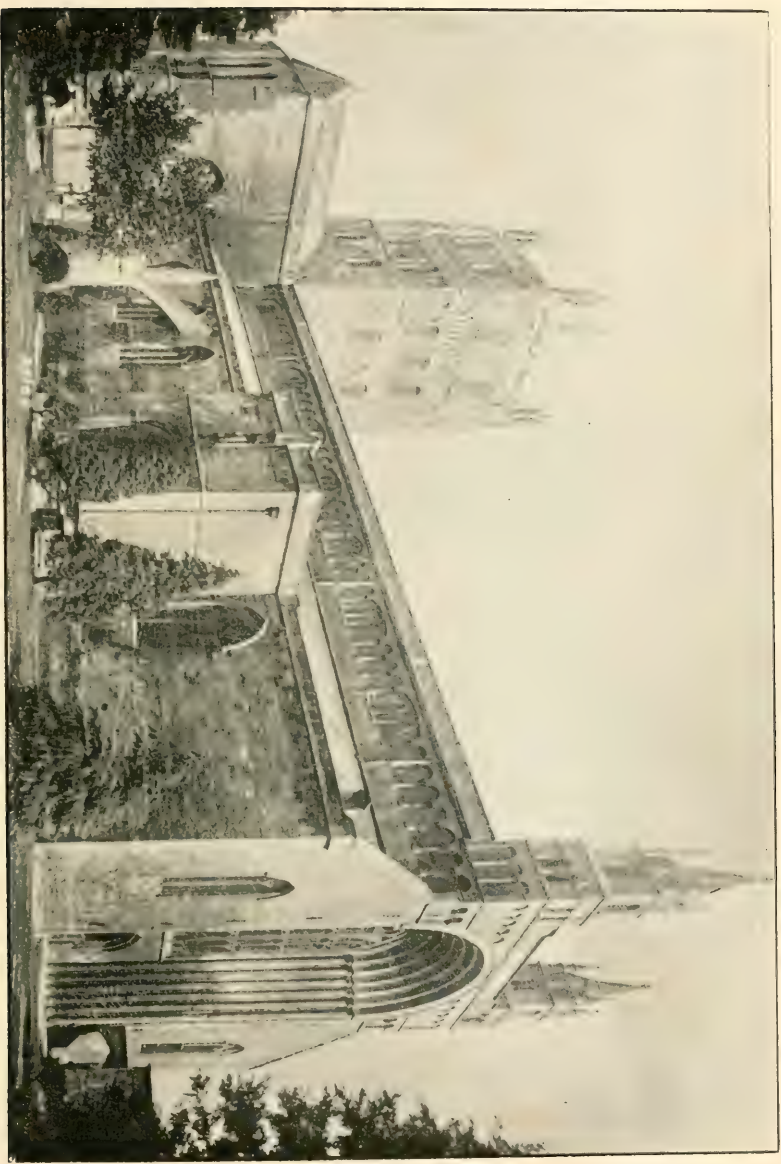

William Wakeman of Drayton,      John Wakeman, bishop.

Roger Wakeman,      Richard Wakeman.
William Wakeman,
Edward Wakeman.

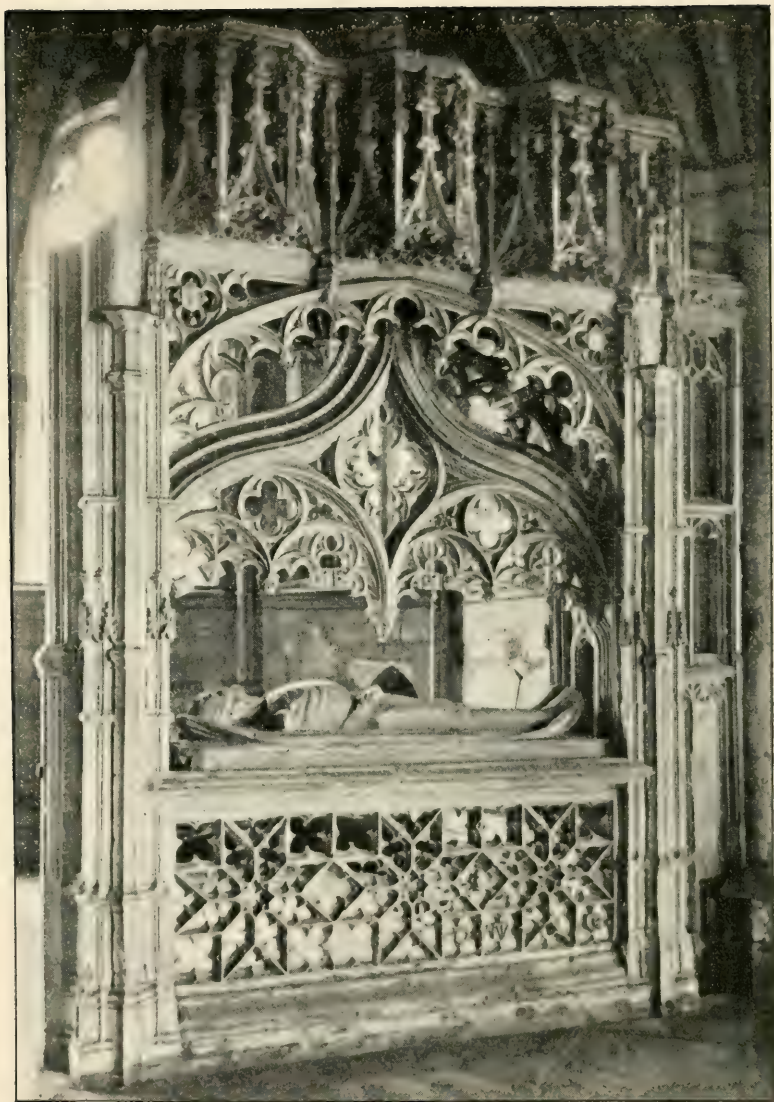

The houses of the brothers Roger and Richard were included at great length in the manuscripts, as the result of subsequent inquiries on the part of the heralds. They also noted that the bishop's mother was an heiress named Godespayne, and that his brother William's wife was of a family named Clarke, whose arms were sketched. The Wakeman arms as recognized in the "Visitation," for the families of both brothers, were borne by Roger's descendants at Tewkesbury and by Richard's at Beckford. They were engraved, for example, in 1634 on a tomb in Tewkesbury church.

TEWKESBURY ABBEY.

Tewkesbury (or Theocsbury), dates from mediæval times, and the monastery (Anglo-Saxon) was of small importance prior to the Norman conquest.

TEWKESBURY ABBEY, ENGLAND.

CENOTAPH OF BISHOP JOHN WAKEMAN.
(Now in Tewksbury Abbey.)

Robert Fitz-Hamon—one of the Norman nobles—married a niece of William the Conqueror, and on the death of the latter, his son bestowed upon Fitz-Hamon the estates known as “the honor of Gloucester,” included in which was Tewkesbury. Fitz-Hamon resolved to build a great “Abbey of Expiation,” being pricked by a consciousness of wrongs done by him in his many wars. The result of this resolve was the noble church. In the fourteenth century the eastern portion was reconstructed, and in the Lancastrian Battle of Tewkesbury some time later, the abbey was much destroyed. The recent restoration was begun in 1875, and now shows (see illustration) a restored structure. In 1539 most of the abbey buildings were destroyed save Abbot Wakeman’s house. In the abbey is to be seen the beautifully decorated cenotaph of Abbot Wakeman, the first Bishop of Gloucester. (See cut.) A copy of this cenotaph was exhibited in the Crystal Palace, London, 1851.

John Wakeman, younger son of the first William, was born before 1490, and at an early age entered a monastery, because about 1510 he was at Oxford as a Benedictine monk, an inmate of Gloucestershire college, then a house of that order. While a monk he bore the name of John Wich, according to a custom then frequently followed, by which monks were designated after places from which they came. The name of Wich has caused much speculation. An explanation not heretofore suggested is that his monastic career may have begun at a house of Augustinian friars at Droitwich, not far from his home, a town then known simply as Wich. As he became abbot of Tewkesbury in 1531, he was probably connected with Tewkesbury abbey before going to take his degree of B.D. at Oxford. Tradition had it that his mother was an heiress, which if true, might help to account for his elevation; but his learning, his talent as a preacher, and his force of character, were grounds sufficient, apart from family influence. As abbot he sat in the House of Lords, and attracting the attention of Henry VIII., was appointed king's chaplain. The holding of this confidential position indicates that he approved Henry's course in breaking up the monasteries and pensioning their inmates, devoting some of their lands to church and college purposes and dividing the remainder among individuals, avowedly to enlist so great an influence in favor of the change that it could never be reversed. How effective this course was, came to be proved when Queen Mary discovered that this alone of her father's religious changes was beyond her power to reverse. Tewkesbury abbey was dissolved in 1539, but the king's chaplain recovered his seat in the House of Lords in 1541, when he became the first bishop of the new see of Gloucester. He is said to have been one of the early translators of the Bible. Dying in 1549, he escaped the martyrdom which befell his successor, Hooper, under Mary. The place of death is uncertain, but was believed by Wood (Athenæ Oxonienses) to have been "Forthampton, where he had a house and a private chapel." The house doubtless appertained to the bishopric, but if not, would have descended to his legal heir, Roger. His will mentions personal property only, which he left to two younger brothers and their families.

As the king's chaplain was also a peer of the realm, he must have been the most influential man in his own part of England. Approving the distribution of the monastery land, as he must have done, he could not stand in the way of his own relatives without drawing suspicion upon his private opinion of that method of personal aggrandizement. We find, in fact, that his near relatives removed from Drayton to Gloucestershire; his nephew, Roger, to Forthampton, where he died not long after the bishop's death, and where there certainly were monastery lands; his nephew, Richard, to the lands of the priory of Beckford after its dissolution; his brother, Thomas, to Southwick, a locality near Tewkesbury, which had been the property of the abbey; and his brother, Richard, to the Mythe, an estate near Tewkesbury, of which the earlier ownership is not known. A little later the Mythe became the seat of Roger's descendants, probably by purchase from those of his uncle Richard.

Of Roger we learn from the "Visitation" that he had an heir, William, and that he was himself an heir to the family lands at Drayton, though apparently residing elsewhere, as he is not described as "of Drayton." He must have been the Roger Wakeman who studied at All Souls' college, Oxford, about 1516. His will of 1552 describes his residence as at Forthampton, and disposes of an amount of property which shows him to have been better off than all others of his name at that time. It names a wife, Joan, William, the eldest son, and John and Thomas, younger sons, besides various daughters, one of them named Anne; and enjoins upon William to grant the Drayton lands to John on a forty years' lease at the nominal annual rental of three peppercorns, to begin after the death or marriage of the wife Joan. William of Tewkesbury in his turn died in 1587, leaving the Drayton lands to his heir Edward by special mention in his will. These wills and the "Gloucestershire Visitation" agree in all points.*

*Burke's account of the family arbitrarily assigns to this Roger the children named in the "Exeter Visitation," as having belonged to another Roger 'of Woodrowe,' a place not far from Drayton. The Exeter branch secured the use of the bishop's arms by representing their ancestor Roger of Woodrowe to have been his brother, as of course he may have been for all that is known to the contrary.

death, and had doubtless been left in charge of the old home when the rest of the bishop's family went to Gloucestershire. By his father's will he was to have the Drayton estate as his own property for forty years after the death or marriage of the widow, but meanwhile he would be under the necessity of paying regular rent to his eldest brother William. The situation was not satisfactory, and soon after 1557 he removed with his family from the parish. The names of his children identify him perfectly. He was a son of Roger and nephew of Richard (of Beckford), and had a sister Anne; and the parish record of Chaddesley states that on August 9, 1545, he married Joan———, and that his children were baptized as follows:

Roger, September 12, 1546; Anne, March 7, 1548-9; John, May 10, 1552 (buried May 20, 1554); John February 20, 1554-5; Richard, January 1, 1556-7 (buried February 15, 1556-7) No trace of any of the five survivors is found later in the well-kept parish register of Chaddesley, except that it bears evidence to the subsequent return of the younger John, no doubt after the beginning of the term of forty years during which John of Drayton was to possess the ancestral estate. The nature of the evidence relating to the return of the younger John cannot be indicated clearly without due mention of other Wakemans then in the parish.

In the reign of Elizabeth, Chaddesley Corbett, was, as indeed it still is, a secluded rural parish. The chief road through it ended at the next village. The hamlets of Chaddesley and Drayton, within the parish, were almost too insignificant to be called villages. The roads were wretched, and communication was difficult and infrequent. The nearest town worth mentioning was Bewdley, seven miles distant. A book on heraldry mentions Chaddesley with an expression of surprise that several families of importance named Wakeman, in different counties, should trace their origin to this obscure spot. That exodus had, however, already taken place, and what was now left was the Drayton estate and two poor relatives named Simon and Richard Wakeman with their families. Perhaps they were brothers; Richard's wife was named Frances and both named daughters Frances.* Their other daughters need not be mentioned. Simon was married in 1557, and his sons were Simon and William, who appear to have removed early from the parish; and Simon himself died in 1589 or 1590. Richard's only son was John, born 1569 and married 1594. Richard, who was a tailor, died in 1598 or 1599, naming in his will as "kinsmen" John Wakeman, Simon Wakeman, William Wakeman. The sons of Simon last named were less important than "John Wakeman," who was either some one who did not belong to the parish, or else the present holder of the Drayton estate. That it was the latter is indicated by the record of the burial on February 10, 1591 or 1592, of Thomas Wakeman, son of John Wakeman. As the Wakeman estate now belonged to John of Drayton, apparently born about 1524, or to his children, one of whom was John, born in Chaddesley in 1554 or 1555, and as there is no chance worth discussing that any strange Wakeman would come to a place like Chaddesley, it is strongly probable that the estate was, in 1591, in the possession of the younger John, who had returned, bringing with him at least a son named Thomas.

The only Wakeman entries (mentioning males) in the Chaddesley register, from its beginning in 1539 to the present time, besides those already indicated (and the baptism in 1545 of a child whose father lived in the next parish), are as follows: William (obviously of Belbroughton parish) married in Chaddesley in 1553; Philip, son of Richard, baptized in 1592; John, son of Francis, buried May 8, 1595; John Wakeman, buried July 3, 1635. There is no baptism of any child of John, son of Richard the tailor, who was married in 1594, nor is there any note of his burial or that of his wife. He must therefore have left the parish, like the sons of Simon (the widows of Simon and Richard were both buried elsewhere), leaving only John Wakeman, owner of the Drayton estate—for forty years—as the sole representative of the family in its ancient seat until his death in 1635. There are only two entries unexplained in this record of a century, the baptism of Philip, son of Richard, and the burial of John, son of Francis. Neither this Richard nor Francis belonged to the parish (for the tailor Richard's wife Frances was too old to have a child in 1592), so that both of them must have been near relatives of the younger John Wakeman of Drayton, and as such have had some right to make their temporary home at his house. There was indeed nowhere else for them to go, unless to stay with old Richard, the tailor, for Simon was dead and his family scattered. The stranger Richard may probably have been the third son named in his will by William of Tewkesbury, and if so, he was cousin to the present John of Drayton. Who Francis was remains to be seen. There was no one of that name in the Tewkesbury branch, nor does the closest search reveal any trace of a Francis Wakeman elsewhere, except at Bewdley.

*Simon's Frances was buried as a daughter on April 17, 1571, thirty days after her baptism as a son; a mistake just contrary to one at Bewdley in 1592, when a Francis Wakeman, well-known later, was baptized as a daughter.

Meantime, what became of John of Drayton, the father, who left Chaddesley with his wife Joan and his children, Roger, Anne and John, in or soon after 1557? Search elsewhere fails to show the presence of such a family or any clue to it, except at Bewdley, in the parish of Ribbesford, seven miles from Chaddesley.

Unfortunately the parish register of Ribbesford dates only from 1574, so that the death of the child Roger, the marriage of Anne, and the baptism of a son Francis, assuming them to have taken place at Bewdley, cannot be proved by any extant record. What we do find is a record of the burial, March 27, 1587, of "Joan, wife of John Wakeman, the tanner," neither of them being mentioned before or afterwards. And we know that there was not then within many miles of Drayton another place which John Wakeman could find so advantageous to a country gentleman's son seeking to better himself as this very town of Bewdley close by.

Bewdley—Beau-lieu, "beautiful place"—on the farther bank of the Severn, had been a royal residence in earlier times, and the palace on the hill was still occasionally visited by the Princess Elizabeth or some other important personage. Its location at the only bridge over the great river, and practically at the head of navigation for the boats then in use, made it the chief commercial and industrial town in that part of England, next of course to Bristol, at the mouth of the same river, which was then at the height of its prosperity as the principal seaport of the country. Burton, the historian of Bewdley, says that cap-making alone "at one time afforded employment to probably 1,000 people in Bewdley. . . . In the time of Elizabeth there were twelve tanyards in Bewdley, and tanners have been among its greatest benefactors. . . . The markets have dwindled by degrees, and instead of thirty-two butchers holding stalls in the shambles, there are now only two." On the land side the Wyer forest came close to the town, affording unusual facilities for the tanning trade.

"John Wakeman, the tanner," of 1587 was so-called as the master of a tanyard, as employees were then regarded as merely servants, their bare names being entered on the parish register without distinctive designation. It was no part of the function of a clergyman to collect statistics concerning the occupations of obscure individuals, but it was the regular custom of the rector of Ribbesford to note the callings of masters in the different trades when entering their names in his parish register. Ever since 1576, for example, there were baptisms of children of plain "John Wakeman," whom we may distinguish as John of Belbroughton, because his will indicates that parish as the probable place of his origin, and who was certainly no near relative of Francis Wakeman. The latter appears in 1590 or 1591. on the occasion of the baptism of his first child (he had been married at Eastham in 1589), as "Francis Wakeman, the tanner." In 1592 plain John of Belbroughton has a son baptized Francis, showing close relations, as distinguished from relationship, with Francis the master tanner. On April 23, 1593, Francis is no longer noted as "the tanner," on the occasion of the baptism of his second daughter, while on September 23, 1594, John Wakeman (presumably of Belbroughton), whose daughter Mary was then buried, was entered as "the tanner," a designation afterwards repeatedly given to John of Belbroughton. That is to say, Francis gave up his tanyard, and John of Belbroughton became master of it, or of another, about 1593. From the action of John of Belbroughton in 1592, in naming his son after Francis, the master tanner, a much younger man than himself, it seems strongly probable that he was Francis's employee before becoming his successor in the Wakeman tan-yard.* Francis's failure as a

*Of seven children of John of Belbroughton baptized at Bewdley, the first two, before 1587, and the next three after that date, were noted as children of plain "John Wakeman," while the last two were of "John Wakeman, the tanner." Lest any suppose that the rector applied his trade-titles haphazard, and that the Joan who died in 1587 was merely the first wife of John of Belbroughton, it may be added that if so, the first wife Joan named a daughter Elizabeth, and the second wife, Elizabeth, named her first daughter, Joan. The rector omitted a master's trade now and then, but such omissions were exceptional.

tanner may be excused by his youth and inexperience, but in view of his youth and inexperience, he could not, apparently, have stepped into control of such a business unless he was placed in it by, or succeeded to his own father.

Francis appears next in Chaddesley, where his son John was buried in May, 1595. Why he should retire to Chaddesley, far from his wife's connections, unless because it was his own family's home, is inconceivable. His next son also was named John, and his persistence in naming his sons John accords well with the other facts which indicate that that was his father's name. In 1596 he reappears at Bewdley, on the occasion of another baptism, and at this time, and uniformly until his death in 1626, he is noted as "the cooper." In his will he left a legacy to his brother John, of whom no other trace appears on the records at Bewdley.

One simple explanation fits all the known facts: Francis was son of John and Joan, of Drayton, and brother of the younger John, of Drayton; the elder John being son of Roger and brother of William, who were successively recognized as the heads of the Wakeman family.

The following is from Burton's "History of Bewdley."

"The earliest mention of the modern Bewdley occurs under its old Saxon name of Wribbenhall—a name still retained by the adjacent village on the eastern side of the Severn. In the time of William the Conqueror both formed part of the great manor of Kidderminster.

"The spelling in 1304 was Beaulieu, changing to Beaudeley about 1472, and Beaudley about 1539. Camden (1551-1623) gives the same derivation. 'Bewdley,' says he, 'takes its name from its most pleasant situation.—

"'Delicium rerum Bellus Locus undique floret Fronde coronatus Virianæ tempora sylvæ.'

“Which Bishop Gibson translates thus:

“ ‘Fair seated Bewdley, a delightful town,
Which Wyre’s tall oaks with shady branches crown.’

“Dr. Stukely in a letter from Bewdley, September 17, 1712, says: ‘Were I to choose a country residence for health and pleasure, it would undoubtedly be on the west side of the island, not far from this river (Severn), and where it is most distant from the sea.’

“Leland has left us a descriptive account of the town as it appeared about 1539:

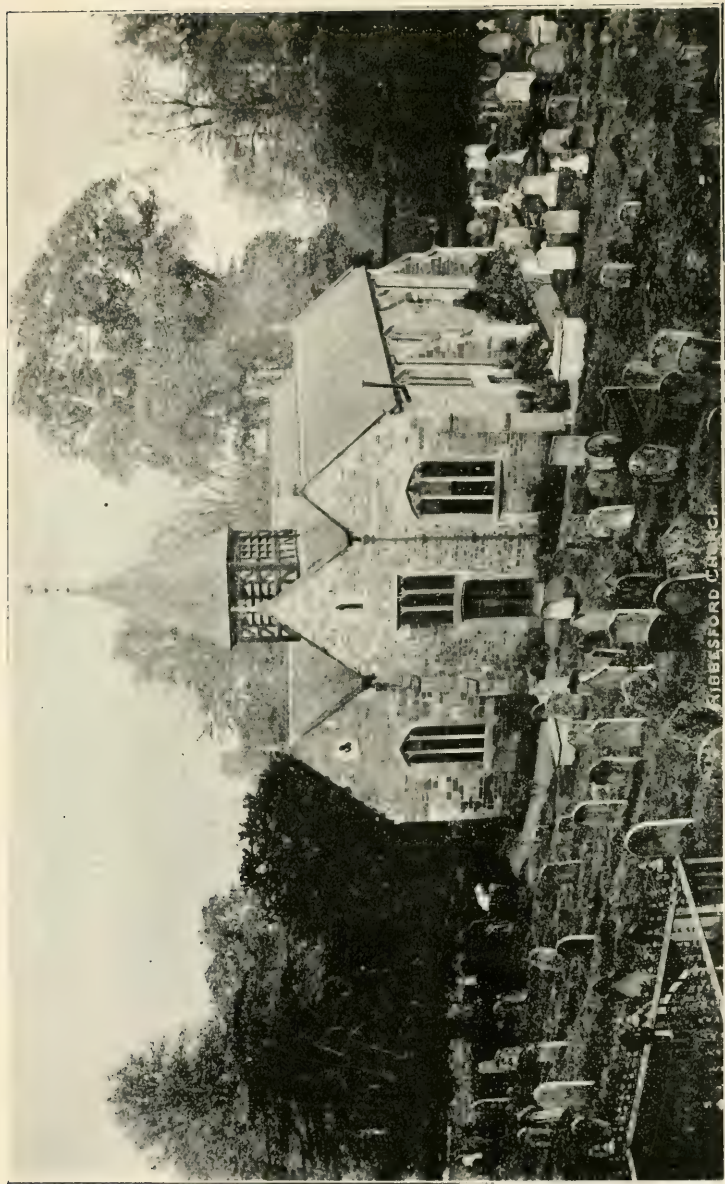

“ ‘From Kidderminster to Beaudley two miles by a fayre downe, but somewhat barren, as the Veyne is thereabout on every syde of Beaudley for a little compasse. I entered into Beaudley, in Schropshire, as some saye, by a goodly fayre bridge, over Severne of (five) great arches of stone, being even then in new reparation.

“ ‘This bridge is onely on Severne betwixt Beaudley and Worcester bridge. To this bridge resort many flatt long vessels to carry up & downe all manner of merchandize to Beaudley & above Beaudley. The east part of the bridge at Beaudley and the left Ripe of Severne be in Worcestershire; but many say and hould that the west end of the Bridge and the right Ripe of Severne, within the towne of Beaudley, be in Schropshire, & Wyre Forrest in Schropshire, going to the parke at Tetenhall.

“ ‘The Towne selfe of Beaudley is sett on the side of an Hill, soe comely, a man cannot wish to see a Towne better. It riseth from the Severne banke by East upon the hill by West, soe that a man standing upon a hill trans pontem by East may discerne almost every house in the towne, and at the rising of the sunne from East the whole Towne glittereth (being all of newe Building), as it were of gould. There be but 3 streets memorable in the Towne. One from North to South all along Severne banke. The second is in the market place, a fayre, large thing and well builded. The third runneth from North to South on the Hill syde, as the first doth in the Valley of Severne. The Parish Church standeth a mile lower at Ripley (Ribbesford in margin), ut aqua defluit ripa dextra. By the distance of the Paroch Church I gather that Beaudley is but a very newe Towne. There was a privilege of Sanctuary given to this Towne that now is abrogated.'

"This description applies to the present site of the town, and no mention is made of the old part on the Wyre hill.

"Under the Tudors the prosperity of Bewdley was in full tide. Henry VII. enlarged Ticknell House and made it into a palace for Arthur, Prince of Wales, who there resided and held his court. There, too, he was married to Catherine of Aragon. Henry VIII. granted three charters to this town, and sent his daughters, the Princesses Mary and Elizabeth, to reside in it. The many distinguished persons who were constantly coming to the town, attended by large retinues, would give increased employment to the inhabitants. To prevent disputes a special law was made to regulate the prices to be charged by the innkeepers (1528).

"Manufactures of various kinds were started in the time of the Tudors, and flourished. The chief of these was cap-making, which at one time afforded employment to probably one thousand people in Bewdley.

"In the time of Elizabeth there were twelve tanneries in Bewdley, and tanners have been among its greatest benefactors. The neighboring forests supply abundance of oak bark, and there is no apparent reason why this industry should have fallen off. The market has dwindled by degrees, and instead of thirty-two butchers holding stalls in the shambles there are now only two.

"We have seen that as early* as 1412 the men of Bewdley had become bold watermen and owned large barges or trows. Latterly a great part of the carrying trade, both by land and water, came into their hands, and they had the best boats and best crews on the river. Merchants from Bristol, then the first seaport in the kingdom, established depots for their goods in Bewdley and Wribbenhall. Large storehouses were built and the wares were conveyed by long trains of pack-horses to the inland towns, and returned, bringing Manchester, Sheffield and other goods to be shipped down the Severn to the seaports and West of England. Many old houses here have extensive buildings in the rear, now almost disused.

"In 1620 special mention is made of the 'women's seats' in the church, showing that the division of the sexes is not a modern innovation. In 1632 long sermons were the fashion, and an hour-glass was set up, so that the preacher might know when to finish his discourse. In 1642 the gunpowder was removed from the chapel into the court house! The Civil War was now beginning, and the Chapel Warden's accounts and Ribbesford registers contain many allusions to the stirring events."

The foregoing account by Rev. Mr. Burton shows that the English home of our ancestors was a place of some prominence, the great bridge having been built prior to 1539. The picture of it here shown is of the old structure, and is taken from an illustration in Mr. Burton's "History of Bewdley."

CHAPTER II.

HISTORICAL ENGLISH DATA.

JOHN Wakeman (of New Haven, Connecticut) was born in Bewdley, England, a borough, market town, and Chapelry, in the parish of Ribbesford, and Union of Kidderminster, locally in the town division of the hundred of Doddington, and in the Hundred-House and West divisions of the county of Worcester, fourteen miles northwest of Worcester. (See Lewis's "Topographical Dictionary England," vol. I.) John Wakeman married Elizabeth Hopkins, daughter of William Hopkins, who married Helen Vickaris in Ribbesford church, October 30, 1609.

Concerning the Vickaris family, the parish registers of Bewdley show:

"Bap. 1575, Feb. 20, Robarte, the sonn of John Vickaris.

"1596, Dec. 22, Richard, the father of John Vickreg, died of the age of 100 yeares and 1 yeare."

No baptism recorded here of Helen. Robert in 1614 seems to have spelt the name Vicaris.

Burton's "History of Bewdley," appendix p. vii., says: "1637. In this year Richard Vickris, merchant, and then chief Sheriffe of the citie of Bristol, gave a green Cushion of Plush to be used upon the pulpit in the Chappell of Bewdley," and also says that he was a native of Bewdley. The parish church of Ribbesford of which we give a picture, "is an ancient and curious structure, standing in a retired situation, surrounded by wooded heights." In the Ribbesford parish registers Mr. William Hopkins is spoken of as "The most eminent, wise and truly religious Magistrate of Bewdley, and at last, member of the long Parliament." Again, "William Hopkins, gent. a gracious and able Christian; then Burgesse elected for Parliament for the borough of Bewdley." He was buried with his wife in the chancel of Ribbesford church, outside and near the communion rail, where the chancel floor is raised a step above the rest of the church, not far from south wall of chancel on which the following tablet was placed. The tablet has only lately been removed to the west wall:

"Here lie interred the bodies of
William Hopkins, late of Bewdley,
Gent: who deceased July 19, 1647.
And Helena, his wife, who deceased
Nov. 16, 1656, both in a good old age."

"Ask you in these what virtues were
Needless it is to write them here,
Go ask the rich they know full well,
Or ask the poor for they can tell."
G. H. posuit.

Wood (Athenæ Oxoniensis), followed by Burton, praises highly George Hopkins (G. H. posuit), son of William, born at Bewdley, April 25, 1620, educated at the Grammar school, graduated at Oxford, then Rector of Evesham (where his son William was born, a celebrated cleric and antiquarian, buried in Worcester cathedral). "He was very judicious, godly, modeste, peaceable, and upright." He was brother to Elizabeth Hopkins who married John Wakeman.

Bigland's "Gloucestershire" (introduction, p. ii. vol. i.), says: "Dr. William Hopkins, born at Evesham, August 28, 1647; his father was a clergyman, and his grandfather a gentleman of rank and fortune in Bewdley, for which town he was chosen member of Parliament, but died before he took his seat."

The following extracts from the Chapel and Bridgewardens' accounts, of Bewdley, are of interest as referring to John Wakeman and his father-in-law William Hopkins:

CHAPTER III.

EARLY ENGLISH HISTORICAL DATA AND WILLS.

OUR first New England ancestor, John Wakeman, before coming here was a timberman (timber merchant) in Bewdley, England. This would be a position of much importance at that time (Charles I.) as the Park contained in 1612, 3,500 old trees. On Wyre Forest (Wyre Hill) were many square miles of oaks. These were being used up wholesale. The wood was wanted for making charcoal to smelt the ironstone brought on pack horses from the Clee Hill. The Furnace mill on Dowles Brook has still mounds of refuse ironstone. Michael Drayton in his "Polyolbion" about this time speaks of "Goodlie Wyre" as

"Ashamed to behold
Her straight and goodlie woods unto the furnace sold,
And looking on herself by her decay doth see
The miserie whereon her sister forests be."

In later times coal took the place of charcoal for smelting iron, and Lancashire became important.

In an old document by Edward Blount, endorsed a memorial of many benefactions to Bewdley Grammar school and to the poor of Bewdley, copied from the original of 1643. (The memorial was probably a large board with these particulars painted thereon.)

"The Memorial of many good Benefactors names their gifts and benevolences to ye Free Grammar School of Bewdley by divers psons dec<sup>d</sup>. to yr gt praise and the encouraging of others to imitate the like charitable good works. The said memorial being made in the year of our Lord God 1643, At the Costs and charges of John Wakeman late of the town of Bewdley, Timberman, Francis Bromwicke, Gent, being then baliff, John Hailes, Gent, then Justice, and Wm. Milton and John Wilkes, gent, Bridgewardens.

“John Wakeman, late of this town of Bewdley, Timberman, by a certain writing under his own hand bearing date A. D. 1640, did give the sum of 40 shillings forever to remain as a stock for the Free Grammar School aforesaid, the use whereof to be employed towards the maintenance of the said Grammar School yearly. The which sum is now in the custody of Mr. William Hopkins, Gent, who caused this table to be made at the cost and appoint of the s<sup>d</sup> John Wakeman, his son-in-law, as by ye s<sup>d</sup> writing more at large it doth and may appear.

“The memorial of many good Benefactors' names who have bequeathed and given charitable gifts toward the maint<sup>t</sup> of the poor people of this town of Bewdley and parish of Ribbesford to y<sup>r</sup> g<sup>t</sup> praise and encouraging of others to imitate y<sup>r</sup> like charitable good works. The said memorial being made in the y<sup>r</sup> of our Lord God 1643 at the cost and charges of Jno Wakeman, late of this town of Bewdley, Timberman, by a certain writing under his own hand dated A. The wh money is in the custody of Mr. Wm. Hopkins, Gent, who caused this table to be made at the cost of Jno Wakeman aforesaid.”

Burton's "History of Bewdley," says of the Grammar School "other benefactors were John Tyler, 1626, Joan Tyler, John Wakeman, 1640, John Lowe, 1643, Richard Vickaris, 1661, Thomas Cooke, 1693."

We give here a copy of the will of Mr. William Hopkins of Bewdley, father-in-law of John Wakeman, also picture of his home in 1628.

CHAPTER IV.

ADDITIONAL ENGLISH DATA.

THE following data lately collected is inserted, as it contains some early English genealogy of our family as far back as the year 1070. To be strictly reliable, however, this data should be confirmed by wills or other record evidence:

The great-grandson of the first John was

PART II.

The statement as to the Bishop's arms is incorrect, for both in the Herald's College and in Bedford's "Blazonry of Episcopacy," it is controverted, showing that the Bishop's personal arms were Party per fesse indented, sable and argent, three doves rising counterchanged.

Here follows the Patent of the Grant of Arms to Bishop John Wakeman.

HERALD'S COLLEGE GRANTS OF ARMS.

WAKMAN.

Omnibus Christi fidelibus has presentes litteras Inspecturis aut audituris, Thomas Hawlay, alias Clarencieulx principalis Heraldus et Rex Armorum partium Australium occidentalium et orientalium hujus Regni Anglie a Rivola Trent, versus Austrum cum debita commendacione salutem.

Equitas vult et Racio postulat quod homines virtuosus laudabilis dispositionis et vite honorabilis sint per eorum merita honorati et remunerati in suis personis existentes in hac vita mortali tam brevi et transitoris et in quolibet loco honoris pre ceteris exaltati demonstrando signa et exempla virtutis ac etiam humanitatis videlicet scutum cum Insigniis honoris ea intencione ut per eorum exempla alii magis conentur eorum vitam exercere in operibus et factis clarissimis quibus assequantur et impetrent famam antike nobilitatis. Et ideo ego predictus, Thomas Hawlay, alias Clarencieulx Rex Armorum partium predictarum non solum ex divulgata fama verum etiam ex meo et ceterorum Nobilium fidedignorum testimonio sum veraciter instructus et informatus quod Reverendissimo in Christo pater dominus Johannes Wakman sacre Theologie Baccalarius Episcopus Gloucestren, diu in virtute claruit bene discrete et Religiose se ipsum gessit et gubernavit adeo ut mereatur et dignus sit in omnibus locis honorum admitti honorari reputari numerari acceptari et recipi in numerum et consortium aliorum veterum illustrium virorum. Igitur ob memorium ejus tante virtutis et humanitatis per auctoritatem et potestatem mihi Clarencio Regi Armorum officioque meo per verba in litteris patentibus per illustrissimum Dominum Regem concessis specialiter expressa ordinavi et assignavi prefato Reverendissimo Domini Johanni Wakman Scutum cum insigniis honoris ut Inferius gallice declaratur: "Cest a dire Sable et Argent indente per fece troys demy Aigletz volans entrechangez du champ en chef ung

In cujus Rei testimonium Sigillum meum ad arma cum sigillo officii mei Regis Armorum presentibus apposui et manu mea propria subscripsi.

Datum Londini primo die Martii Anno Domini, Millesimo quingentissimo quadragesimo primo et Regni Regis Henrici octavi xxxiii.

As to the arms of the See we find in Bedford's "Blazonry of Episcopacy," "Azure two keys in Saltire Or" (Authority, "Hardy's Le Neuve"). Woodward's "Ecclesiastical Heraldry" says as to the Arms of the See, "Gloucester Azure two keys in Saltyre, wards in chief" (plate xxii. p. 3,) the Pauline Sword was added to the keys of St. Peter in early times but latterly dropped out of use as appears by some old carvings in the Cathedral. It is hoped that it may be restored to its place ere long. The original arms of the See are said to have been those of the old Earls of Gloucester (the Clare family).

The above genealogical matter is inserted because of its historic interest to our family, but we cannot consider ourselves descended from either the bishop, who was a celibate, nor from Sir Richard Wakeman, whose arms are our frontispiece. The theory of our descent from Roger Wakeman (see pages 10 and 11) is the only trace we have of our ancestry prior to Francis, of Bewdley. Yet there is probably not the slightest doubt of our descent from one of the brothers of the bishop or from one of his father's brothers. This would make Sir Thomas (before mentioned) our direct ancestor.

CHAPTER V.

AMERICAN HISTORY.

SAMUEL WAKEMAN, son of Francis, of Bewdley, Worcestershire, England, came to New England in November, 1631, in the ship Lion, Captain Pierce, and settled in Roxbury, November 2, 1631, and was made freeman the seventh of August following, being one of the founders of the first church in Roxbury.

He probably removed to Cambridge, and was representative at the May session, 1635, and removed with Governor Haynes, or rather, as his forerunner, to Hartford, in April, 1636.

He was made constable and was engaged in adjusting the bounds of the first settlement of Windsor and Wethersfield. He was killed in the summer of 1641, with Captain Pierce at Providence in the Bahamas, as told by Winthrop, vol. ii., p. 43. His estate was, in December, 1645, settled on Nathaniel Willett, who had married his widow, Elizabeth, but he was to pay £40 to the son when twenty-one years of age, and £20 to each of the three daughters on their arriving at the age of eighteen years. They were all young, for the church records of Roxbury inform us that he buried his only child at sea coming over, and his first born here by Elizabeth was Elizabeth, who married Joseph Arnold; Joanna married Francis Hacleton, and Grace married John Kelly.

The Captain Pierce referred to above went with others to relieve English colonists in the Bahamas who were suffering from the cruelties of the Spaniards.

The following is from John Winthrop's "History of New England from 1630 to 1640":

One Samuel Wakeman, a member of the church at Hartford, who was sent with goods to buy cotton, cast himself down by him (Captain Pierce) and presently a great shot took them both. Mr. Pierce died within an hour, the other (S. W.) having only his thighs tore, lived ten days.

This Samuel Wakeman left one son, referred to above, whose name was Esbun or Ezbon. The following notice of him is from Savage's "Dictionary":

"Wakeman, or Wakman, Esbun or Isbun, Stratford among the freeman, 1669, son of Samuel at Hartford, had lived at New Haven 1653, married at Guilford, Hannah Jordan, but before 1671, had purchased estate at Fairfield, Conn., where he died 1683, leaving only daughter, Abigail, who married Thomas Hill."

There is one mention made of his name on the records of New Haven Colony, 1653 to 1665, p. 391, where his name is spelled Esburne.

JOHN WAKEMAN was an early member of the Colony of New Haven. The first time we find his name mentioned is in the list of Freemen "of the Courte of Newhaven," held June 4th, 1639.

9.* There are seventy names on the list, the fortieth of which is "John Wakeman."

17, 18. The next is an autograph signature to the articles of agreement for both church and state of the Colony of New Haven, which are in the language following:

"Whereas, there was a fundamental agreement made in a generall meeting of all the free planters of this towne, on the 4th day of the fowerth moneth called June that church members only shall be free Burgesses, and they only shall chose among themselves magistrates and officers to h[ve] the power of transacting all publique ciuell affayres of this plantatiō: of makeing and repeli[ng] lawes, deviding inheritances, deciding of differences thatt may arise, and doeing all things and businesses of like nature. Itt was therefore ordered by all the said free planters thatt all those thatt hereafter should be received as planters into this plantatiō should also submit to the said fundamentall agreement and testifie the same by subscribing their names vnder the names of the aforesaid planters as followeth."

Here follows the names of the signers, of whom John Wakeman was one.

41. "Att a generall court held at Newhaven the 2nd of 7th M., 1640," John Wakeman and fourteen others "were appoynted to view the Meadows, to sett

69. "At a Generall Court, the 6th day of the 2nd moneth, 1642, Mr. Malbon, Mr. Gregson and Mr. Wakeman chosen deputyes for the halfe yeare next ensuing."

74. "Att a court held at Newhaven 4th of the 3rd moneth, 1642, Two of bro. Wakeman's men is excused frō watching for the present, because of their employment at Powgassett." (Powgassett was the Indian name of Derby.)

78. "A Gen<sup>r</sup>ll Court of Elections, the 26th of the 8th moneth, 1642, att Newhaven.

"Mr. Malbon, Mr. Gregson, Mr. Gilbert and Mr. Wakeman are chosen deputyes for the ensuing yeare to assist in the Courts by way of advice, butt not to have any power by way of sentence."

79. "Att a Court held at Newhaven the second of Neum, 1642, Forasmuch as the causeway to the west side, beyond the bridge, is damaged by the cows going thatt way, before the workmen had fully finished the same, It is therefore ordered that John Wakeman, Joshua Attwater, John Clarke, and Anthony Thompson, shall view the damage and sett down what, in their judgmts, they conceive is for the workmen to have in the way of satisfactiō."

The bridge named above was at Westville, where there was a tract of land called the "Cow pasture."

85. John Wakeman "Chosen Deputie for the next half yeare."

105. "A Court held at Newhaven the 2d of August, 1643.

"Whereas, there is a difference depending betweene Robert Ceely and Daniel Paule aboute a note of agreement betweene them vnder both their hands with both their consents, itt wass referred to Mr. Malbon and Mr. Wakeman to arbitrate and determine as they shall see cause."

"A difference allso betweene Will Fowler and Stephen Metcalfe about a tresspasse, wth both their consents was referred to Mr. Malbon and Mr. Wakeman to arbitrate and determine as they shall see cause."

"Forasmuch as itt appeareth by the testimony of Lawrence Warde that Margaret Perre, alias Bedforde, now wife to Nicholas Gennings, was to be servant to Captayne Turner vnto the full tearme of four years from the time of her first coming to him, but she, running away with the said Nicholas, before the said tearme was expired, it was ordered that the said Nicholas, her said husband, shall make satisfactiō to Captaine Turner (her said mar), for that loss of time, according as it shall be arbitrated by Mr. Gregson and Mr. Wakeman, who are desired by the court to do the same.

"And the said Nicholas is to make two-fold restitutō for those things wch are confessed to be stolen from the said Captaine Turner."

119. John Wakeman was chosen Deputy October 30, 1643. Again, "5th of the 2nd Moneth, 1643."

125. "A Gen<sup>rl</sup> Court held at New Haven the 25th of March, 1644, 'Chosen Deputy.'"

126. "Vpon a propositiō made by those who have the small lotts that they may have the Bever Meadows granted to them by the Gen<sup>rl</sup> Court, itt was ordered, that Mr. Wakeman, Mr. Gilbert, Goodman Gibbs, and Mr. Pearce shall view the Meadows and certifie the Court if they conceive itt may nott be inconvenient for the towne to part with itt."

137. "At a Gen<sup>rl</sup> Court held at New Haven the 1st of July, 1644." The governor of the colony, Theophilus Eaton Esq., took the oath of office as governor, and then another oath as a free Burgess, after which he administered the same oath to the different planters of the colony. Among these planters the name of John Wakeman appears.

143. "At a Gen<sup>rl</sup> court held the 5th of August, 1644, Mr. Malbon, Mr. Lamberton and Mr. Evance, having seriously considered the great damage wch this town doth suffer in many wayes by reason of the flatts wch hinders vessells and boates from coming neare the towne when the tyde is anything low, did propound to the court thatt if they will grant them four dayes worke for every man in the towne frō 16 to 60 yeares old, towards the digging of a channell, and let them have the benefit of a wharfe and warehouse (wch they will build) upon such tearmes as shall be agreed betwixt themselves and a comittee (whom they desired the court then to chuse to treat with thē about itt), they will dig a channel wch shall bring boates (att least) to the end of the streete beside Will Preston's house, att any time of the tyde, except they meet with some invincible difficulty wch may hinder their digging the channel so deepe.

"Whereupon it was ordered thatt they shall have the help propounded by them (viz.) four dayes worke of every male in the towne from 16 yeares old to 60, those that cannot worke to hyve others to worke in their steads, and those that can, to worke in their owne persons. And that Mr. Robert Newman, Matthew Gilbert, John Wakeman, Will Gibbord, Jasp Craine, Will Andrewes, Anthony Thompson, and Robert Ceeley as a comittee, wth the advice of the Governor and magistrates to treat with the said undertakers, and agree upon such tearmes as may be equall and for the publique good, setting down in writing whatt is done and expected on either pt."

148. John Wakeman chosen Deputy "the 24th of October, 1644."

160. "At a Court held in New Haven the 8th of April, 1645.

"Mr. Malbon required satisfactiō of Mr. Caffins for damage done in his corne att severall times, once by his swine and another time by his cattle, wch was valued att eight bush's each time, butt Mr. Caffins aleaged that the damage came by defect of their owne fence wch was not made up betweene the clay pitts and their corne. The case being somewhat darke, wth consent of both parties it was referred to John Wakeman, Rich'd Miles and Jasper Craine to view and arbitrate and determine, or else to report to the court how they finde itt."

161. "Captaine Turner having received eighteen pounds and eighteen shillings of Mrs. Higginson's estate, and John Wakeman fifteen pounds also of said estate, have both severally ingaged their houses and lands att Newhaven unto the Court of Newhaven for the true paym't thereof in current country pay at the full end and tearme of five years from October last past, together wth 3s. att every pound for the consideratiō of said money."

171. "Att a Generall Court held at Newhaven the 22nd of Octo: 1645.

"Mr. Goodyeare. Mr. Evance, Mr. Gibbord, Mr. Wakeman, Mr. Francis Newman and Mr. Atwater were chosen to audit the accompts of the former treasurers.

174. "At a court the 3rd of December, 1645:

"Brother Wakeman and Brother Miles reported to the court that they had (as the court desired them) viewed the clay pits, way and fences adjoyninge, in reference to the difference betwixt Mr. Malbon and Mr. Caffinch, and found that the way to the clay pitts was to lye open, but the quarter that lay on the one side could not accomplish their part of the fence, and therefore haveing planted, were forced for safeguard of their corne to make a fence crosse the said way wth rayles wch way the other quarter driving their cattle and sometimes leaveinge oppen the rayles and sometimes breaking them, much damage hath been done by cattle and hoggs. Whereuppon the court determined that the quarter that should have fenced and did not, must bear the damadge, and those that have tresspassed in breaking and leaving open gates or rayles shall contribute, and desired the afforesaid committee to take some more paynes for the settling of it."

185. "At a Generall Court held the 23rd of February, 1645:

186. "It was ordered, that brother Wakeman and brother Gibbord shall goe with brother Brocket to se the lott belonging to Thomas Fugill at the West Rocks, measured and surveyed, and report to the court what distance it is from the Center and what quantity of land there is."

221. 222. "Att a Generall Court held at Newhaven, the 16th of March, 1645:"

It having been found by a survey made that "Thomas Fugill" had "tauen in by fencing aboue, twenty-eight acres of cleare land, and twenty-four acres of wooddy and hilly land, and though he vnderstood that some of the church and probably some of the towne were offended at this, his vnjust course, yet in some yeares he had neither procured a survey nor advised with the Court about it, though from time to time, he had sufficient opportunitie. This being considered, was found and judged a publique unrighteousness, and so a publique offence and scandall, wch may not pass without due censure. It was remembered that when Thomas Robinson, one that is noe planter, for removing some land marks in an unrighteous way for his present advantage, in the grass then to be cutt, though he could not hold nor get the inheritance, had been lately fined

40s. in court. Mr. Wakeman and Lieutenant Seeley were therefore desired to advise wth the magistrates and deputies whether the offence be not more proper for the court of Magistrates than for the Newhaven monthly court, and onn the towne's behalf they were ordered to prosecute accordinglie.

But the court was further informed that besides the former vnrighteousness in the quantity of land, a small part lying within two miles, he had severall ways offended and falsified orders; in entering this order made November the 29th, 1640, the grant in the substance was this, that he should have his second division of the cleare ground by the west rocke, provided it were not within the two mile, nor granted to any other, and by sundry in court it was remembered that he was bounded and limitted within two rivers; but in his booke of noates when taken in court, he hath left out the two mile, hath added (or so much as he desires) of wch clause he can give noe satisfactory reason; itt was neither by him so propounded, nor was it any part of the court's order. And as whereas besides his booke of noates, before mentioned, he keeps two other bookes, whereof the latter is to be a faire and lasting recorde, besides the former materyall defects they differ from his booke of noates in other respects. In both of them that clause (if not granted to any other) is left out, and a clause is added in such manner and with such circumstances as gives much offence. For Mr. Cheevers's and Mr. Wakeman's heareinge of his vnrighteous inclosure, desired to see how the grant was penned. Mr. Cheevers read it in Mr. Wakeman's and Thomas Fugill's heareinge; he is assured and knoweth that at that time the order ended with these words, or as much of it as he desires. Mr. Wakeman conceiveth that clause (according to his proportion), was not then in the booke, they both affirm that vpon that ground Mr. Cheevers tould Thomas Fugill that the order was unlimited and not easily transgressed and seemed to marvayle that men should speake of his takinge in too much lande, but added, you mean according ,to yor proportion. Thomas Fugill closed both that that was his meaninge, (yet said not it was soe entered or written), and that men would be talkinge. Mr. Cheevers, when they were gon from Thomas Fugill's house, repeated the order to Mr Wakeman, and presently after wrott it downe according to wch he reported to Lieutenant Seely how it was entred, who confidently replied that the entry soe made was a falce entry. This soon came vnto Thomas Fugill's knowledge, but when the booke came after to be viewed, the line affording room these words were added (according to his proportion), but with other pen and inke, a less character and crooked, as wth a trembling hand."

"The booke vppon occasion being brought and left wth the governor, Mr. Cheevers observed and was offended at this alteration, and at a meetinge wth Thomas Fugill before the governor and elders, questioned him about it; Thomas beginninge to justifie himselfe, the governour, to prevent further rashnesse and sinfull expressions, by way of caution, told him the booke was within and he had viewed it, and if he could judge of writing, these words were added and written after the former part of the order with other pen and incke, and wth a different character, notwithstanding wch, Thomas Fugill boldly replied, that if the governor would give it he would presently take oath they were written at one and the same time with the rest; but the booke being brought out, the difference was so apparent that Thomas Fugill was forced to chang his expression and said he would take oath it was not written since Mr. Cheever saw and read the order; herevpon his second book was sent for, out of wch this record was coppied, and therein also (the line affording roome), the same words seemed to be added, the difference in writinge (though not soe much as in the greate booke), was cleare and evident, wch miscarriage of his gave offence to all present; but this second booke being by the governour and elders since viewed, they severally, but each of them strongly, apprehended that a pen and blacker incke hath bin drawn over it, their being now either none, or a difference so small, as is scarcely discernible, yet Thomas Fugill being questioned againe and againe, denieth it."

"Thomas Fugill was reprimanded for his false records and for his profanity in offering to make oath to the correctness of his records, and by the court he was presently put out of his office of secretrie for this plantation."

John Wakeman was chosen Deputy for the "Jurisdiction court," which was held April, 1646.

"It was desired that a view might be made of the land behind Mr. Wakeman's and Mr. Goodyeare's quarters in the reare of their divizons. Alsoe what land lyeth behind the Yorkshire quarter for ye small lotts."

John Wakeman lived on the corner of what are now Chapel and York streets, New Haven, having bought the house and land originally assigned to Widow Baldwin, who went to Milford.

"At a Genl Court held at Newhaven 5th July, 1647, Mr. Wakeman 'and eight others were appointed' as a Committee vnto whom all questions concerning the sheepe businese is reffered. At the same Court a report was given by Bro. Wakeman and Bro. Anthony Thompson to issue, and their thought beinge that it will be best, as they conceive, answer all the quarter if the highway runne through the middle of their lands. The persons referred to not being satisfied with the report, it was recommitted for further consideration by the committee and the parties interested."

"At a court held at Newhaven this 5th October, 1647, Mr. John Bracy allynats vnto Mr. Kitchell his house and home lott contayninng 2 acr and halfe, and 25 ac. of upland lyeing in Mr. Wakeman's quarter, next Mr. Wakeman's land, and 5 acr. of meaddow, be it more or less, lyeing at the end of Mr. Wakeman's quarter in the west meadowes, and 9 acr. of upland, be the same more or less, lyeing in the neck, wth what comonag remained yt vnsold."

“At a Court held at Newhaven the 2nd day of November, 1647.

“George Ward and Lawrence Warde, plaintiffs, declare against the company of merchants of Newhaven, viz’d. Mr. Theophilus Eaton, now governor, Mr. Stephen Goodyeare, Mr. Richard Malbon, Mr. Thomas Gregson. In this suit Mr. Wakeman acted a prominent part. In his testimony, Lawrence Warde saith that the feoffees, viz’d., Mr. Wakeman, Mr. Atwater, Mr. Crane and Goodman Myles, can saye something in this matter.

“Mr. Wakeman saith for the bargaine he can saye nothing, but a little before Mr. Gregson went some mottion was made to them the said feoffees to paye, w<sup>ch</sup> was very strange to them; and therevpon they mett at the governor’s wth the merchants. Goodman Warde was there and aleaged his want of paye. The merchants conceived it belonged to the feoffees to paye, but they thought it belonged to the rigging and could not consent to paye anything towards them. In that meeting many speeches passed betwixt Mr. Lamberton and Goodman Warde, and as the said Mr. Wakeman remembereth, Goodman Warde said Mr. Lamberton and Mr. Gregson acted with hime, and minded Mr. Gregson of that speech with him in Mr. Davenport’s streette. Mr. Gregson seemed not to remember it thoughe hee denied it not, but said withall, that he did it as a service to ye feoffees. These feoffees denyed yt. Therevpon Mr. Gregson seemed somewhat moved, and said to the gouerner, ‘if they will not paye, then I shall leave my share, but then I will have them in my or our custody and will be payde before they pass.’”

“ At a General Court the 18th of October, 1647, John Wakeman was chosen ‘ Deputy to the generall courte,’ and also to ‘ audite the treasurer’s account for the year past.’

“ The Gouvernor acquainted the Courte that vpon notice of the generall courte’s order to staye the Duch shipp w<sup>ch</sup> was seized and caryed out of this harbour by the Duch, the Duch gouverner hath sent a letter and a protest against Newhaven for it, professing he will have controversie only with Newhaven, and requires us to send the three prisoners and the Duch Marchants and their goods to them to the Mannatoes, with some threatening speeches if we doe not.

As there was danger of war with Dutch settlers on Manhattan Island, now New York, “ the governor therefore desires the courte to consider what shall be done.” The matter was duly considered, and, “ the things being many, the courte agreed that a committee be chosen to consider and proceed therein as they see cause, and by the generall consent and vote, the pticular courte for Newhaven, calling to them Mr. Evance, Mr. Wakeman and Lieutenant Seeley, had full power granted to them to consult, consider and conclude, bothe concerning, receiving and protecting the Duchmen wth all matters aboute fortification, the place and manner, wth all other things thereto belonging.”

In a foot note on page 354 of the Records from which these facts are gathered, we are informed that the “ shipp ” above mentioned was named the St. Beninico, which the Dutch, claiming to be a smuggler, by a stratagem, seized and cut out of the harbor on a Sunday and carried to New Amsterdam, where the vessel and cargo were confiscated.

“ Att a Generall Courte the 23rd of March, 1647,

“ Mr. Robert Newman propounded to the courte, that ther quat<sup>r</sup> and the next wher Mr. Ceffinch lives, desires that they might have on third pt of the<sup>r</sup> land within the two myle exchanged for so much of heither end of the playnes, because that on the hill is so stoney they cannot plant it and yett is better for pasture than ye plaine. The courte considered of it and chose Mr. Malbon, Mr. Wakeman, Mr. Crane and Lieutenant Seeley as a committee to view and consider of what they propound and howe it may stand with the towne's conveniency or inconveniency and to make a report back to ye courte."

"Att a Courte held at Newhaven the 5th of September 1648.

"Henry Bishop informed the courte that he had according to the court's order ye last court indeavored to issue the matter in difference betwixt him and Mr. Davenport butt could gitt none. He was asked who he spake with to doe it, he named Mr. Wakeman, Mr. Tuttill & Richard Milles. The court thought they were fitt men & sent for Mr. Wakeman to desire him to take this upon him, but he was not at home. Richard Milles being in court declared himself vnwilling, but the court agreed that they must chuse some to doe it, and appointed Mr. Wakeman & Richard Milles, two w<sup>ch</sup> Henry Bishop chose himself, and Mr. Crane & Francis Newman chosen by Mr. Davenport. And the court ordered that these foure men viz<sup>d</sup> Mr. Wakeman, Mr. Crane, Richard Milles, & Francis Newman, doe take the case into their hands and consider of it, and if they can to the satisfaction of Mr. Davenport and Henry Bishop to issue it, if not then to informe ye courte how it stands, that they maye be able to informe ye courte how it stands, that they maye have what light they can, further to proceede."

Mr. Davenport owned a farm which was worked by Henry Bishop. The difficulty grew out of this relation.

"At a Generall Court the 9th of October, 1648.

“The Governor propounded to ye court to know what cōrse they would take to prevent the damadge that is done in corne and meddowes, for he heares great complaints; there are orders in force, but wheither was not necessarie to make some stricter order aboute swine and fences, or that some other course might be taken that these damadges might be prevented, and wheither thay will debate the matter now or chuse a committee to prepare the matter against another court, but any one might now propound what way he thinks of, that if they chuse a committee they maye consider it. The court agreed and voted to chuse a committee to consider and prepare the matter against another court.”

Mr. John Wakeman and eighteen others were chosen to act as such committee.

“At a Generall Court the 3d day of January, 1648.

“It is ordered that the court with Mr. Evance & Mr. Wakeman audit the treasurer’s acc<sup>s</sup> for ye yeares past.”

“At a Generall Court the 10th of March, 1648.

“Leiutenant Seeley propounded that the court would consider of some other waye of rateing men then is settled by lands, for divers men w<sup>ch</sup> had good estates at first and land answerable, whose estates are sunke and they not able to pay as they did, & divers prsons whoe had land for their heads, whose estates are smalle, yet paye great rates, and others whose estates are increased haveing but little land paye but a small matter to publique charges. Divers others in the court concurred with him, whereupon the court chose a committee to consider of it and prepare for another court. The committee are the pticular court (calling in the elders for any help or light they want), and one out of each quarter of the towne.”

Mr. Wakeman was the third of ten on said committee.

“At a Generall Courte the 25th of June, 1649.

“It was propounded that the oxen pasture might be fenced at the towne’s charge, and whether it would not be profitable to ye towne that it should be planted three or 4 yeares & after laid again for an oxen pasture, and it was referred to the consideration of ye committee chosen for rates the 10th of March, 1648 (the particular court excepted), viz’d Mr. Gilbert, Mr. Wakeman and others, & yt they inform ye court what they judge of it.”

“At a Generall Court for Newhaven the 29th of Sept., 1649.

“It was propounded and debated that some course might be taken that fences might be made better, that swine might goe abroad, that some fields might be onely for planting Indian corne, and not plant Indian and English together; that ye fence might be brought to a less quantity that men might ye better maintain them. The court considered of the things and thought they were weightie and of great concernment to the towne, therefore ordered to chose a comittee to consider and debate these things privately and prepare it against another court. The comitee chosen is the pticular court, and one at each quarter viz’d Mr. Tuttill ‘and others,’ of whom Mr. Wakeman was one.”

The committee met twice for consultation, made extensive inquiries as to “how rates are carried on in other places,” and made their report to the “Generall Court the 15th October, 1649.”

Radical modifications of the mode of “rating” were made by this court, and to finish the work, “the court chose a comitee w<sup>ch</sup> are hereafter mentioned whoe are to meete on the 6th day next at 4 o’clocke in ye afternoone to consider and draw up ye severall rate w<sup>ch</sup> they thinke every man shoulde paye and then to present it to ye gouernor and magistrats whoe are to consider of it, and if they finde it just, pass it, but if neede be, vpon any man’s just complainte, they have power to releive him.”

"The comitee chosen for this work of rateing are two men out of each quarter, viz'd, Mr. Tuttil " and nineteen others, of whom Mr. Wakeman was one.

The last item shows that the number of "quarters" in the original plan of "Newhaven" was ten.

"Mr. John Wakeman is chosen treasurer."

"At a Ceneral Court held at New Haven for the Jurisdiction, the 30th day of May, 1655, Mr. John Wakeman is chosen Deputie for Newhaven."

It waz propounded to know whether Powgassett is not in this jurisdiction, but Mr. Wakeman, one of the owners, and at this present a deputie for Newhaven, desired a little time of respite before he gives answer.

John Wakeman chosen "Deputie" October the 19th, 1655.

At a General Court of Elections, held at Newhaven for the jurisdiction, the 28th of May, 1656.

Mr. John Wakeman chosen "Treasurer," and was also a "Deputy."

At this court, "John Frost, servant to Mr. Gibbard, being called and examined aboute the burning his master's house & etc." confessed his guilt, and after due consideration, the court desiring to be very lenient, "considering he is young" (aboute fourteene yeares of age), and also somewhat childish in his way, agreed to spare his life (though the offence be exceedingly haynious and aggravated wth many circumstances), but that the following sentence should be executed upon him, viz.: "That the said John Frost should be a servant for one and twenty yeares from this time, five or six of which yeares belongs properly to Mr. Gibbard, being a remainder of ye time of service to him due vpon a former agreement, and for the other time, fifteene or sixteene yeares be it more or less, the profit thereof shall be divided betwixt Mr. Gibbord and Mr. Wakeman (vpon whom the loss fell) in due proportion when their several losses are made known; that he shall be seuerely whipped with rods fitt for that purpose; that he weare a halter about his necke and a small light lock vpon his legg, so as they may be seene; that he stand in the pillory such a space of time as the magistrates shall thinke fitt, and if he shall goe out of y<sup>e</sup> jurisdiction with-out leave, he shall be lyable to be questioned for his life again, w<sup>ch</sup> sentence was by gen. court ordered to be published by the magistrates of Newhaven the next trayneing day, w<sup>ch</sup> will be y<sup>e</sup> 9th of June, and then also, as the case requireth, to be executed "

The neighbors being afraid that if this boy was held to service by Mr. Gibbord he would burn their buildings, and as his "wearing a lock on his legg would make his services of less value to his master." "The court told Mr. Gibbard that they could not force any man to take him, but if he cannot imploy him himselve to satisfaction, he may treat with any other, as Mr. Wakeman, the Marshall or Jno. Cooper, aboute the iron worke, and if he can agree with any of them to satisfaction, the courte will be content, but if no comfortable closeing can be so as he may stay here, but that in the issue he must be sent away, and it may be back to England to his father, then the courte of Magistrates must meete to consider of some further punishment to be inflicted, for example and terror to others, that none may be imboldened to take such courses, and if the lock prove inconvenient and a hindrance to his laborer, it is left to the court at Newhaven to alter that part as they shall see cause."

"At a Court of Magistrates held in Newhaven 26th, 12th mo: 1656."

"John Tompson entered an action against the estate of Mr. Jno. Roberts which is in the hand of Mr. Wakeman for the property comprising said estate to be paid over to his, Tompson's wife, claiming that Roberts was engaged to be married to her some 4 yeares previously, when he promised if he never returned from England for which he then sailed, that she should have his property." In that trial "Anthony Elcott also vpon oath affirmeth, that he heard Mr. Roberts say both at water side and aboard the vessel when he went away that if he proved inconstant, or whether he lived or dyed, he gave that he had here to Ann Vicars, and she might goe to them (meaning Mr. Wakeman & Mr. Ling, whom he intrusted with his estate) and take what she would."

"Joseph Alsupp, attorney for Robert Grey of Salem," brought an action to recover "£20 from Mr. John Wakeman" for a claim against "Mr. Roberts," whose estate was left in the hands of "Mr. Wakeman and Mr. Ling."

Mr. Wakeman claimed that Mr. Ling was dead, that there was none of Mr. Roberts' estate in his hands, and that it had been agreed that "Mr. Goodyear" should pay this claim

"The court having heard the case thus p<sup>r</sup>esented both plant' & defend<sup>t</sup> declared that the sentence of Newhaven court, wch Mr. Wakeman heard and owred, should have been an obligation vnto him to see the estate forthcoming for the payment of the debt demanded, who had yt sole power of that estate devolved vpon upon him, and did the therefore order yt Mr. Wakeman shall pay to Joseph Alsupp £20 for the use of Robert Grey of Salem, but the damages demanded wth the charges of ye court to be borne by the plint', who hath not seasonably p<sup>s</sup>cuted in this business & thereby occasioned loss to ye default."

John Wakeman was chosen magistrate May 29, 1661, but did not take the oath of office.

"At a Generall Court held at Newhaven for the Jurisdiction, the 29th of May, 1661.

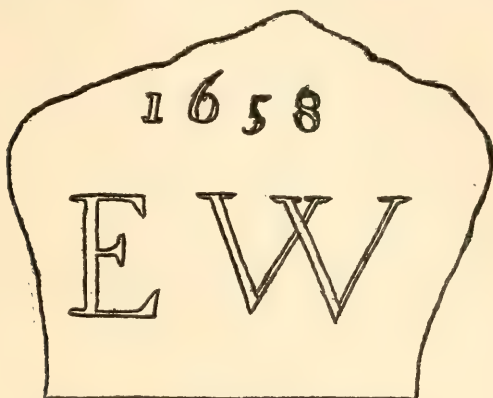

"Mr. John Wakeman propounded to the court concerning the late gouer<sup>rs</sup> sallary (he being deceased) how much they would allow of it to be payed, and it was vnanimously concluded to allow halfe the years sellary, and alsoe that ye charges of his funerall bee borne by y<sup>e</sup> jurisdiction, as Gouvern<sup>r</sup> Eatons was."

"The remainder of y<sup>e</sup> Court of Magistrates which began May 27th, 1661.

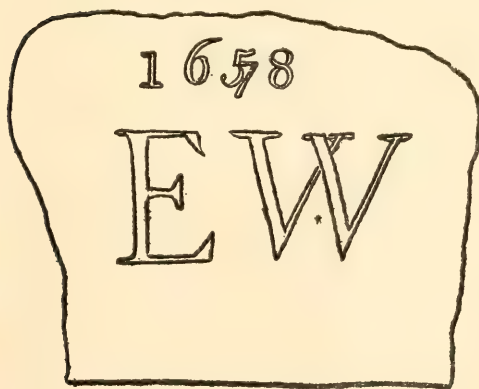

"Lt. Jno. Nash was appointed a trustee (for ye creditors to Mr. Goodyeare's estate) in the stead of Mr. Jno. Wakeman, he being to remoue and desiring it."

The following evidence is presented to support the theory that the two burial stones now standing in the rear of the Center Church, New Haven, marked E. W., 1658, 1657/8, are those of Elizabeth Wakeman,

Two feet wide & high, & 8 Inc. thick

the wife of Mr. John Wakeman. Our reasons for believing this are 1st, that she was the daughter of Mr. William Hopkins, of Bewdley, England, "a gentleman of rank and fortune," and there is no record of any one else whose name has the same initials as dying there within five years of 1658, the date on the stones. Some have presumed them to be erected to Edward Wigglesworth, who died in 1653; but this is hardly probable, as his estate was only £400, and he left a wife and children, who would be liable not to reduce their small inheritance by purchasing two burial stones in times when they were very expensive. Nor do we find that Mr. Wigglesworth had occupied such position of fame or renown as to at all warrant the surmise that his fellow citizens would expend their hard won shekels on burial stones for him; 2d, Mrs. Elizabeth Wakeman was given a seat in the church in February, 1656, but was not mentioned in the next allotment of seats. Further, we find in the Colonial records the following that goes to show or indicate that Mrs. Wakeman had died prior to 1659.

From general court, held April 1, 1661, Mr. Wakeman was nominated at the court of election for a magistrate, after which Mr. Wakeman declared that he thought the unsettled condition he stood in would have spoken sufficiently to have prevented any such action concerning him. When the question being put to him, whether he did not intend to stay amongst us, to which he answered that he was not resolved whether to go or stay, rather than he would accept of the place he would remove. They had therefore done nothing in what they had done. Therefore it was safe to nominate some other. It was propounded that another might be nominated, which by lot was so determined.

Mr. Wakeman's will was executed April 4, 1660, and in it he makes no mention of his wife. Now, as it is hardly presumable that a man in his position would have failed to have mentioned his wife in his will had she been living, we consider she must have died between 1656 and 1660.

A theory has been advanced that these stones were not erected to the memory of a person of very much prominence. Then why were two stones erected and elegantly lettered, one a headstone and the other a footstone, and this in times when money was scarce, and when no other stones were set up?

Mr. Wakeman's children were well married prior to his will, his son marrying a daughter of Deputy Governor Goodyear, one daughter marrying Lieut.-Col. John Talcott, of Hartford, and the other married Samuel Kitchell, of Newark. With his children all well provided for, it was natural that a man of Mr. Wakeman's position and means should mark the grave of his wife, who was of a family of position and fortune.

Per RICHARD LORD,
WM. WADSWORTH.

The original will of Mr. Wakeman is on file in the probate office in Hartford, and is as follows:

I, John Wakeman of New Haven being weake in body, but of sound vnderstanding and memory, in expectation of my great change doe make this my last will and testament. First, I comend my soule into the hands of my Lord Jesus Christ my redeemer, trusting to be saved by his merits and intercession, and my body to be buried at the discretion of my executors and friends, in hope of a joyfull resurection; testifying my thankfulness for the free manifestation of his grace to me in Christ, and for the liberty and fellowship vouchsafed me with his people in his ordinances in a Congregational way, which I take to be the way of Christ, orderly walked in according to his rules, but I doe testify against absolute independency of churches, and perfection of any in light or actings, and against compulsion of conscience to concur with the church without inward satisfaction to conscience, and persecuting such as dissent vpon this grownde, which, I take to be an abuse of the power given for edification by Christ who is only Lord of the conscience.

As for my outward estate and worldly goods that God hath given me which I shall leave, my iust debts and funerall charges being satisfied, my will is thus: First, I give vnto my daughter Helena, wife to John Talcott of Hartford, twenty pounds to be wholly at her own disposal, and to her husband, my son in law Talcott, fve pounds, and my best beaver hatt and band, and to ech of theyre three children fve pounds apiece, namely vnto John, Elizabeth and Samuel, all to be payed within six months after my decease.

It. I give vnto my son Samuel Wakeman's two sons, namely Samuell and John, ten pounds apiece.

It. I give vnto my daughter Kitchells daughter Elizabeth ten pounds.

Item. I give vnto my brother in law Adam Nicholls of Hartford my cloath cloake and the suite of the same which was my cousin John Walker's, and my grey hatt, and I give vnto his wife, my sister Anna Nicholls, ten pounds to be wholly at her own disposing, and to theyr four children twenty shillings apiece, namely, John, Hannah, Sarah, and Ebenezer, all which is my will should be paid to them wthin six moneths after my decease.

It. I give vnto Hanna Cheevers fve pounds, to be set apart and improued for her at the end of one yeare after my decease as my ouerseers shall see meete vntill shee come to eightene yeers of age (which is the tyme agreed vpon for her continuance wth me or mine), or till the tyme of her marriage, prouided shee marry wth the consent of my executors and ouerseers, or wth the consent of any two of them.

It. I giue to my servant Thomas Huxley my short gun with a rest, and my hanger which he vseth to traine with, vpon his good behauiour, that is if he shall carry himselfe honestly and faithfully in his place and seruice to the satisfaction of my executors and ouerseers, or with the approbation of any two of them,

Item. All the rest of my estate, goods, lands and debts, whatsoever, I giue and bequeath to my son Samuel Wakeman, and to my son in law and daughter Samuel and Elizabeth Kitchell as followeth, that is when all my debts and legasyes are discharged

Dear Brother

(which my mind is should be out of my estate as it ariseth indifferently, and at the prises comon in this jurisdiction): my will is that my son Samuel Wakeman shall have two third parts of that my whole estate that remaineth, and my son and daughter Kitchell the other third part equally betwixt them, and my will is that my daughter Elizabeth Kitchell shall have that part of hers wholly at her owne disposing. And I doe make and appoint my son Samuel Wakeman and my son in law Samuel Kitchell to be joyntly executors of this my last will and testament. Alsoe I doe intreate my beloved friends and bretheren, Henry Glouer and James Bishop, to be ouerseers of this my will, and for theyr paines herein I give vnto ech of them ten shillings. And I further desire my deare and louing sisters, my sister Davis and sister Glouer to assist my executors and ouerseers with theyr counsell and help in prizing, diuiding and disposing things equally to mutual satisfaction, according to the true intent of this my will, which I subscribe with my hand this 18th day of 4th month, 1660.

In the presence of

MARTHA DAVIS,
ELLEN GLOUER.

John Wakeman

"On the back,—This may certifie that Martha Davis and Ellen Glouer have attested vpon oath that this is the will of Mr. John Wakeman, lattly deceased, before me, Mathew Gilberte, Deputie Governor, this 2nd of 8th month, 1661."

Inventory taken by Richard Lord and William Wadsworth, September 14, 1661, amount, £157 16s. 11d.

Mr. John Wakeman was deacon of the first church in New Haven.

The first mention of Samuel Wakeman, son of John, in N. H. Colony Records, is among those who took "oath of fidellitie ye 7th, 2nd mo., 1657." Samuel Wakeman is the third on the list.

The second is where he appears as a creditor to the estate of Stephen Goodyeare, already noted.

"At a Gene<sup>l</sup> Court held at New Haven, for the Jurisdiction, the 28th of May, 1662.

"Mr. Samuel Wakeman desired to ppound something to y<sup>e</sup> court about some monies stopt by ye jurisdiction treasurer which was due to his father from ye jurisdiction, first concerning five pound eight shillings that was brought to account after the auditt, the matter appearing cleare onely forgotten by Mr. Wakeman then the court did allow it. 2, Concerning the wampum giuen in as jurisdiction stocke to ye deputies for sixty-foure pounds, and they finding some at six a penny and some at eight. the p<sup>r</sup>sent treasurer Roger Alling would not soe accept without the allowance of this court, Leiften<sup>t</sup> Bell, Mr. Robt. Kitchell & John Cooper testified y<sup>t</sup> w<sup>n</sup> they audited Mr. Wakeman's accounts, then, Mr. Wakeman told y<sup>m</sup> y<sup>t</sup> this wampum was soe received, viz., some at six a penny and some at eight, thervpon this Court allowed it soe to be received (as it was writ vpon) by ye treasurer, the jurisdiction bearing the losse. 3, Concerning twenty shillings wanting in tale in a parcell of wampum y<sup>t</sup> was sent to ye Dutch by Mr. Hodshon, Mr. Samuel Kitchell testified that it was ten pounds sent in a baskett by his father Wakeman to be putt off, and he further s<sup>d</sup> y<sup>t</sup> his father received it for ten pound, but coming backe upon the tale of it to Roger Alling there was but nine pound; this was alsoe granted to be allowed them. 4, Concerning y<sup>e</sup> difference between his father's accounts and y<sup>e</sup> comision's conclusion in y<sup>e</sup> yeare 1660 of about twenty pound in wampum, how to reconcile them they could not yet find, but for clearing it produced a writing vnder the hand of Mr. Allen, which was read, but the thing not appearing cleare to this court left it to ye court at Newhaven to view Mr. Wakeman's booke & issue the business, betwixt them, and therein rest satisfied." "November 5th. At a Genell Court held at Newhaven for ye Jurisdiction, 1662. John Herri-man ppounded about £1 17s. 2d. which was not brought to account with Mr. Wakeman, he desired it might be allowed him. He p<sup>r</sup>senting his accounts as cleare that it was due, the court thought it should be allowed him."

The following item is from Biographical Sketches of Graduates of Harvard University, by J. L. Sibley, M. A., Vol. 1, 1642-1658, Cambridge, Chas. Wm. Sever, University Bookstore, 1873, page 16:

"Thomas Prince says of Samuel Torrey, I suppose he was admitted into Harvard College about 1650, and should, according to the preceding custom, have taken his first degree in three years. But the Corporation making a Law that the Scholars should study at College four years before they commenced Bachelors in Arts, several Scholars, tho' they were accounted as good as any before them; and I suppose of different classes, went off, and never took any Degree at all. There were at least Five of them, who after made a very shining Figure in New England, viz.: Gov. Josiah Winslow, the Rev. Mr. Samuel Torrey, the Rev. Mr. Ichabod Wiswall, of Duxbury, agent for the Plymouth Colony at the Court of England upon the Revolution; the Rev. Mr. Samuel Wakeman, of Fairfield; and the Rev. Mr. Brinsmead of Marlborough; who would all have been a great honor to our Harvard Catalogue."

Savage's Genealogical Dictionary, page 388:

"Wakeman. SAMUEL, Fairfield, son of John, was bred at Harvard, but left college in 1655, upon a dissatisfaction about an hardship which they (seventeen of the school) thought put upon them in making them lose a good part of a year of the time whereupon they claimed their degree. He married 29 Oct., 1656, Hannah, daughter of Stephen Goodyear at New Haven. They had Samuel, born Oct. 12 following, removed to Fairfield and was ordained 30th September, 1665, was much esteemed, and died 8th Mar., 1692.

"His will bears the same date, and his inventory is of 8th Apr. following. He names widow Hannah, children Samuel, who was dead 1691, John, Joseph, and Jabez. He had also Ebenezer, whose estate was divided among the the three brothers and three brothers in law: Albert Denny, Abraham Howell, and Nicholas Clegstone."

CHRISTIAN READER.

The ensuing discourse shews the great danger of a Peoples departing from God by sin, it will cause God to depart from them, as here we find threatned. The way to escape this Judgment, is to be instructed Be thou instructed lest. This word of commination was directed and spoken first at Jerusalem, but reacheth to us now in N. E., who stand in like circumstances before the Lord, as Jerusalem then did. A parallel People with them, both in respect of privilege and provocation Profession, and Prevarication. They were highly favored of God, so have we been; They deeply revolted from God, so have we done, That faithful City became an Harlot; and we in this Land are greatly degenerate.

New England Israel was once Holiness unto the Lord: What are we now? Whence it follows that (as persons concerned) what was spoken to them; we must take to ourselves. If the Lord by the Prophet thus instruct and threaten Jerusalem he doth the same to us. What then is our duty? O be instructed, reformed refined, that we may yet be spared, and God's presence among us continued, O for that Reformation the Lord hath so long lookt for hath so often been attempted, and so much talked of, but not yet attained! What is it more than meer talk? Where is the thing? Is not all we have done but as the morning cloud and early dew that goeth away, passeth soon out of sight and vanisheth into nothing? O then be instructed See and consider the great and many sins so rife and common among us; Sigh, mourn, and lament over them our own and others sins, by all which God is discharging dishonoured; and then every one to fall to our proper work of repenting, returning, reforming with all speed and seriousness and that the Judgment threatned may not be executed upon us by God's departure from us: Let us Labour with all our might, and by all means to keep God with us, to hold him and not let him go; for if we let God go, we are not our own friends, nor will it appear that we counted God our best friend, for such we will hug and hold fast, and if possibly we can, will keep them with us: How loth were they to part with their beloved Paul? O blessed Paul, they desire much his company and presence; but what is the presence of Paul, though an Apostle, to the presence of God himself with his People? And would we then keep God among us? If so,

1. Put a due price upon Divine Presence, as Moses did, Exod 33, 2, 3, 15, The presence of an Angel will not satisfie him: If God himself will not go with his People, what can an Angel do for them?

2. Plead hard for the continuance of God's preference with us as Moses there, and so the Prophet Jer. 14, 8, 9. Let us shew how we value, and esteem of our God, even above all creature comforts in Heaven or Earth, Psal. 53, 25, Say, Lord, what are all these? They may go their way so thou wilt stay with us, we can do well enough without them, but not without thee.

3. Put away that which would drive God from us, as they did and retained his presence, Judg. 10, 10, 15, and compassion also: true repentance, and our returning to God, is the best plea, we can make for God's returning unto us, and continuing with us. Consider what may encourage, and what should quicken us to labour to keep God with us.

1. To encourage us, the thing is possible, God may be prevailed with if due means be used. The Judgement threatned is not yet executed, nor hath the Lord cast us out of his presence as yet 2 King, 13, 23, yet it h' midst of us, Jer. 14, 9.

God is pleased to speak before he smite; yea to speak and warn us, that he may not smite us; but being penitent, and reformed we may be spared, 3. God is inclined to mercy, willing to be reconciled to sinners, and easily intreated by them, when they sincerely turn unto him. The Son Came, the Father ran, Luke 15, 20. Again, 4. This Commination is under condition (not absolute) that if we repent God will repent; if we return God will return as the Promise runs—Zech. 1, 3. This should encourage.

2. What should quicken us? Consider, as 1. If we do not repent, and do not what we do in good earnest, to do to purpose, we shall find God in good earnest in doing as he hath thought and threatned against us—Zech. 8, 14. And 2. Consider what it is for God to depart from us. When God goes, all goes, he being All.

1. All God goes, his hearing ear, his pitying eye, his shining Face and Countenance, his helping Hand, his Loving Heart, tender Affection, yerning Bowels, his glorious Attributes of power, mercy, goodness, which were all for us are now gone from us. When God's Soul, which is Himself, whole God or God thus wholly departs from a People. 2. All good goes, for if God leave us, what good can he leave with us? Doth not his goodness influence all our good things, and make them such unto us? What were Health, Wealth, Friends, all the world to us, if God be not with us? Yea, what were Heaven itself if God were not there? 3. When God goes all evil comes, as Deut. 31, 16, 18. And no other can be expected indeed, but when the Sun sets dark night will ensue. Take away the light and nothing but darkness remains. The absence of all good (which is in God only) necessitates succeeding evil, and is an inlet unto it. 4. Whatever evils befall us when God is departed from us will be turned upon us as the fruit of our own wayes: and what we have procured to ourselves, Prov. 1, 31, Jer. 2, 17. And so they laid the pleasant land desolate, Zech. 3, 14. A great aggravation of any affliction when self sought or brought upon ourselves by our own default, as Joab tells David, 2 Sam. 19, 17. If by his so carrying himself, he drew upon himself so great a mischief and misery, as to cause his Associates, Souldiers and helpers to withdraw from him: It will be worse unto thee, saith he, than all the evils that ever befel thee from thy youth until now, to be left alone that night destitute of a Guard about him, when danger surrounded him and this through his own default, would make it a dark and a dismal night indeed unto David; how much more when by our sinful folly we provoke God to depart from us; what height of folly is this, and what depth of misery and distress doth it bring poor sinners into! But Manum detabula; I may no longer detain the (gentle Reader) thus standing at the door, but send thee into the house to partake of the good things there prepared; that wholesome and good Word of the Lord there opened. I commend it to thee as good in itself, and good at this time, a seasonable Word, an awakening Word, a soul affecting Word, a good helping among many others of like sort, to make thee and others serious, which was and is the design of this Sermon. The Reverend and Pious Author having the sense of what he spake upon his own heart, was willing also to affect the hearts of others, and therefore (as you see) he used not only acceptable, but operative words, even words like goods and nails; heart piercing expressions, that they that hear may feel also. But what will all avail, if the Lord set not in with it? Let our eyes be therefore unto him. And now the Lord bless, let the blessing of Heaven be upon this endeavor, and let that One Shepherd, the Lord Jesus Christ, by the hand of his Holy Spirit, so foster these awful truths upon all our hearts, that the powerful effects of the same may be seen in our reformed lives.

Amen. So prays Thy Servant in Christ. F. Bishop.

AT THE ELECTION, MAY 14, 1685.

Jer. 6, 8, Be thou instructed O Jerusalem, lest my Soul depart from thee; lest I make thee desolate, a land not inhabited. Whoso shall view over and attentively consider the whole trace and series of God's dealing with and dispensations toward his Covenant People (however as to them they have sometimes issued very dreadfully) will find them giving in clear and abundant testimony to the Truth of that of the Psalmist, Psal. 145, 8, The Lord is Gracious, and full of Compassion, slow to anger, and of great mercy. Among many other passages in the sacred story to this purpose (purposely kept upon the File for the use of the Church in all Ages, and for ours upon whom the ends of the world are come) (he whose compassions have been ever of old, using the same tenor of tender dispensations towards his People now as then) the Text now read, as also what we find in the foregoing Chapters, make this very evident and apparent. You may see in the first Chapter God's calling, instructing and encouraging the Prophet, as to his Office and Work, or as to his Office-work, he being one of these Messengers of whom you have mention made, 2 Chron. 36, 15, That the Lord God of their Fathers sent unto them, rising up betimes, and sending, because he had compassion on his People, and on his dwelling Place. You may see in the second Chapter God's earnest and affectionate expostulation with his People by him as to his antient love and kindness to them, and their notwithstanding causeless Revolt and Apostacy from him. Go cry in the ears of Jerusalem, etc., Vers 2, &c. God rings such a peal in Jerusalem's ears by the Prophet throughout the Chapter upon this account, as one would thought, should have reached and pierced, should have thirled and thawed their very hearts, you may see in the third chapter, God inviting and perswading them to Repent and turn to him with Promises of gracious acceptance, vers 1, 12. Also pleading with them his Covenant relation, and merciful propention towards them, vers 14, &c. You may see in the 4 Chapter God adding further to his former Promises, Promises to Promises, vers. 1, 2, and threatnings to his Promises, as in the sequel of that Chapter, if by any means, fair or foul, he might induce or necessitate, draw or drive them to Repentance. You may yet see in the fifth chapter, God's lothness to proceed against them to destroy them; his exceeding readiness, his desirousness to pardon and spare them: Run ye to and fro through the streets of Jerusalem, and see now, and know, and seek in the broad places thereof of ye can find a man, if there be any, that executeth judgment, that seeketh the truth, and I will pardon it, vers. 1. God speaks as one agrieved to punish them, as one ready to pardon them upon low termes; and earnestly looking about if haply he might find something why he might do it. In this 6 Chapter, while yet there is any hope, we have God still pursuing the matter with them, laying close siege unto them, putting home his threatnings, lowdly alarming them with his Judgements, plainly warning them of the worst that was to be expected, and unavoidably coming upon them, if not prevented solemnly, and earnestly admonishing them to bethink themselves, be advised that it might not come to that. This is in general the sense and intendment of the Text and Context, but to take a little more particularly view of it we have here: 1. In the beginning of this Chapter an exceeding lively, sensible, starting and awakening representation made of the siege and sack of Jerusalem, the miserable destruction by the Babylonians impending them. O ye Children of Benjamin gather yourselves to flee out of the midst of Jerusalem to escape the danger, he bids them flee out of Jerusalem to escape the danger, or rather the sense of it seems to be that they should gather themselves to go out of the city to make good their frontiers, and stand upon their defence against the enemy; as it is said of the Moabites, that when they heard the kings were come up to fight against them, they gathered all that were able to put on Armour and stood in their borders, 2 Kings 3, 21. Blow the trumpet in Tekoa, that is give the alarm, which as now commonly by the beating of the Drum, was then done by the blowing of the trumpet, Ezek. 7, 14. And set up as a sign of fire in Beth haccorem, as is wont to be done at this day to give notice of any sudden invasion, for evil appeareth out of the north and great destruction. Under all these terms, rallying of Men, Sounding of Trumpets, firing of Beacons, Military usages, in such cases the Prophet notably sets forth what a dreadful alarm the Northern Army should give them. The state of Jerusalem thus invaded, is expressed vers. 2, I have likened the daughter of Sion to a comely and delicate Woman; as in respects of God's benign and gentle dealing with her, so in respect of her abuse of Divine goodness and indulgence to Pride, Luxury, Wantonness, &c. The Shepherds with their Flocks shall come unto her, they shall pitch their tents against her, round about they shall feed every one in his place; the words either plainly show Jerusalem's utter destruction; she should be so destroyed, that sheep should feed in her, iam seges est ubi Truia fuit, or under the similitude of the Shepherds, and their Flocks pitching their tents against her, round about the Chaldeans with their Armies, the Captains with their Companies which should begirt them round, and besiege and hem them in on every side is set forth and expressed: It followeth, prepare War against her, arise and let us go up at noon. Wo unto us for the day goeth away, for the shadows of the evening are stretched out, arise and let us go up by night, and let us destroy her Palaces, wherein is to the life described the zeal and spirit of the enemy to the work their restless industry at it day and night, and their very impatience with themselves that they had not effected it; all tending to set forth the woful destruction that their enemies should work them. But how doth the Prophet thus speak: Gather, Rally, blow the trumpet, fire the Beacon, &c. Was there any enemy in sight? Was the Babylonian Army now in their borders? No, they probably enjoyed sundry years patience after this, and before the destruction here spoken of came upon them; but the Prophet thus speaks all along in the present tense, speaks as if the Caldeans were upon them, makes such a presentation of things as if present, and even now in their eyes and ears, that a dead, dull, secure, senseless people might be quickened and awakened indeed. God would, and we should, make evil present in the threatening that we may put away and avoid it; Noah being warned of God of things not seen as yet moved with fear prepared an Ark.

2. In what follows in the 6 and 7 verses, he layes forth the causes of this sore impending destruction that he hath described; it seemed unreasonable to Festus to send a Prisoner and not withal to signify the Crimes laid against him, Acts 25, ult. As God wants not, so he is not wanting to give (the scripture is full of it) the reason of all the evils that he threatens to do, or doth against any; so here (according to his usual manner elsewhere) he gives the reason of that great destruction brought so near them in threatening of the former verses, viz., Jerusalem's abominable and boundless wickedness. Thus hath the Lord of Hosts said, hew down trees and cast a mount against Jerusalem, this is the city to be visited, she is wholly oppression in the midst of her. This is the City to be visited, not a City, but the City above all other Cities deserving and designed to be visited, but how visited? Not in a way of favor, and care, and kindness, as sometimes that term is intending not by Prophets, and the tenders of grace and mercy. Jerusalem had been thus visited, but she had not known the day of her visitation, but in wrath and judgement and by a destroying enemy: but why thus visited? She is wholly oppression, in the midst of her they are called not oppressing but oppression, to show how superlatively oppressive they were, and not only oppression but wholly oppression, implying the general infection, the universal prevailing of this sin, 'tis added in the midst of her; not in her suburbs, outskirts some odd and unobserved corners, was it thus; but it sought no covert, it was visible, evident, and eminent in her; it follows, as a fountain casteth out her waters so she casteth out her wickedness; a Fountain casteth out her waters naturally, freely, incessantly, constantly, forcibly, and abundantly; and thus did Jerusalem sin as those accustomed, habituated, naturalized to sin, as those that could not cease from sin, as those that knew no restraint nor bounds or end of sinning; as is further set forth in the following words, violence and spoil is heard in her before me. Continually is grief and wounds, the cry of Jerusalem went up like that of Sodom; poor Jerusalem, how is the faithful City become an harlot, it was full of Judgement, Righteousness lodged in it, but now murderers.

3. In the Text (which makes the third and last part of the Context) (having thus realized to them that fore and certain ruine that was inevitably coming upon them, if not prevented, as also laid before them, those great and wrath-provoking sins, the causes of so great destruction) he comes earnestly and affectionately to call upon them, to be perswaded, cautioned and advised for the preventing of it: Be thou instructed, O Jerusalem, lest my soul depart from thee, lest I make thee desolate, a land not inhabited. This application made to them in the Text, is the use of the whole Context, the drift and scope, and design and tendency, & issue of all, is O that Jerusalem would be instructed, lest her God leave, and leaving lay her desolate. To give you in the sense and importance of the words we have in them; Two things to be considered, 1. Who is here spoken to? 2. What is spoken?

1. Who is here spoken to, and that is Jerusalem; Jerusalem (to say nothing of its situation and outward strength and greatness) was the City of God, the City of the Great King, the Holy City, the perfection of beauty, Israel's Glory, and the joy of the whole Earth, loved of God in a special manner, and chosen to set his name there: There was his presence, his Worship, his Ordinances, his Oracles, his Prophets; there God shined and was known in her Palaces. At the first the Lord chose Israel from all the Nations of the World to be his People; and after when Israel fell and made defection from God he reserved Judah to be the upholder of his true Religion; and in Judah chose Jerusalem as the place of his Worship; so that as Israel was God's peculiar People of all the World, so Judah was the best part of Israel, and Jerusalem the chief place of Judah; Jerusalem was then God's speciall peculiar People under that notion as appropriate to God, as near to God as near might be. This Jerusalem God here speaks to. And what saith he to them? That's the 2, Thing to be considered, be thou instructed, &c. The words are Hortatory and Monitory and Minatory; the Text in the run of it is mixed and made up of these, it is an Exhortation, or if you will an Admonition rather, and that under the severest commination. Note in it three things, 1. The Exhortation or Admonition itself. 2. The manner of expressing it, and putting it home to the Persons concerned. 3. The Motives inforcing.

1. The Exhortation and Admonition itself, the subject matter of it, be instructed (it), the Word signifies to be corrected, to be instructed, to be amended in, and by being corrected, to be instructed is to know, and yet more than barely, merely to know, to know (as the use of the term in Scripture language commonly signifies) so as to be affected and acted accordingly, to know not speculatively, notionally only, with a cold, dry, barren, unpractical knowledge, but to know with a conscientious feeling heart-affecting, operative knowledge to be instructed, is so to know and understand, take in and lay to heart the reason of things, as to be convinced, affected, cautioned, advised, counselled, perswaded, and in every respect accordingly concerned, and suitably wrought upon by it. We may fully take it up in these three things.

1. It implies conviction, which is a right, true apprehension of things, as indeed they are; a real understanding how matters stand with us, or between God and us, to know things with application to ourselves, or for ourselves; as the phrase is, Job 5, ult which is indeed our wisdom, therefore it is called the instruction of Wisdom, Prov. 15, 33. And we are called upon to hear instruction, and be wise, Prov. 8, 33.

2. It infers Contrition, in case all is not well with us, or seeing ourselves (as it is said of Israel, Exod. 5, 10) to be in evil case. Conviction works, contrition and Repentance; a true sight of things infers and draws after it a due sense of things; hence that of Ephraim, after I was instructed I smote upon my thigh, Jer. 31, 19.

3. It includes and takes in Conversion, Conviction, working Contrition. Repentance works by it, and in the way of it unto Conversion, in respect of which eminently the reproofs of instruction (i. e., the Conviction and Contrition it works tending to and ending in Conversion) are said to be the way of Life, Prov. 6, 23. This is to be instructed, which is the matter of the Exhortation.

2. The manner of expressing it Thou O Jerusalem, be thou instructed; the terms are very Pathetical and full of affection: 'tis a passionate, quick, powerful and very moving mode of expression, putting home what is spoken to the Persons concerned. Be thou instructed, there is an emphasis upon this (Thou) thou that art in a special manner appropriated to God, thou that art eminently privileged above others, thou whom I have chosen, loved, set my heart, laid out my care and kindness upon, Etc. Be thou instructed, O Jerusalem: Depth of Sorrow, and height of desire, when our affections and passions are up, bring us in with our (O's) our interjections and exclamations, as here O Jerusalem, which carries in it great affection, and earnestness of expression.

3. The Motives inforcing it; Lest my Soul depart from thee, lest I make thee desolate, a land not inhabited. The Words hold forth a first and second, or a double dreadful commination, in case the admonition given were not taken, were not attended to, lest my Soul depart from thee: The Soul of God is God himself. Job 23, 13, What the Soul desireth, even that he doth, i. e., What himself desireth. So Judg. 10, 16, His soul was grieved for the miseries of Israel, i. e., He was grieved, so that to say, lest my Soul depart from thee is as much as to say lest I depart from thee; and yet it is more than so to say, for though that be the meaning of it, yet this manner of speaking carries more in it; God so speaks as to affect them with a due apprehension of his deep concernment in what he so speaks, as a matter that his Soul, his Spirit was much in, when the soul is mentioned a thing said to be done with the soul, it implyes our Spirits to be much in it, as Isa. 26, 9, With my Soul have I desired thee in the night, and with my Spirit within me will I seek thee early. So also God thus Speaks to set forth and signifie to them the withdrawment of his love and affection from them, lest my Soul depart from thee, or as the Original, according to your Marginal reading, be loosed or disjoynted from thee, that is lest I withdraw my love from thee, lest my mind be alienated. So it is rendred, Ezek. 23, 18, My mind was alienated from her, my mind or soul was loosed or disjoynted from her; the expression is the same with this of the Text, cleaving or knitting of Soul to or with any is expressive of love and affection: It is said of Shechem, his Soul clave unto Dinah the Daughter of Jacob, and he loved the Damsel, Gen. 34, 3. So of Jonathan, that his soul was knit with the soul of David, and he loved him as his own soul. 1 Sam. 18, 1, Now I say, as cleaving and knitting of Soul to and with any, imports that we intirely and inwardly love and affect them, so for the Soul to depart from any, be loosed or disjoynted from them implyes disaffection, and an altogether alienation and estrangement of mind from them, lest my Soul depart from thee; then is as much as to say, lest I utterly leave thee, lest I wholly withdraw my affections, and totally and finally take off my heart from thee. And as is further threatned, lest I make thee desolate, a land not inhabited. The words are plain, and as plainly signifie not those gentler and corrective, but those consumptive, ruining, destroying, desolating Judgements, that God taking off his heart from them, would bring upon them many afflictions, much of correction may possibly consist with the love and favour of God towards a People, or however, certain it is, that a People may severely smart under the effects of his displeasure, while yet his heart may be towards them, at least not wholly taken off from them; but when once it comes to this, that God's Soul departs from a People, he puts himself into ways of destruction towards them; when once his heart is taken off from them, his destroying hand is turned upon them: He first casts off, and then cuts off a People; casts them first out of his heart, and then out of his sight.

It remains only to tell you that the (lest) here prefixed, Lest my Soul depart from thee, lest I make thee desolate: This twofold lest hath a twofold look in it, as to either and both parts of the threatening; it looks both ways. 1. Upon the prevention of it, that by their being instructed what is here threatned, might be obviated and prevented. 2. Upon the unavoidableness of it, if they be not instructed, if they hearken not to counsel, no other is to be hoped or expected but that it will certainly come upon them. This manner of speaking, according to the common usage of it, see Exod. 19, 22, Job 42, 8, implies as on the one hand a possibility of escaping what is so threatned, so be it that due use of means be attended to; so on the other hand, the impossibility of avoiding it in case of neglect: it holds forth not a probability, a danger only, but a certainty, that if means for prevention be not attended to, the evil threatned will be inflicted, if Jerusalem be not instructed, God's Soul will depart from her, &c. From the words thus opened, let me commend to you this great, considerable and concerning point of doctrine so in it self, tho it fall (the more the pity) to so inconsiderable and feeble a hand to manage and improve it; namely,

DOCT. God so threatens to leave and lay waste, to take off his heart from, and turn his destroying hand upon his own People, as that it may, and that it may be prevented, yet so that if it be not, it will come to that: It concerns them therefore to be instructed, to be advised, to hearken to counsel, to bethink themselves, to be convinced, affected, repent, amend, convert and turn to God, lest they bring it to that woful pass. We have three things in the Doctrine (and the Text is very full of them all) 1. That God so threatens to leave and lay waste, to take off his heart from, and turn his destroying hand upon his own People, as that it may, and that it may be prevented. 2. Yet God so threatens it, that if it be not prevented, it will come to that, he will certainly leave and lay them waste; take off his heart from them, and turn his destroying hand upon them. 3. It concerns them therefore, or these things considered, things thus standing, to be instructed, to be advised, to hearken to counsel, to bethink themselves, to be convinced, affected, repent, amend, convert and turn to God, lest they bring it to that woful pass. 1. God so threatens to leave and lay waste, to take off his heart from and turn his destroying hand upon his own People: i. e., His visible Covenant People, as that it may, and that it may be prevented. The manner of God in his threatenings, is to leave room for remedy; his end being that (if it may be) the threatned evil may be prevented: God doth not take a silent leave of his People (Jacob like from Laban) upon displeasure steal away from them and say nothing, get him out of hearing before they hear anything of it: He doth not break away from them suddenly, and remediesly, nor yet break in upon them suddenly, surprise them (the Sinful People) fall foul upon them in his wrath, cast them off, cut them off; no this is not the manner of God, whose delight is in mercy. But God threatens to leave his People, so that it may, and that it may be prevented: God never leaves his People but he first threatens, warnes, advises, admonishes them; but he first bespeaks them as his People here: O, be instructed; our Bible so abounds with this that it were endless, and to men acquainted with Scriptures, 'tis needless to give particular instances. God long and often threatned, and warned Israel and Judah of old, before he alienated his heart from them; called them Loammi and gave them a Bill of Divorce, nor yet had Ephesus, and those other New Testament Churches (tho now God makes quicker work than then) their Candlestick's removed, but after solemn & signal warning, for the prevention of it. And the reasons of it are,

Reas. 1. From God's lothness to leave his people, his own, his Covenant People. The tender and endeared affection that he bears unto a People taken near unto himself; God's affections are stronger and he stands in closer relation to his Covenant People, than that he easily cast off and forsake them: The Lord will not forsake his People, 1 Sam. 12, 22. And in very deed, their being his people is founded upon such a bottom, even that of his free Grace, that is not easily slighted, as the reason there added shews; the Lord will not forsake his People. Because it hath pleased the Lord to make you his People. God having made any his People, and that of meer good pleasure, is not forward to cast off and forsake them: God not willingly afflicts, Lam. 3, 33. but much more lothly rejects his Covenant-People, as is notably set forth, Hos. 11, 8, How shall I give thee up, Ephraim? How shall I deliver thee, Israel? How shall I make thee as Adma, and set thee as Zeboim? My heart is turned within me, my repentings are kindled together. The great God who here (as commonly in Scripture) speaks of himself after the manner of men, to our understanding; gives us to understand in this strange, passionate and Rhetorical language; how hardly he brings his heart to it, to give up as to any more room in his affection, to deliver over unto destruction his own People: God (as I may say) is at a set when it comes to this, it casts him into a deep deliberation & a sorely exercising conflict in his own thoughts about it; how doth he turn it with himself, and deeply. and inwardly, revolving the matter, question with himself about it? What give up Ephraim, deliver Israel, make Ephraim, make Israel, as Adma and Zeboim? How can I do it? What deal thus by thee, Ephraim, by thee, Israel, by thee discard, destroy my own People as I have done? Sodom, how can I find in my heart to do it? How doth God rouse this bitter pill in his mouth (with holy reverence be it spoken) and as unable to swallow it, at last spit it out? I will not execute the fierceness of mine anger, I will not return to destroy Ephraim; so exceeding loth is God to give up, to give over his People to destruction and therefore layes his threatening of it so, as to leave room for remedy.

Reas. 2. That he might hereby try the love and affection of his People, whether they will let him go; God intimates to a People his leaving of them, threatens with it before he doth, that he may feel how their pulse beats towards him, what affections they have for him; how their love will strive and work upon such an occasion before God quite leaves a People, wholly takes off his heart from them; he is willing to sound theirs whether they have any affections left for him. You may read, Exod. 33 (the People having committed that great sin in making them Gods of Gold) God tells them he will leave them, he will go no more in the midst of them: and to make them the more sensible of it, Moses takes the Tabernacle (the visible signe and token of God's presence) and pitches it without the camp afar off; and now God looks and listens what they say to it, how they take it that he may accordingly deal with them: When God is about to leave his People because they provoke and set light by him he is yet willing to try them to the utmost whether they will so part with him; whether they will indeed let him go, or whether they will stir up themselves to take hold of him. You may see in Ezek., 9, 10, 11 Chapters, God so signaling his departure from his People in those several, gradual, visible, and observable removes of his glory there mentioned, as if he had said, let them see me going, that I may see if they have any love or regard for me; God stands at every step, looks back, listens if there were any that minded or regarded.

Reas. 3. That they might have opportunity of striving to keep God with them, and be quickened and stirred up to the improvement of it that they might as the Prophet speaks, Isa. 55, 6, Seek the Lord while he may be found, call upon him while he is near. God makes offer to go from his People, threatens to be gone, speaks of leaving them that they may be effectually awakened to enquire what's the matter, to reform what's amiss, to repent of and part with those sins that are the causes of God's threatned departure from them; by such intimations also, lest I leave you lest my Soul depart from you: God would stir up his People, not to let him go, shake them up from their loose sitting to him, and quicken them to lay faster hold on him.

Reas. 4, and last. That when God hath left a People, and leaving them left them to destruction, they may be lost inexcusable; that when God is gone he hath indeed cast off a People, his Soul is departed from them, his heart and hand turned against them (all means of precaution, prevention improved with them proving unavailable) they may not have to complain but of themselves, and their wilful and remedyless self-destroying folly. God goes not from a People but with observation, and after many and evident premonitions and warnings, they shall not have to say, alas, how hath God left us? It was sudden, unexpected, unthought of else what would we not have done to prevent it: But God will have to say, not only you gave me cause to go by your sins, but (as it were) leave to go by your silence, your senselessness; you know, and heard, and saw me going, and yet were no more affected, stirred, no more then as those wholly unconcerned about it, or well enough contented with it.

2. Yet God so threatens it that if it be not prevented, it will come to that, he will certainly leave and lay them waste, take off his heart from them, and turn his destroying hand upon them. If Jerusalem, God's own people, will not be instructed, let God threaten, warn, call upon, admonish, counsel them, nothing takes with them, they lay nothing to heart, apply themselves to no means of prevention but remain unadmonishable, incorrigible, irreclaimable under all: God will leave and give over such a people, though his own people: See Jer. 32, 31, 32, 33, verses. God tells them he will remove them from before his face, because of all the evil which they did, and because though he taught them rising up early and teaching them, yet they hearkened not to receive instruction, so, 2 Chron. 36, 14, &c., God had compassion on his People, and on his dwelling place: And hence bare with them, forbore them, continued with much patience in the use of abundance of means to wait upon them, but they continued to sin and slighted all until the wrath of the Lord arose against his People till there was no remedy. God warns in mercy, and may continue to warn in much mercy; but to sin, to continue to sin against warning, will at last bring wrath without remedy: And the reasons of it are:

Reas. 1. Because such is the nature of sin, such its contrariety unto God, so loathsome it is in his sight that impenitently, irreclaimably persisted in, it will work any People, even his own people out of his heart. God hates, abhors, abominates sin as the Scripture abundantly witnesseth: It is that abominable thing that he hates, Jer. 44, 4. Sin finds so little favour in God's heart that he cannot abide the sinner in his sight; he so hates the work that he hates the worker of iniquity: The foolish shall not stand in thy sight, thou hatest the workers of iniquity, Psal. 55. Not only for sin did the Lord eject, abhorre these heathen nations whom he cast out before his people, for they committed all these things, and therefore I abhorred them, Levit. 20, 23. But even his own Israel they were defiled with their own works and went a whoring with their own inventions; therefore was the wrath of the Lord kindled against his People, insomuch that he abhorred his own inheritance, and gave them into the hand of the heathen, &c., Psal. 106, 39, 40, 41. And what a fearful word is that from God concerning his own People, the People of his choice and love. Amos. 6, 8, The Lord hath sworn by himself, saith the Lord of Hosts. I abhor the excellency of Jacob, and hate his Palaces, therefore will I deliver up the city and all that is therein. So much was the heart of God alienated from them, so deeply was he disaffected to them by their sinful and unworthy deportments, of which you have mention made in the foregoing Context. God loved Israel, Hos. 11, 1. Yea but sin (that make-bate sin that separateth chief friends) was of power to expel them both, his heart and house for the wickedness of their doings. I will drive them out of my house. I will love them no more, Hos. 9, 15. Never is God so wedded unto any People but they may sin so as utterly to work themselves out of his affections.

Reas. 2. Because it is not for any worthiness in them more than any other People that God is taking them to be his People, and setting his love upon them, as God tells Israel, Deut. 7, 7, 8.

If they therefore forfeit distinguishing grace and mercy by their unworthiness, they neither were, nor are better than others, nor is there any reason why God should continue them to be his People, continue his love and affection to them, regard them more or make any other or better account of them than of any other People: See Amos 6, 1, 2.

Reas. 3. Because God's free Promise and Covenant is conditionall. If they will be his People he will be their God, if they will own him he will own them; if they will continue with him he will continue with them, but if they will none of him, he will none of them; if they cast off him he will cast off them. 2 Chron. 15, 2, The Lord is with you while ye be with him, and if ye seek him he will be found of you, but if ye forsake him he will forsake you. God therefore gives this as the reason of his deserting them their deserting him. 2 Chron. 24, 20, Because ye have forsaken the Lord he hath also forsaken you; so God tells them, breaking with him that he will break with them. Num. 14, 34, Ye shall know my breach of Promise. Not that God breaks covenant (never did he yet suffer, nor never will his faithfulness to fail) but they failing forfeited (as is the case in conditional Promises) the obligation on his part God keeps touch with us as we keep touch with him: Not that this is so to be understood, as if there were anything in us, or doable by us to merit, deserve, or make due in a way of Justice God's gracious presence with us, nor yet as if an uncertain and undetermined will and purpose in God, respecting his dealings with a People, took its measures from them, were moved, changed, determined, according to their carriage towards him nothing less; all is of him who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will; and of his free Grace (yea, the very condition) whose it is to work in us both to will and to do of his good pleasure: Yet God's absolute will and purpose in himself is conditional in the dispensation of it unto us: He takes no conditions from us, but he gives conditions to us, and still reserving to himself according to his own sovereign pleasure, to work the conditions in us which himself requireth of us, he dealeth with us according to them. And in very deed in this way God wonderfully glorifies his Wisdom, Goodness, Justice in his dispensations in propounding the most reasonable, equal conditions as what can be more than to be with them while they are with him; to be found of them seeking him, not to forsake them, but forsaking him, solemnly advising them for the best, and then leaving People to their own choice and dealing with them according to it.

Reas. 4. Lastly. I might add, because God is most highly dishonored, most exceedingly provoked by the sins of his own People ; a Peoples being God's own, and the more he is owning of them, is so far from palliating and extenuating, that it greatly aggravates and augments their sin against God, and their Judgement from him. You only have I known of all the Families of the Earth, therefore I will punish you for all your iniquities, Amos 3, 2. There is not that in the sin of others that is in theirs; others may sin better cheap than they may do, whom God hath known and owned above others, they sin against greater Light and Love, and Grace than do others; the relation they stand in to God, and the mercies that in that relation they stand under from him, exceedingly aggravate their sin: do ye thus requite the Lord O foolish People and unwise? Is he not thy Father that hath brought thee, that hath made thee and established thee, Deut. 32, 6. And besides by virtue of this relation, their sin is more against God, and so more to him, more deeply resented by him than the sin of others: God can much better bear the misbehaviours and undutiful carriages of persons at a greater distance than in his own family, his own Children, this goes near him: When the Lord saw it he abhorred them, because of the provoking of his Sons and of his Daughters, Deut, 32, 19.

3. It concerns them therefore, or these things considered, things thus standing to be instructed, to be advised, to hearken to counsel, to bethink themselves, to be convinced, affected, repent, amend, convert, and turn to God, lest they bring it to that woful pass. Zeph. 2, 1, 2, Gather your selves together; yea gather together a nation not desired before the decree bring forth, &c. How earnestly doth God call upon them to recollect themselves (for that seems to be the sense of it) so rally their thoughts to bethink themselves; yea, to bethink themselves and be advised before it be to late. But this is so Consonant with, and evident from the whole current of Scripture: See Jer. 4, 4, 5, & 26, 2, 3, & 36, 2, 3. That it may suffice to have pointed you to those places, in which, with many more, God manifestly admonishes his People of this duty, and presseth upon them the consideration how nearly it concerns them to be instructed, warned, reclaimed, look about them, bethink themselves before those threatned evils as evitable, unavoidably overtake them: 'Tis also so clear a consequent from, and the grounds and reasons are so obvious in what hath been already said, that I shall not stand further upon it, but proceed to Application. And the only use we shall make of it is (according to the intendment, and Scope, and Spirit of the Text) for solemn admonition and awakening: Give me leave (your call hath done it: yea, the call of God necessitates it) to apply my self to you with all possible plainness and faithfulness in the Name of the great God (whose unworthy spokesman unto you this day I am) and in his word, according to the tenor (as we have it here) of his awful warning to his People of old. Thus saith the Lord be thou instructed. O New England, Be thou instructed O Connecticut Colony, lest my Soul depart from thee, lest I make thee desolate a land not inhabited: Jerusalem was, New England is, they were, you are God's own, God's Covenant People, and what concerned them in that their day no less concerns you in this your day, this word that the Lord sent to Jacob, and it lighted upon Israel, comes now to be applied to you; change but the persons & the relation is the same, and as to condition it is so much the same, that (as some have observed) never were any people more neatly to be paralleled with them: put but in New England's name instead of that of Jerusalem, and to you belongs, to you is the word of solemn caution and admonition sent; and O that you would be perswaded to take it home to yourselves that it might sink down into your ears and take hold upon all your hearts; and that it may so do.

1. Consider, it is possible that New England may sin away God; we may so sin, as to provoke the Lord to leave and lay us desolate. What though we have layen near God's heart (as I perswade myself this poor Land hath done) sin and falseness to God may work us out of God's affections, alienate his mind from us as it did from his dearest Judah of old: What? though God dearly affecting us, hath been tenderly and carefully protecting us (as is evident he hath done) we may by our sins so provoke, grieve, disoblige him that he may change both heart and hand towards us: Was it not so with his own People, the subjects of his antient care and kindness: In all their afflictions he was afflicted and the Angel of his presence saved them; in his love and in his pity he redeemed them. and carried them all the days of old; but they rebelled and vexed his holy Spirit, therefore he was turned to be their enemy, and fought against them, Isai. 63, 9, 10. Never were any People so deeply fixed in the heart of God, or so eminently privileged with the effects of his Love, but their sinful wayes, their unworthy and unsuitable deportments towards the God of their mercies hath wrought them out of his favour, and brought them under his sorest displeasure: I have forsaken mine house, I have left my heritage, I have given the dearly beloved of my soul into the hand of her enemyes, Jer. 12, 7. God's own

People, how much soever he hath owned them, or how tenderly affected soever he hath born himself towards them, may not conclude from thence (while they take no care to carry themselves accordingly) that God will not forsake and destroy them: indeed such a presumptuous confidence men may have, as they had, Jer. 7, 4, &c. But as you may there see God rejects their confidence, beats them off from it, bids them not trust in lying words, but bids them go; go ye now unto my place which was in Shiloh, where I set my name at the first, and see what I did unto it for the iniquity of my People Israel; and how many after examples of like nature hath God added to that first president, so that (as one saith) we have more places to go than to Shilo. The Lord was very angry with Israel, and removed them out of his sight; there was none left but the tribe of Judah only, 2 Kings 17, 18, And the Lord said I will remove Judah also out of my sight, as I have removed Israel, and I will cast off this City Jerusalem which I have chosen, and the house of which I have said my Name shall be there, 2 Kings 23, 27. And with like severity hath the Lord (in New Testament times) proceeded against Ephesus and those other Asian Churches to the utter rejecting and unchurching of them, according to what was threatned, Rev. 2, 5. And are all these things nothing to us? Can we look upon what befel them and not be concerned, to think what may come upon ourselves? the Lord that by all these instructing examples we may be instructed, lest it befall us as it hath done them; be we awakenedly apprehensive that it may so do, believe we that God's Soul may depart from us, he may make us desolate as he hath done them.

2. Consider it looks very threateningly lest it come to this; it is not only possible that it may, but too too probable, exceeding tremendously suspicious that it will come to it; to be plain with you (I dare be no other) according to the present face, and frame and posture of things amongst us, we are in very fair way (or more fitly to express a matter of that nature in a very formidable way) to bring it to that woful pass, that is of sad, of very sad but of very sensible consideration, to those whose thoughts are exercised about, and have any discerning in matters of this nature, who sees not (& who that is awake doth not tremble to see) that things are going, yea every day more than other growing towards that fatal issue; God's people are not wont to fall off from him at once; nor he to take his farewell all at once; there are many dark and crooked, and winding and downward steps before it comes to the bottom of this break-neck hill, with a

God-forsaking and forsaken people; is it of no less certain than solemn observation that God's New England People sit looser unto God than they have sometimes done, and that he also sits looser unto them; it looks alas, it looks as if those dear and ancient Friends were about to part, and were even standing upon parting termes one with another. Consider we our wayes towards God and his wayes towards us, and the one and the other, and both together will present us with an aspect of a very threatening tendency towards his utter leaving of us.

1. Consider we our wayes and doings towards God, and see if we have not cause, much cause to fear that God will leave us, take off his heart from us, and turn his destroying hand upon us. And here,

1. More generally Consider, Do not our sinful wayes and evil doings give us cause to fear lest the Lord leave us; the evilness, sinfulness of our wayes and doings is so evident and apparent that there needs no secret search: how many above-board instances might be given you, of which we may say, it is found upon all these; our iniquities testifie against us, our pride and many other sins testifie to our faces the truth of this beyond all denial, and being so how threateningly doth it look that God will leave us, take off his love from us, and lay a wrathful hand upon us? Indeed sinners are prone to have slight thoughts of God too as to his making so great a matter of it that he should thus do; but if you will take up true Scriptural notions of it, and such as God himself puts upon it, verily you will find that in it that will tell you that it is a righteous thing with God thus to deal by a people so demeaning towards him, and that they therein receive that recompence of wayes that is meet. What is sin (I mean not inevitable, unwilling and lamented weakness and infirmities, but sin purposely committed, and impenitently persisted in)? I say, what is sin, such manner of sinning, in the true Scripture notion of it in the judgement of God, which is according to truth? Is it not a forsaking God? And have we not cause to fear forsaking God he will forsake us? Is it not a departing, a going away from God? And we leaving God, may we not expect he will leave us? Is it not a casting off God, and we casting off him? Have we not reason to think he will cast off us? Is it not a revolting from God? a revolting from under the Lord? a casting off his Government? a rebelling against him? And what can we count upon or look for thus doing, but that God should turn his back upon us, cast us out of his favour and protection, deal with us as Rebels, become our enemy, and fight against us? Yea, is it not a hating God, an abhorring him in your souls (whatever you call or count if God calls or counts it so), and can you thus dealing by the blessed God hope other or better than that his Soul should loath them whose soul abhors him, that he should repay them that hate him to their face, to destroy them? In a word, sin is a heart departing from God in the root of it, and a life departing from God in the fruit of it; men having first withdrawn their love and affections from God as the consequent of it withdraw their duty and allegiance, and being thus revolted and gone from God in heart and life, in affection and action, in spirit and conversation; have we not just cause to fear lest God's Soul depart from us, and he withdraw all the outward effects of his care and goodness towards us, and so make us desolate?

2. Consider further, and somewhat more particularly; are not those sins to be found, yea do they not abound and grow rife amongst us, that are very gravamenous, nautious, distasteful unto God, that eminently tend to disaffect God, disjoynt his soul from us, and provoke his sorest Displeasure against us, First. Let me lay my hand upon that that lies at the bottom of all our other sins, and which of all our unkindnesses towards a good God he takes most tenderly, and layes deepest to heart, and that is our unworthy entertainments of the glorious Gospel of the blessed God; our receiving of the grace of God in vain, the neglect of that great salvation to continue impenitent, unconverted; unbelieving under the Gospel is to sin to the outmost, being the outstanding of uttermost grace and mersy, and brings wrath to the uttermost indeed; if uttermost love, uttermost grace rejected, what but uttermost wrath is to be expected? In the Gospel God hath made a way for his mercy, he hath poured forth all his grace, he has no more, he has drawn forth his soul, his tenderest Bowels mercys to the other end to poor needy sinners, and for them to set at naught and slight all this; this if anything will make God forget to be gracious: nothing wins upon the heart of God more than the hearty entertainment of the Gospel, but nothing wounds God more, weans his Soul from a people more than a regardless contempt of it: for a company of poor, miserable, wretched, abject, undone, damned sinners to put a slight upon the strange, wonderful, astonishing grace of the great God in Jesus Christ towards them, bid him keep his Christ, his Pardon, his Grace, his Peace, his Life, his Salvation to himself as in effect they do that repent not, nor beleive the Gospel: I must leave you to imagine how God takes this; is not this the Salvation that is by Jesus Christ? the thing that God hath set his heart upon? is it not the most pleasing contentful design (to the utmost that we know) that ever he engaged in? hath not God laid out of the greatest Skill and Cost upon it? and hath he not projected and promised to himself the greatest revenue of glory from it? and for us to slight and set at naught, and what in us lies wholly frustrate it, will God can God take this well? We worms can take it grievously enough to have our design frustrated, that we have beaten our heads about, laid our selves for, set our hearts upon, and promised our selves much from, think then what a corrasive it is to the heart of God to be so dealt by in that which he hath set his mind upon, never anything more. O Sir, would you study to thwart, to cross God, to do the greatest despight; there is no way like this, and will God bear it to have the deep counsels of his Wisdom derided, the great purpose, the pleasure of his will opposed, the wisdom of his love slighted, the riches of his grace despised, his Son the darling of his Soul contemned and rejected, yea himself in all that he is, and has, and can do for poor creatures (all his gracious and merciful overtures to them notwithstanding) utterly set at naught; will not God visit for these things? will not his soul be disjointed from, and avenged upon such a people as this? Again, Are we not guilty of great Apostacy from God? a sin greatly distasteful to him: If any man draw back my soul shall have no pleasure in him, Heb. 10, 38. And are not we of those that draw back in such degree (the Lord grant it may not be unto perdition) that we have much cause to fear lest his soul depart from us? is there not with too many of us too evident a defection from God and the good wayes of the Lord in their very judgments and opinions? In their judgments they are not the men they were, they are not in their judgments such fast friends to the power of godliness, as sometimes; they do not lay that weight, that necessity upon a close walking with God, and serious diligence in a way of duty upon Closet, Family or more publick performances, as sometimes, so that if men do not begin to cavil against, or question about these things, where is the rule for daily secret Prayer, meditation, self-examination? or where is the rule that a Man must every day read a chapter or two in his Family? Yet their judgments are secretly, insensibly wrought off from laying the weight and stress upon these things. As to the constant, diligent, accurate, thorough attendance to them, as that they can go out with many neglects, and many remiss, slight, hasty, half performances, and their consciences not much reprove them; the working out their salvation with fear and trembling, utmost care and diligence the striving to enter. and taking the Kingdom of Heaven by violence, begins to look more than needs; and the exercise of self-denial in the holding their senses under restraint, and government and constant watchfulness over their hearts and wayes, seems a kind of overstrictness: Men are gone off in their judgments, stand not so clearly and fixedly perswaded in their own minds of the necessity and importance of such attendencies, and begin to take up an opinion that there needs not so much ado that all this is not of that absolute necessity, but that it will be a tolerable thing, at least to abate somewhat from it. And to evident is it that we are to much backsliden from God in our affections and conversations: we have lost our first love and left our first works; if the love of New England's espousals be now sought for, it will not be found. And if the footsteps of those that first followed the Lord into this, as then unknown land, be enquired after how dim and almost worn out will they appear? Where is that ancient love, desire, delight to and in the Ordinances of God, and all the means of Communion with him, and that careful and exact walking with God in all those ways of duty, both toward God and Man now become?

Verily, we are gone backward, backward and not forward, and verily these backward retrograde God forsaking Motions carry such hateful unthankfulness unto God, such to be abominated falseness, perfidiousness to him; yea, they cast such reproach and contempt upon God, put such a publick slight upon him, put him to such open shame in the eyes of the world, for a People after some tryal made of him and of his service, thus to decline, shrink back from and forsake him, that we have cause to fear God, will take himself in honour bound to right himself in the ruine of such People

I tremble to think (the truth of the charge there made considered) how wishly that threatning looks upon us. Jer. 15, 6, Thou hast forsaken me, saith the Lord, thou art gone backward, therefore will I stretch out my hand against thee and destroy thee.

Again, Is there not amongst us that hypocrisie formality, overlynness, outsidness in the matters of God and Godliness?

That God that searcheth the heart, and desireth truth in the inward parts, cannot but see and hate a form of Godliness, the upper garment of Saintship (though even that now with many grows thin and thread-bare), is in fashion, and a great wear amongst us; but inside Christianity, the power of godliness, is but here and there found; there is an outside godliness, an external show still with us, we hear, we pray, we receive Sacraments, we have our Conference Meetings, our Lectures, Fasts, and other Solemnities; we are conversant in external acts of Worship but inside godliness, and that in which indeed the life and soul of it lies, the loving God, fearing God, trusting in God, delighting in and living upon God in the ways and means of communion with him; these internal, vital acts of worship, where almost are they to be found? Of us may God revive the old complaint and say, this people draw near me with their mouth, and with their lips, do honour me, but have removed their hearts far from me, Isai. 29, 13. And have we not cause to fear that God's soul, his affections, his Salvations will be far from those whose hearts are far from him: those that having a form of godliness, but denying the power of it, God hath bidden his own from such turn away, and may we not expect that himself will much more do it; how can we say, we love him, when our hearts are not with him, or if we do so say, will God be mockt? will he accept us? Yea, will he not detest us for a dissembled profession of what is not. Methinks destruction from God should be a terrour to us when we read what near neighbors a hypocritical nation, & the people of God's wrath are as we do? in that Isai. [sic] 10, 6. Again, a cold, dead, indeed indifferent, luke warm spirit, a temper greatly nauseous unto God. Rev. 3, 16, Many may their portion be made fat, and their meat plenteous, as to temporals little mind or matter which end goes forward as to spirituals, or as to civils, or order thereunto, methinks men seem to have spent (alas lamentably to have mispent) their zeal about matters of Religion I cannot but remember what sad and breaking contentions we have had not many years since about Church-priviledges, and that earnest stickling that hath been with men for the obtainment of them, for themselves and theirs. A charitable heart would sure have thought that men's souls had longed for those wayes and means of communion with God, and that a zeal for the enjoyment of God in all his Ordinances had influenced those contendings for and about them. But alas, who can but be sad upon it to see the end obtained, and a door set open to those enjoyments, and such a dull spirit of indifferency as to these things, at least as to making any real and answerable improvement of them: Is this our zeal for God, his Ordinances, the good things of his house, that chills and dyes if it have not a spirit of contention to cherish and keep it warm? This fire withdrawn, we discover ourselves, as indeed we are, a cold, luke-warm people; verily it must be some more kindly heat that must keep us warm upon the heart of God.

or we shall wamble upon his stomach and be in eminent danger to be spued out of his mouth.

Again, Are we not guilty of great ingratitude unto God, of unworthy unthankful slighting and undervaluing the great things he hath done for us, the blessings of the upper and nether springs, Spiritual, Temporal Mercies, with a liberal hand bestowed upon us? Verily, I think we have run deep into Divine displeasure upon this account; and that if every People, New-England hath cause to fear, lest wrath be upon them for their not rendring again according to the benefits done unto them. Men have known too well how to be discontent, and repine and murmur; but how to be thankful they have not known: if they have been ever so little crossed, or pinched, or charged, the Magistracy hath been discontented, the Ministry discontentful, they could even with a change like pettish Israel, Let us make a Captain and return into Egypt: Much alas, too much of the spirit of that unthankful, untoward, froward, discontented murmuring generation that was so grievous to God hath been amongst us, and hath given us cause to fear that partaking of their sins; we shall partake of their plagues: Alas for the day it looks, as if a provoked God were about to bring it upon an unthankful People, when we shall know the worth of those mercies in their want, which we have not known in their enjoyment, when Justice shall be turned into gall, and the fruit of Righteousness into Hemlock; when as Mic. 7, 3, 4, The Judge ask for a reward, and the great man uttereth his mischievous desire; so they wrap it up the best of them, and as a briar, and the most upright of them sharper than a thorn hedge. In that day will unthankful New-England be moved to know the worth of their precious, but low pric'd liberties; as sensible as were the men of Succoth under Gideon's severed discipline. Again. Our great pride prognosticates sadly. I do not mean only or mainly those toys and unmanly vanities that the minds of younger, and too many older persons are set upon, though sad and bad enough it be, that the hearts of Men and Women, made for a better place, are got into their sleeves, but that haughtiness of spirit that predominates amongst us, every no body would be some body, and persons of a commoner rank, look but too earnestly towards the upper end of the World; men know not their places. The child behaves himself proudly against the ancient, and the base against the honourable: Men's conditions sit uneasie, and their callings suit them not, and more especially that stoutheartedness that transports men to an awlessness, not only of men, as vested with his authority, they will bear no yoke in any relation; but even of God himself; they fear not him in his Word or Works, and what shall we think of this pride? put first among those things that God hates? that are abomination to him? Prov. 6, 16, 17. And will God (think we) love or loath a proud people? Hath God respect to the lowly? But doth he know the proud afar off? Psal. 138, 6. And may not our hearts ake to think how far we are from the favorable and respectful knowledge of God? and how superciliously, and at what a distance God holds us? Hath God said, That to this man will I look, even to him that is poor and of a contrite spirit, and that trembleth at my words? Isa. 66, 2. How are persons of a proud and contemptuous spirit, that are so far from trembling at the Word of God, that they can freely, and fearlessly despise both it and them that bring it resented by him; and to conclude, If pride goeth before destruction, and an haughty spirit before a fall, Prov. 16, 18, we have cause from the consideration of what it hath been amongst us to fear what will follow.

Again. Our great worldliness looks woefully upon us; the World, the love of the World, the zeal of the world is too deeply gotten into the hearts and lives of men, and hath so thoroughly possessed them, that there is no room for anything else; their eyes and their hearts are not but for their covetousness. There was a generation that first fought the kingdom of God, but now with many it is the world, the world that is first and last fought, or if the Kingdom of God and his Righteousness have anything from them, it is the leaving of the world they are put off with.

It is covetousness, so Paul. Col. 3, 5, is the love of the world spiritual adultery; so Jam. chap. 4, 4. And doth God hate these sins as much as in the days of old? Can we think that such an Idolatrous, whorish spirit that is found in the midst of us will not alienate the mind of God from us, is the friendship with the world Enmity with God, whosoever will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God, Sam. 4, 4, is the love of the world and the things of the world, exclusive of the love of God. If any man love the World, the love of the Father is not in him, 1 John 3, 15. We may well fear, and not without a cause, that the love of the world will leave us as little room in God's heart as it hath done him in ours.

Again. That great sensuality that is amongst us, and the therein high abuse of Divine bounty: How can it but be very evilly resented by God, when (as one aptly, and upon like solemn occasion expresst it to you, as indeed the matter is) men fight against God with his own goodness, turn the edge to his kindness against himself; not serving him with joyfulness and gladness of heart in abundance of all things (but as much as in them lyes) make his Power and Providence, his bounty and care to serve with their iniquities, when men grow fat and kick, instead of having their hearts lift up in the wayes of God, who had made them to prosper, they lift up the heel against him, when God's corn and wine is made provision for the flesh to fulfil the lusts of it: the better God is to them, the more wanton, sensual, unclean, temperate they are. O this galls, this provokes: How shall I pardon thee for this, when I fed them so to the full, then they committed adultery, &c., shall I not visit for these things, &c., Jer. 5, 7, 9. Other things might be mentioned (but the time would fail to insist upon particulars) the want of love and peace (alas for the great decay of a spirit of love amongst Christians) may make us fear that the God of love and peace will not take up his abode with us; the want of righteousness (who sees not great unrighteousness amongst us) may make us doubt that the Righteous Lord who loves Righteousness, and whose countenance doth behold the upright, will remove his gracious presence farr from us; so want of Truth, unfaithfulness, men's words, their promises, they are but like the hypocrites hope, they have no hold in them, and do but deceive them that depend upon them; a great and common sin, and we may well think greatly provoking and distasteful unto him whose stile is the God of Truth but I must not follow these things any further, enough hath been said to tell us that there is much of that of those sins found amongst us that eminently tend to disaffect God toward us.

3. Consider yet again, as those are sins greatly nautious and distasteful unto God, eminently tending to disaffect him towards, and to take off his heart toward a People, so as they are found amongst us, they fall under such considerations, such circumstances, such aggravations as cannot but render them exceeding grievous to the very soul of God, and superlatively provoking; but to intimate, in the land of uprightness, we have dealt thus wickedly: 'Tis the noble Vine that God hath planted so lately that hath brought forth such degenerate fruits, such wild grapes as these. Can this but be greatly provoking?

Again. So have these roots of bitterness sprung up, that thereby many are defiled; these are not the sins of some few, but we are many that have transgressed in these things: The evils mentioned (at least as to many of them) are such as the body of this people are deeply leaven'd and tainted with, and certainly when such sins grow common, we have cause to think what is coming. But again above all, The impenitent persistence in these evils, after all God hath said and done to reclaim us, looks dreadfully upon us: God hath tried us with interchangeable dispensations, mercies and corrections, afflictions and salvations, have had their turns and returns upon us; yet we sin still, he hath smitten; yea, he hath consumed us but we have not received correction; he hath knock us off with many a hard blow; yea, with blow upon blow, and breach upon breach, but we hold fast deceit and refuse to return: What shall God do with such a People? what may they expect from him? Because I have purged thee and thou wast not purged, thou shalt not be purged from thy filthiness any more until I have caused my fury to rest upon thee, Ezek. 21, 13. Our wayes toward God then give us much cause to fear lest God leave and lay us desolate.

2. Let us consider God's wayes toward us, and see if they also do not give us ground jealousie that the Lord is about to leave us: Evident it is that the countenance of the Lord is not toward us as heretofore; the face of Divine Providence is full of awful indignus that God is taking off his heart, and withdrawing his gracious presence from us: What said good Gideon, If the Lord be with us why then is all this befallen us? And where are all his miracles that our fathers told us of? May not we so say, if the Lord be with us, if he be not about to leave us, have not begun to disaffect us and estrange himself from us, why then is all this befallen us? And where are those signal tokens of his presence, and all his wonder-working providences that our fathers have told us of? Is he with us as with them? Alas for the solemn and certain symptoms that he is leaving and forsaking of us: Is God with us in his Ordinances, or is he with us in the wayes of his Providences as sometimes? Let us a little consider of either.

I. Is God with us in his ordinances as sometimes? Two things here.

1, Is God hearing and answering our Prayers as sometimes? Our former times have afforded us many evident answers of prayers, some memorable instances of which are upon publick record, to which more might be added; but how hath it been with us of latter days? Have not our most solemn addresses unto God greatly failed us of those signal and speedy answers? hath not God shut out? yea seemed angry against the prayers of his people in the time of the Indian War? and since have we not had matters of sorrowful observation as to this? To omit other instances, that second and sorer flood that was upon this River, not two years since, falling out presently upon a day of publick fasting and prayer, as it is published to the world amongst remarkable Providences, so cannot but be to us of awful remembrance and remark as to what we are speaking; God hath been nigh unto us in all things that we have called upon him for; yea, mercy hath prevent us; before we have called, God hath answered, and while we have been yet speaking he hath heard; but now, alas, what cause to complain. We fast and he seeth not, we afflict our souls and he taketh no knowledge.

2. Is God owning and influencing his Ordinances the means of his Grace as sometimes? Was it once a truth (which that Reverend Person who Preached to you now eleven years since, upon this occasion told you) that our Sion had multitudes converted to her? Hartford had so, New-haven had so, Windsor had so, and so had many other Churches in this Land; multitudes converted to them. How is it now? Are not our converts comparatively like the grape-gleanings of the vintage, now and then one comes dropping in. And methinks also the word Sacraments and other Ordinances are deinfenced as to what they have been; God hath unclothed them, left them in a degree forsaken of his sometimes working power and virtue towards the souls of his own, they are not affected, humbled, quickened, raised, warmed, comforted by them, as sometimes they do not prosper, thrive, flourish and bring forth fruit under them as heretofore; they do not find them such a feast of fat things, and so full of marrow as in former days; and can we have a sadder token of God's withdrawing and estranging himself from us than his failing his Ordinances of the wonted influence of his spirit, both as to Conversion and Edification.

2. Is God with us in the wayes of his Providences as sometimes? How many wayes, and for how long a time hath God manifested his displeasure against us, his disfavour toward us? 'Tis evident by the operations of his hand that the affections of his heart are not to us as heretofore, for though it be a truth that afflictions upon particular persons may have other causes, yet it generally concluded that publick calamities are certain tokens of Divine displeasure: when God smites a Nation, a People, a Country with War, Sickness, Famine, &c. They are undoubtedly testimonies of his anger: And how hath God done by us? Hath not the sword gone through our Land? hath not sore diseases had their annual returns upon us? Yea, of late both Summer and Winter abode with us to the taking of many from us? And how sadly hath God of late years smitten us in all the labours of our hands by blasting, mildews, catterpillars, worms, tares, floods and droughts? And truly not only for all this his anger is not turned away, but his hand is stretched out still; but in all this God seems to be making a way for his anger, that he may pour forth all his wrath. Observable is the way and manner of God's dealing with his People of old, and the method of his gradual proceeding against them, till at last he utterly rejected and destroyed them. 'Tis said, 2 King 13, 23, God would not destroy them, neither cast them from his presence as yet. He had not yet done it, neither would he yet do it, but how even then he was making way for it: you may see, 2 King 12, 32, He began to cut them short. And 2 Chron. 28, 19, He brought them low; and hath God begun to cut us short? and doth he not go on to cut us shorter and shorter? Hath he not brought us low? And is he not still bringing us lower and lower? How many wayes hath God been, and still is short cutting, and low-bringing of us? He hath cut us short of our members, brought us low by taking away many, and many Righteous Ones from us; hath he not (of late years especially) bereft us of many Magistrates, Ministers, and other useful Persons, and added that late fore breach, and causefully bitterly lamented loss to the rest? And hath he not cut us short in our comforts, brought us low by depriving us by one means and other of so much of the fruits of the earth? We have sown much and brought in little; sowed Wheat, Barley, good feed, but reaped Tares, Cockle, and such like trash; The ancient curse for sin is revived, and heightened upon us. Under the rain that hath come oft upon us, and all the husbandry God hath been at with us, we have not brought forth fruit meet for him, by whom we have been dressed, and what measure we have meeted: it hath been measured to us again: under such means, and a promising, flourishing profession, little real fruit hath been brought forth to God; and how like to this have we found in that little good grain under goodly appearances, and a great burden that the earth hath brought forth to us? And doth not the hand of God upon this account grow very awful toward us? is not the meat cut off before our eyes? do we not see men's crops fail them (at least in many places) year after year, and every year more than other? Should God go on to do by us a few years more as he hath done for some years past, it would look apace toward cleanness of teeth. And hath God not cut us short of our credit and estimation? brought us low upon that account also New-England's name hath been much set by, much more than now New-England's credit and repute is brought many pgs lower than sometimes; when we were precious in God's sight, we were honourable; but when he makes no such account of a People, they soon go out of credit; God hath made us to know the truth of that, 1 Sam. 2, 30 (the subject that was insisted upon by that eminently holy man of God this time three years) them that honour me I will honour, and they that despise me shall be lightly esteemed; we have found the truth of that, that them that honour God he will honour, and now God is verifying the truth of that also, that those that despise him shall be lightly esteemed: Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any People, Prov. 14, 24. And New-England's former and latter experiences may feel to both parts of the truth of that Text. Under all these short cutting, lowering, afflicting dispensations, may we not say in this day, as 'twas said, Israel should do in that, when many evils and troubles should befall them? Deut. 31, 17. Are not these evils come upon us because our God is not amongst us? is not with us as he hath been, nor favours us as he hath done. But I must pursue these things no further which I have been drawn forth to follow thus far, if possible to make you sensible, both from the consideration of our wayes towards God and his wayes toward us, that according to the present frame and posture of things with us, it looks very exceeding threateningly upon us, least God leave us and lay us desolate.

3. Consider, How sad would it be, should it come to this: it is evident from the considerations mentioned, that it may be so, and also that it looks exceeding threateningly, lest it be so; but what a dismal thing would it be, should it be so indeed! to lose God's love, his favour, his good will; to have his soul depart from us, what a dreadful thing would it be! How emphatically doth God shut up sundry sore threatnings with this as the most miserable complement of! Yea, wo also unto them when I depart from them, Hos. 9, 12, that burden, Jer. 23, 33 (so it is there called) I will even forsake you, saith the Lord: it is the most intolerable, crushing, back-breaking Burden that was ever laid upon any people for God to disaffect, reject, forsake a people, it is the most formidable thing that can befall them: In his favour is life, his loving-kindness is better than Life: it is the foundation, fountain and well-head of all our good; all that good is, is originally, virtually and eminently contained in it, founded upon and flowing from it; but to be rejected of God, cast out of his affections, it is in itself the sorest judgment; it hath in it all that evil is, and it is the source of all that doth, or may, or can fall out sadly or unhappily to us: if we have God's heart we cannot want his hand: if he be with us, if he be for us, who or what shall be against us? If he cause his face to shine upon us, we shall be saved: but if he take off his heart, forsake, hide his face from us, we shall be devoured, and many evils and troubles shall befall us, all kinds of calamities will crowd in; mischiefs will be heaped upon us if God take his presence (and consequently his peace) from us, even loving-kindness and mercies: what will follow but that he will vex us with all adversity; our wife-men will be infatuated, our men of courage and activity dispirited, our peaceable and guidable men froward and headlong, nothing will prosper with us, but all things will conspire and work together ruineward; counsel, strength, protection, sustenance, all will fail us: Sword, Sickness, Famine, evils of all sorts grow in upon, pursue and cleave unto us till they have consumed us. And further, let me here add that consideration, that should it come to this with us, God should take off his heart from us, turn his hand against us, it will certainly fall exceeding aggravatedly heavy upon us. It will so eminently, in a two fold respect.

1. It will be a sad and sorrowful thing indeed, when as it threatened, Josh. 24, 20, God shall turn and do us hurt, and consume us after that he hath done us good: Miserum est fuisse.

There is no greater misery than to have been happy; it is more to be brought than to be born low, to be degraded than never to have been exalted: worse is so much the worse by how much we have known better: Thou hast lifted me up and cast me down, saith the Psalmist, aggravating his affliction, Psal. 10, 2, 10. How art thou fallen from Heaven, O Lucifer, Son of the Morning? was the cutting question to the King of Babylon, in the day of his ruine, Isai. 14, 12. And it was the deapth of Jerusalem's wo, that she came down wonderfully, Sam. 1, 9. Know, if you lose God you will be miserable many, many, that never knew what it was to enjoy him as you have done: When you have lost God, his love, his favour, and lost your all in that loss, then to look back and bemoan yourselves, O that we were as in months past, when the Almighty was yet with us: then to remember in the days of your affliction and misery all the pleasant things that you had in the days of old, then to lament that you once had a God, what a bitter, bitter and heart-breaking thing will it be.

2. When God turns to do a people hurt after he hath done them good, they may expect he will do them hurt according as he hath done them good, Deut. 28, 63.

And it shall come to pass, that as the Lord rejoiced over you to do you good and multiply you, so the Lord will rejoice over you to destroy you, and to bring you to naught: of whom God saith, you only have I known; God hath an evil, an only evil for them, Ezek. 7, 5. For whom God hath done, that which he hath not done, against them will God do that which he hath not done, and whereunto he will not do any more the like, Ezek. 5, 9. The punishment of the iniquity of the Daughter of my People is greater than the punishment of Sodom, Sam. 4, 6. Under the whole heaven hath not been done as hath been done upon Jerusalem, Dan. 9, 12. There was no sorrow like that of Sion, wherewith the Lord afflicted her in the day of his fierce anger, Sam. 1, 12. Wo unto us when God (turning to do us hurt shall, come to measure us by the same Rule that he hath done us good by: Will not New-England then be made one of the blackest spots of earth under the heavens of God?

4. Consider, It may yet be prevented; and what mercy it is that it may so be in that things come not to this woful pass? will we yet be perswaded to hearken to the counsel in the Text? will we yet be instructed, bethink ourselves, repent, amend, convert, turn to God, he will not leave us, he will not cause his anger to fall upon us: and wherein he hath so done, we returning unto him he will return with us: Doubtless God is spirited and acted toward us by the same Rule that himself gives us. Prov. 27, 10, Thine own friend and thy father's friend forsake not: God hath been our friend, and our father's friend, we have had (as I may say) his favour by inheritance; because he loved our fathers, he hath chosen their seed after them, and loth he is both for our own and their sakes (his grace and mercy having descended thus upon us) to disinherit us, nor will he do it, if after all we yet prove not utterly uncounselable and incorrigible. The love and kindness of New-England's first times stick by him; all our back-slidings, unworthy carriages, evil requitals have not so wholly razed out the remembrance of it, but that God hath sensibly manifested even in the way of his judgment, many relents of heart toward us, and would we yet be perswaded to recede our pursuit of vain things that cannot profit nor deliver, for they are vain, and unsaintly, and with our whole heart return to him, how would his bowels be moved for us? his passions stirred up to meet us at our coming, and his heart knit unto us? And think also what an act of grace it is that God will thus accept of, and re-entertain repenting and returning sinners; it is a great act of grace for God totake any to be his People; but it is a much greater to fall in again with those that have deeply revolted from him: O methinks such peerless, unpattern'd, unparrall'd mercy, as such it is proposed in the third chapter of this prophesie, vers. 1, should melt, overcome, win upon the hearts of poor sinners; though we have played the harlot with many lovers will God yet receive us. O will he methinks, as persons overcome of mercy, our very souls should say, behold we come unto thee, for thou art the Lord our God.

5. And lastly Consider, That if we be not instructed, continue incorrigible, irreclaimable, God will certainly leave us, his soul will depart from us, and he will make us desolate. We may flatter ourselves in our own way until our iniquity be found to be hateful; bless ourselves in our hearts while God's anger smokes against us; cry peace, peace, until remediless ruine come upon us, and there be no escaping; but assuredly what God threatens, unless Repentance intervene, he will accomplish: Methinks it fares between God and New-England People, as between a tender hearted Parent and an untoward, stubborn child; the poor afflicted Father, with many yearning bowels bespeaks; yea, begs, beseeches him. O my son be instructed, be perswaded, bethink thyself, hearken to counsel; and in the issue begins to tell him, well son, look to it, if thou goest on thus, and nothing will do with thee, thou wilt lose thy Father's heart at last, as well as I have loved thee, my affections will be wholly weened off from thee, I will disown, disinherit, turn thee out of doors; and shall it come to this between God and us, if we continue uninstructed it will come to this. We shall lose God's love, leave ourselves no more room in his affections, utterly harden his heart against us, work it to that issue, that God will thoroughly disaffect us, and what then? Why, when God thoroughly disaffects a People, then as in Chap. 15 of this prophesie, vers. 1, 2, though Moses and Samuel stood before me, yet my mind could not be toward this People, cast them out of my sight, and let them go forth; such as are for death to death and such as are for the sword to the sword, and such as are for famine to famine, and such as are for captivity to captivity; as if God should say, I cannot abide them, they have quite lost my heart, I I can no more affect them; let who will intercede for them, away with them, let them dy, be slain, famished, captivated, no matter how many wayes, so they be any ways destroyed. This, even this will be the fatal upshot that our sins and rebellions will bring it to between God and us if we be not instructed. And now I beseech you reflect upon what hath been said, lay together the considerations that have been laid before you, and think whether it be not high time to hearken to that awful, yet compassionate admonition of the Text, Be thou instructed O New-England, lest God's soul depart from thee, lest he make thee desolate, a land not inhabited: Methinks we should find ourselves concerned, and that all sorts of persons, as those that came to John Baptist, should be, asking what shall we do? and what shall we do; Magistrates, Ministers and Masters of Families, men of all ranks and conditions, should be earnestly enquiring what shall we do, and what shall we do as to the retaining and regaining the good will of God. and keeping his gracious presence with us? And possibly it is expected (according to the ordinary use upon these occasions) that by way of answer I should apply myself to these and those, but the time takes me off. Much Honoured; I know much lyes upon you (and although my haste be great), let me call at your door with that of the Psalmist, Psal. 2, 10, 12, Be instructed ye Judges of the Earth, kiss the Son; professedly and actually own Jesus Christ, signalize your love and affection, your homage and subjection to him, even in such a day as this; what difficulties or hazards this may cast you upon, or what disfavour it may work you, or with whom it is my business to say, and I hope will be besides yours to consider, suffice it me to say, and you to think, that this is the way to the heart of God; the way to get and keep in with him, which is the thing we are upon: O shew your love to Jesus Christ, your zeal for him, his cause, interest, wayes, People, all his concerns, and set yourselves against whatsoever is contrary thereunto, suppress sin, promote holiness to your utmost power. And let me only in general say, both to you, Right Honourable, and to the Honourable Deputies with you, that make up the grand counsel of this poor colony (I know you have not been without deep thoughts of heart upon the account) if there be anything yet do-able as to these things, either by Law making, or Law executing, that may conduce to keep God with us, let it be diligently done.

Nextly, I should have applyed myself to you, my dear and reverend Brethren in the Ministry you are set for the instruction of others, but it is not too much to be said to you (however it may seem too much for me to say it) be you also instructed. O look about you, it eminently concerns you, think what is yours to do, that it may not come to the parting pull between God and this People. I doubt not Brethren, could I lay my hand so near your hearts, I could find them in old Ely's posture trembling for the Ark of God, the God of the Ark, God and his Ark, his taking his presence from us, and the signal tokens of the same; but what is ours to do that it may not be so, I know myself (though too little) too well to take upon me to direct you; let me only say as the eyes of that Cripple, of whom you read, Acts 3, were upon Peter and John, the poor man looked wishfully upon them, hoping to receive somewhat from them, so my eyes, and the eyes of this poor People are (under God) upon you earnestly, expecting that you should do something for us, as the poor man in the Gospel, Mark 9, once solicited your great Lord and Master in his day upon earth for his woful sin; let me bemoan to you the lamentable condition of this miserable people, thus and thus it is with us, and these and those means have been used with, and improved for us, but to no purpose, if you can do anything have compassion on us, and help us; I know you are not in God's stead, but as I was saying, under God our eyes are upon you; and I beseech you remember that they are so.

Again, give me leave in passing to drop a word to the Free-men; be you also instructed as to the work of this day, as you would not have God depart from us, disregard us, do not disregard him in these grand motions, do not leave him out in your Elections: surely it is not the ingratiating way with God to give him cause to complain, as, Hos. 8, 4, They have set up Kings but not by me, and have made Princes and I know it not: have a respect to God in your Elections in having a respect to godliness: not that every godly man is fit to make a Magistrate, or every one that hath grace is fit to govern you may read, Exod. 18, 21, That they must be able men, as well as fearing God, not only good, honest, well-minded, well-meaning men, but such as sit chief (that you sit in that place) had need to be able to chuse out the way of a People for them, Job 29, 25. Yea, and then when it comes to a Day of Difficulty, it is not only integrity of heart but skilfulness of hands that is required to the well management of the reins of government, Psal. 78, ult. Yet surely Godliness is an essential qualification. Nor can you disregard it without disregarding God in your Elections, would you have God's heart with you? chuse men of David's character, Acts 13, 22. Men after God's own heart; it may be in such a day as this there are many and great thoughts of heart, such a man is in favor, and such a man is so and so; I have nothing to say against all prudential considerations (provided they always be pious) upon these accounts, if policy were unlawful Christ would never have bidden his Disciples to be wise as Serpents, Mar. 10, 16. Policy and Piety, the Serpent and the Dove, do as well together as they do ill asunder; but what I have to say, and what the Doctrine under hand leads me to say, is chuse Men in favour with the King of Kings, who hath King's hearts in his hand to turn as he will, and can if men's wayes please him, make even their enemies be at peace with them.

Heads of Families would have been next spoken to; there is more than a little for them to do upon the great account we are speaking.

I would also address myself to God's own dear ones amongst us (those few names comparatively that are yet left us) that are great and gracious with him, that they would have improved their outmost interest for us, who can do great things with God; that they would desire mercies of the God of Heaven, I would have begg'd the very sinners of the times, that at last they would not thrust away God from us; but the time bids me have done.

I shall conclude all with two or three words of Instruction and Direction.

1. Let us make work into a thorough confession unto God; surely the want of this is our great wound, the core and root of all our maladies; our next complying with the calls of his grace to a thorough, entire, irreserved closure with himself, hence have grown those estrangements between God and us, that now begin to look threateningly as to an utter parting; and it is a thorough conversion unto God that must lay the foundation of our cure. I must confes the sense of this hath been so much with me, since the call to this daye's work was undoubtedly laid upon me, that I have had many thoughts to say neither of this nor of that, but to turn the whole stream of my Discourse into this channel: O that you were to be prevailed with as to this, our work were done at once; and is there no perswading you? though not only God's gracious presence with you in this world, but your everlasting enjoyment of him in glory in that other world lies upon it: What shall I say to you sirs? I beseech you shew yourselves men, act but the part of reasonable creatures (which looks like a reasonable request), set but your understandings and thoughts seriously to work, and I profess to you, it is beyond my conceiving (so doing) that you can be other than thorow, down-right Christians: a thinking man can not be but a serious man; 'tis the want of this that ruins men, Israel doth not know, my people doth not consider, Isai. 1, 3, in consideration is the undoing of men under means of knowledge; men know enough, would they but consider what they know, to make them in good earnest about matters of greatest moment. I have a great request (to the unconverted I especially intend it, knowing some will do much more than I say) to make to this great congregation, and every person, I am under the present opportunity of speaking to, which I am never like to be in this world; I have a great request to you, indeed, as to the thing desired, it is but a small matter, but my heart is much in it; and I shall verily hope that this poor Sermon will not be utterly lost, if you will but grant it; I beseech you deny me not, and 'tis this that you would take some time to bethink yourselves of your greatest concernments; and I would fain beg some time every day, but I will bring my request very low that I may not be denied; shall I obtain of you that you will constantly set apart one half hour in a week; be it on the Saturday night, or sometime, and getting alone, set yourselves to this with utmost seriousness about the matters of your soul and your future and eternal states; would persons be perswaded thus to do, I do think it would be impossible for them to stand before their own thoughts: I doubt not but if men would give themselves leave to think what it would be to be in Heaven or Hell, for ever, it would bring them to themselves: And, O were we thorough here as to the work of Conversion, were the as yet utterly unconverted, but converted; were the half converted, the almost perswaded, but altogether, but thoroughly converted, were the slight and formal, and such as have a name to live, the professionally converted, but sincerely converted, were the converted, but so back-slidden, fallen, that they stand in need of renewed conversions, but reconverted: this would lay a foundation for the return and still continuance of God's gracious presence with us.

2. Let us mightily stir up ourselves to lay hold upon a departing God: It is a very lamentable complaint the Prophet makes, Isa. 64, 7, that at such a time when God hid his face from them, and consumed them because of their iniquities; yet there was none that called upon his Name that stirred up themselves to take hold of him. Shall God go, and we be silent? Shall we see him going, and shall nothing be said to invite him back again? Methinks our hearts should be at our mouthes, our very souls should sit upon our trembling lips, and we should even dissolve into sighs and supplications. O that we may humble ourselves, greatly mourning over all the provoking causes of Divine displeasure: We may bemoan ourselves, sensibly lamenting after the Lord under all the hidings of his Face, and the estrangements of himself from us; we may awaken ourselves exceedingly, call up all our powers, put to our utmost strength, plead with God; yet thou Lord are in the midst of us, and we are called by thy Name, leave us not; wrestle it out with God, and resolve we will not let him go; thus do, and though you have gone far from him, return yet again to the Lord, cleave to him with purpose of heart, and you shall find (though he hath made many offers that way) yet God will not leave you.

3. And lastly, Be on God's side, espouse his interest, be you ingaged in every cause that is his, own what God owns, and own whom God owns, be not ashamed to appear for him, his wayes, worship, people, however it may befall; what though the world turn a back-side upon these things (you know Moses his choice) let us cast in our lot here: when the Persian Empire favored the Church, the Samaritans would help build the Temple, and when the Mordecai was great at court, many people of the land became Jews; but God knows such fair-weathered friends, and makes reconing of them accordingly; but that's the man God will own, that Jesus Christ will own, that is not ashamed of him nor of his words before a froward and adulterous generation: that I say is the man Christ will own at that day when to be owned by him, will be found worth of now owning of him at dearest rates: be it that the tempest-tost, weather-beaten, and well neigh shipwrecked state of the Church of Christ in an angry world, be as the Ship wherein himself with his Disciples were imbarcked, when in that mighty storm that came down upon the lake, they were even filled with water, and now ready to sink. My mite shall be cast in here, as the Lord shall help me, my interest, my title, all what it is, sink or swim, shall be ventured in this bottom; and I beseech you, let us all put in here, have we not much greater and better assurances than the trembling Marine that was told he carried Cesar in his Barge? Wo to us if an hour of temptation discover another spirit in us; but if the Lord shall help us, owning, cleaving to and abiding with him to approve ourselves in the day of tryal; and though we have fate too loose to him, and grown slight and wanton in our prosperous times, nevertheless in an evil day there shall be good things found in us, there will yet be hope in our end.

be thrown out of our camp and hearts, and to send their conclusions to the Council by Mr. Wakeman and Mr. Elliot the following week.

CHAPTER VII.

MR. WAKEMAN'S HOME — FAIRFIELD AND NEW FAIRFIELD GRANTS.

REV. SAMUEL WAKEMAN, on September 3, 1663, purchased of Humphrey Hide the dwelling house that sometimes was the house of Thomas Demmond, deceased, with his home lot adjoining, being in quantity three acres, being more or less, bounded on the northwest and southwest with the highways, on the northeast with the lot of Robert Turney, on the southeast with the lot that sometimes pertained to James Bennett, deceased. Alsoe one parcel of land over the creek.

Mr. Wakeman came to Fairfield with means, and by purchase and grant became owner of considerable real estate. He lived in a house (afterward occupied by Dr. Hull) that stood near the street in front of the residence where General Parker lived. The house had a window each side of the front door, the door being in the center of the front of the house, with a front room on each side of door. There was an enclosed vestibule outside of front door, and diamond-paned windows in either side of the vestibule. There were rooms on the second floor in front. (See cut.)

The cut of the house given here is from a photo of one now standing in Cohasset, Mass. It is said to be almost an exact duplicate of the house of Rev. Samuel Wakeman. The latter was torn down about 1838, and Miss Hannah Hobart, of Fairfield, is the authority for the resemblance of the two houses, as she not only remembers Mr. Wakeman's house, but also a picture of it, which was hanging in Miss Hull's house in Fairfield, Conn., up to about 1880.

Mr. Wakeman also owned the property where Mr. Wetherbee's house stands. Rev. Mr. Wakeman's wife was daughter of Deputy Governor Stephen Goodyear, who was one of the first settlers of New Haven, and was a man of means and prominence.

It is supposed that he came from London, and that he had been a merchant there. He was engaged in commerce while in New Haven, and was associated with Mr. John Wakeman in building or buying a ship and using it for commercial purposes. It started on its first trip in January, 1646, Mr. Lamberton being master. Mrs. Goodyear was a passenger, and the ship was never after heard of, and as one consequence, Mr. Goodyear married Mrs. Lamberton. Mr. Goodyear was Deputy Governor of the Colony, elected annually from the first settlement, until he went to London, and was second only to Eaton. When the latter died Mr. Goodyear was in London, where he had gone to live, and this was the only reason for his not being elected Governor.

He was rated at $5,000, and had nine persons in his family. He had 350 acres of land in New Haven, and paid over nine pounds in rates on it annually.

In 1651 he sold Shelter Island, which he had owned for about ten years, for 1,600 pounds of muscovado sugar. This was unrefined sugar from the Barbadoes.

His farm was north of New Haven, near Pine Rock, and when the establishing of a college at New Haven was first considered, Mr. Goodyear offered to give his house and lot for its use.

He was connected with John Winthrop in establishing iron works in 1655 at the outlet of Lake Saltonsall, near New Haven, the ore being dug from the bogs of North Haven, and taken in part down the Quinnipiac river in boats. He died in London prior to 1658.

The following copies of the patent of Fairfield and the New Fairfield grant will be of interest, as showing our ancestors' connection therewith.

PATENT OF FAIRFIELD, GRANTED 1685.

The General Court of Connecticut hath formally granted to the proprietary of the inhabitants of the town of Fairfield all those lands, both meadow and upland, within these abutments upon the sea towards the south about five miles in breadth, and in length from the sea into the wilderness 12 miles, and upon Stratford bounds on the east, and the wilderness on the north, and in Norwalk bounds on the west (only a parcel of land between their bounds and Saugatuck river that is likewise granted to said Fairfield, provided the said Saugatuck do not exceed two miles from the said Fairfield): the said lands having been by purchase or otherwise lawfully obtained of the Indians, native proprietors. And whereas the proprietary, the aforesaid inhabitants of Fairfield in the Colony of Connecticut, have made application to the Governor, and Council of said Colony of Connecticut, assembled in Court May 25, 1685, that they may have a patent for confirmation of the aforesaid land so purchased and granted to them as aforesaid, and which they have stood seized and quietly possessed of for many years last past without interruption. Now for a more full confirmation of the aforesaid tract of land as it is butted and bounded as aforesaid, unto the present proprietors of the said township of Fairfield in the possession and enjoyment of the premises. Know ye, that that the said Governor and Council assembled in General Court according to the Commission granted to us by His Majesty in our Charter, have given, granted, and by these presents do give, grant, ratify and confirm unto Major Nathan Gold, Mr. Samuel Wakeman, Jehu Burr, John Burr, Thomas Staples, John Green, Joseph Lockwood, John Wheeler, Richard Hubbell, George Squire, Isaac Wheeler, and the rest of the present proprietary of the township of Fairfield, their heirs, successors, and assigns, forever according to the tenor of East Greenwich in Kent, in free and common socage, and not by capitte or Knight service, they to make improvement of the same as they are capable, according to the custom of the country, yielding, rendering and paying therefor to their Sovereign Lord the King, his heirs and successors, his due according to Charter.

In witness whereof, we have caused the seal of the Colony to be herewith affixed, this 26th of May, 1685, in the first year of our Sovereign Lord, James the Second of England, Scotland and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, etc. By order of the General Court of Connecticut.

(Signed)

ROBERT TREAT, Governor.

JOHN ALLEN, Secretary.

COPY OF NEW FAIRFIELD GRANT.

At a General Assembly holden at New Haven, October the 9th, 1707, and continued by several adjournments to the end of the seventeenth day of the same month:

"Upon the petition of Capt. Nathan Gold, Mr. Peter Burr, Capt. John Wakeman, John Edwards, Jonathan Sturgis, John Barlow, Gideon Allin, Samuel Wilson, Samuel Jinnings, Moses Dimon and Joseph Wakeman, all inhabitants of Fairfield, in behalf of themselves and associates, for a certain tract of land to be for a township, lying north of and near to Danbury, bounded southerly on Danbury, running thence northerly fourteen miles; bounded easterly on New Milford, westerly on the colonie line: This Court grants to them, the said petitioners and their associates, their heirs and assigns forever, the aforesaid tract of land for a township, provided it doth not prejudice any former grants; to be under such regulations for the settlement thereof, and the number of inhabitants as this Court shall judge fit." (P. 34, Col. Rec., 1706-1716.)

There appears to have arisen some sort of a dispute over the exact extent or meaning of the grant, and the Assembly was called upon to define exactly what rights the grantees had, and it appears that the patent was not finally granted until about 1740. It is generally understood and stated by historians that, owing to certain irregularities, or for some other cause, no settlement of the town was made until more than twenty years after the grant was made, that is, about 1730, and exactly who these settlers were no state records that I can find informs us definitely.

After the grant by the General Assembly in 1707 there is no reference in the records that I can find of the new town of New Fairfield until at the General Assembly in Hartford in May, 1723, when Robert Sillaman, Richard Hubbell (Martha Hubbell's father), Benjamin Fairweather and others, asked that the grant of 1707 be more fully explained, "whether by said act the patent of said land was to them granted, or how said act was to be understood." The assembly decided to continue the matter for decision to the October session, when the grantees were ordered to appear and state what had been done regarding the act granting them the land. There the matter appears to have been dropped, for there is no reference to the matter having come up at the October session. At the May session, 1729, the memorial of Edward Lewis, of Stratford, "Agent for the Proprietors of New Fairfield," was presented, and the consideration deferred until the October term.

Previous to this, in October, 1728, the Assembly voted "that all that tract of land called New Fairfield, lieing north of Danbury, west of New Milford and east of the Government land, shall be annexed to the county of Fairfield."

In May, 1735, the proprietors of New Fairfield appeared before the General Assembly, "representing the objections and difficulties they have heretofore met with in their application for further confirmation of said tract to them by reason of objections made by some of the inhabitants of Fairfield," and asked that a committee be appointed to inquire into the matter.

The committee was appointed and ordered to report in October at the next Assembly on what they "think proper to be done in order to further confirm and settle said tract according to grant made by the Assembly in 1707."

In October, 1736, the committee reported, and "it was resolved, that if persons named in the grant, or their heirs or assigns, shall settle on the tract so many good inhabitants as will make fifty families within three years time, a patent shall be granted to them;" as is seen by the following act of the Assembly:

Whereas this Assembly, at their sessions in October, 1707, did grant to Nathan Gold, Peter Burr and others, of Fairfield, and their associates, a certain tract of land for a township, bounded southerly on Danbury, and and running from thence northerly fourteen miles; easterly it bounds on New Milford, westwardly on the Colony line; provided it doth not prejudice former grants, and be under such regulations for the settlement thereof and number of inhabitants as this Court shall think fit: And whereas sundry persons, claiming a right by said grant, have moved to this Assembly for a patent for said lands: It is therefore resolved by this Assembly that, provided the persons mentioned in the grant, their associates, heirs or assigns, shall settle on said lands so many good inhabitants as will make up in the whole fifty families within three years next coming, that then and in that case a patent for those lands shall be granted and executed to the persons mentioned in the grant, their associates, heirs, or assigns, and such settlers their heirs and assigns as shall be settled as aforesaid.

In May, 1737, the power was granted to the town to hold meetings and divide the tract as the grantees saw fit, and in May, 1740, town privileges were granted and the town named New Fairfield.

Book B., p. 127, F. T. R.

From O'Callaghan's Documentary History of New York, page 215, we learn that Ebenezer Wakeman was one of the soldiers who went with Captain Gabriel Thompson to Albany. This was probably the Wood Creek expedition.

This Ebenezer must have been the son of Rev. Samuel Wakeman, and died in 1690.

The following data regarding Rev. Jabez Wakeman, son of Rev. Samuel, is of interest. It was procured by Mr. Emory McClintock :

FROM STEARN'S "FIRST CHURCH IN NEWARK," 1853,
PP. 106-109.

"Jabez Wakeman was about fourteen years of age when his father died, and in the will direction is given that he be kept at school and enter college the next August. The delay of a year, however, seems to have occurred, for we find by the catalogue of Harvard College—"the college," as the will denominates it—that he was graduated in the year 1697. About a year and four months after this date, the people of Newark, wishing to obtain an assistant for their worthy pastor, had their attention turned towards this young graduate, and appolnted a committee to treat with Mr. Wakeman and Mr. Prudden for that purpose. But the resignation of Mr. Prudden, which took place early in June following, gave a new aspect to affairs, and shortly afterwards measures were adopted to secure Mr. Wakeman's services as a candidate for the pastoral office. He was first engaged to preach in that capacity for a year, but scarcely was the year half out before the ardor of the people pressed the question to an issue, and at a meeting held on the 15th of April, 1700, 'it was particularly inquired of every person whether they desired Mr. Jabez Wakeman to be called to the pastoral office in this town, and they every one manifested their willingness thereto, and also voted the same.'"

"The salary of Mr. Wakeman was, at first, £60, but it was soon after raised to £80, the same with that of the two Piersons. * * * * A subscription was also raised to procure for him a 'settlement,' that is a homestead or 'accommodations,' as in the case of his predecessor; in pursuance of which a house and its appurtenances were purchased and presented to him by a deed of gift, 'as the town's act and deed.'

"Mr. Wakeman became the sole pastor of this congregation at the early age of about twenty-one years. He was a young man of great promise, amiable, accomplished, and remarkably popular in the pulpit. The attachment of the people to their young and talented pastor appears to have been deep and tender. Under his ministry the congregation became so much increased that additional accommodations were required for public worship, and the town ordered a gallery to be built across the north end of the meeting house. But the hopes of the people and the fair earthly prospects of the young minister and his family were destined to an early reverse. In the autumn of the year 1704 that fearful malady, the dysentery, prevailing in a fatal form among the people invaded his family. His little son Samuel, a child of two years old, and an only one, died on the 29th of October; and only nine days later the father followed, leaving a childless widow and a disappointed flock to shed tears over his early grave."

From the same, foot note to page 110; tombstone near church:

"Here lye the Remains of ye Revd. Mr. Jabez Wakeman, the faithful pastor of ye Church of Christ in this place, who Departed this life, Octr. 8th, 1704. Ætatis 26.

"Hoc sunt tumulo Wakeman venerabilis ossa.

"By him lies his son, Samuel, died Sept. 29, 1704. Ætatis 2d."

Dates corroborative of above, extracted by E. M. from Newark Town Records:

- Jan. 2, 1698-9: Looking towards employment of Mr. J. W. "to join with Mr. Pruden."
- June 9, 1699: Closing with Prudden; committee to look out, J. W. evidently not there.
- Aug. 8, 1699: Committee asked people to vote, and they voted for Mr. W., who must have preached there.

- Aug. 16, 1700: Committee "to procure a settlement," and raise (by taxing those who subscribed) "money to procure a settlement," meaning a homestead.
- Sept. 30, 1700: £60 salary.
- Feb. 28, 1700-1: Deed of gift from town, mentioned above.

- Nov. 11, 1701: £60 "for year past," £80 for future, also 70 acres "if he settle among us."
- Nov. 2, 1702: Same as last year for salary.
- March 10, 1703-4: Building gallery in meeting house.
- Oct. 12, 1704: Salary to be paid same as last year ("Mr. Wakeman's salary"); vacancy in pastoral office; Mr. Prudden asked to preach pro tempore.

Mr. W.'s uncle by marriage, Samuel Kitchel (whose wife, Elizabeth Wakeman, had died earlier), was one of the first settlers of Newark, and J. W.'s cousins were there in 1699.

- E. James, bap. March 14, 1702-3. He m. first, Eunice, who d. Oct. 6, 1740; and second Sarah, a classmate of the elder Quincy. His early reputation was made in the Farmer's Museum of Walpole, N. H., 1795-1797, and was continued in the Portfolio at Philadelphia from 1800 to 1812. He was an elegant scholar, a graceful and pleasing writer, charming in conversation, a most winning and delightful companion. His literary work, though universally read and extravagantly praised at the time, proved ephemeral, like that of most of his profession. His most famous essays, printed under the title of "The Lay Preacher," touching with pleasant satire and amiable philosophy on the follies and foibles of the time, mixed with not a little serious counsel and good criticism, are now as if they had never been. In their day they were famous. All the newspapers were in hot rivalry with each other to get the first printing of them. The were compared to the writings of Addison and Steele, and they made the young writer the center of the most interesting group of wits and scholars then on the stage. Though a graduate of Harvard College, for some unaccountable reason he hated the college and despised the faculty, and he delighted in making them the object of his satire. He studied law, and began to practice; but one day a client came in while he was more agreeably occupied, and from that time till he abandoned the profession he kept his office door locked on the inside. The late Edmund Quincy, in the fascinating biography of his father, speaks of the Portfolio as "far superior to any magazine ever before attempted in this country"—"a model of exact and careful editorship, and greatly beneficial in raising the standard of literary taste in the country." It was strongly federalist in its politics, and the most eminent federalist writers and statesmen did not consider it beneath their dignity to contribute to its pages. While Dennie lived in Philadelphia he was the soul of its gay, convivial society, and his name still lives in its traditions. Tom Moore was one of his many guests, wrote songs for the Portfolio, and joined in the nightly festivities. In one of his poems relating to America I recall the lines:

"Yet, yet forgive me, O ye sacred few,
Whom late by Delaware's green banks I knew;
Whom, known and loved through many a social eve,
'Twas bliss to live with, and 'twas pain to leave.
Not with more joy the lonely exile scanned
The writing traced upon the desert's sand,
Where his lone heart but little hoped to find
One trace of life, one stamp of human kind,
Than did I hail the pure, th' enlighten'd zeal,
The strength to reason and the warmth to feel,
The manly polish and the illumin'd taste,
Which—'mid the melancholy, heartless waste
My foot has travers'd—O you sacred few!
I found by Delaware's green banks with you."

Joseph Dennie died, in 1812, at the early age of 44 years. The Portfolio did not long survive him.

RESIDENCE OF CAPT. JOSEPH WAKEMAN.

Built about 1700.

ASSISTANT in May, 1724, and in May, 1725. He left an estate of over 5,000 pounds, including his house in Greensfarms, of which we give a picture, and also a house in Fairfield village.

The house of Captain Joseph Wakeman, now standing in Greensfarms (Westport), Connecticut, formerly a part of Fairfield, was built about the year 1700. It was occupied by Captain Wakeman, and by his lineal descendants by the name of Joseph, for four succeeding generations. After the death of the widow of the latter Joseph, it was sold to A. Jennings, and is now used as a storehouse. It was a stately mansion in its day, with stone steps and stone walled terrace in front. Its timbers are eighteen inches square, with heavy floor joists. The kitchen is long and low, wainscoted to the windows set high in the wall. The front rooms are fifteen by twenty feet, with nine foot ceilings; doors forty inches wide; windows forty-two inches, with twenty-four panes, eight by ten inches each. Everything betokens the wealth of the owner. On the southern side of the chimney is the old dining room; here the sideboard held his silver tankard and cups. The staircase has a low balustrade of turned wood, the caps of the newel posts being carved. In the lesser attic the slaves had their quarters, and the attic story overhangs on three sides which enabled the occupants to shoot at the Indians most any time without much risk. One of the front chambers held, during the Revolution, much British gold (as the English officers made their headquarters here at the time), and the daughter of the house who attended to the room thought that she would like a little of it and put one coin under each bed post, but it was discovered. This house and that of his son Stephen, and grandson Captain Stephen, were the only houses in Greensfarms that were not burned by the British; Captain Stephen's being left because of some kindness he showed some prisoners, but he was half sorry it was not burned as he feared that his neighbors would think that he was a Tory.

Mary (Wakeman) Hazzard was sent to Boston, to complete her education and as she had to go by stage coach, it is supposed that she met John Hazzard at some stopping place in Rhode Island, where the family lived. She was very handsome and accomplished, and became proficient in dancing, among other things, and this did not exactly suit the staid people of Greens-farms. Her father was the richest Wakeman of that century, so far as known, and her grandfather, Joseph, came next in point of wealth, but was much the most prominent in public life. Her second husband, Moss Kent, was father of the well known Chancellor Kent, of New York.

the DeBurgh family, one of the oldest in Ireland. They were originally Crusaders, and Sir Herbert DeBurgh is mentioned at the Siege of Acre, in Palestine. He fought with Richard Coeur de Lion. Their names are in the Domesday book. The DeBurgh's were originally of French extraction. Henry III of England, appointed one of his nobles—Sir Herbert DeBurgh to take charge of Ireland. He was given control of Connaught and settled in Galway. They were Earls in those days. Their estates were confiscated by Cromwell and they became adherents of the Stuarts. The estates were afterwards restored.

Daniel Chapman, son of the Greensfarms minister was his classmate; President Burr was one year with him in College; so also was Daniel Buckingham. Probably Mr. Wakeman's knowing him was the means of introducing him in Greensfarms as minister in 1742. In those days students' names were arranged in the Catalogue according to the social position of their families. It is a noteworthy fact that Mr. Wakeman's name stands head of his class as did that of his brother Ebenezer in 1720. The late Elihu Burritt, descendant of Eunice Wakeman above, bore a strong likeness to Mr. Zalmon B. Wakeman, who was a descendant of Joseph above.

22. David* Wakeman,<sup>5</sup> enlisted May 9, 1775, in Captain Beardsley's company, of New Fairfield, Conn., under Major Tafford, of the 5th Regiment, and was discharged in October. His service was chiefly along the upper Hudson. When he and John Hendricks returned from the war, they first arrived at the house of Hendricks, but found no one there, so they went across the lots to Wakeman's home where they found Mrs. Hendricks helping Mrs. Wakeman in spinning yarn and the boys and girls were all helping Jeremiah harvest the buckwheat. David had much ground prepared for corn in the spring before he went to war, and as Jeremiah could not take care of it all, if planted, he utilized some of it with buckwheat. So that while David did not leave his plow in the furrow, he left corn unplanted. The two families of Wakeman and Hendricks helped each other during the war. He m. #### THE WAKEMAN CHESTNUT TREE.

This old and traditionally well known tree is now standing on the second cross highway, the present boundary line between Fairfield and Easton, and is a large and old tree that dates back to earliest Colonial times. The land opposite the tree belongs to the family of John Wakeman, who died Nov. 1897. He inherited the property in the direct line of descent from Capt. John Wakeman, who in turn received it from the estate of his father, Rev. Samuel Wakeman, to whom it had been granted from the public Colonial lands. This is an unusual case of land remaining in the same family for over 200 years. The tree has been known as the "Wakeman Chestnut Tree" for generations, and is undoubtedly much older than 200 years, and is one of the original forest trees of the Colony. The late Rev. Samuel Nichols used to say that when he was a boy and went to school he often ate his dinner under its shade, and when he was an old man he said that he could see little difference in the size of the tree then from what it was in his boyhood (about 1810).

Asa Squire was a British soldier and moved with his wife to Vermont, in the middle of winter, with three children, and lived in a log house for several years. She used up all the thread she carried with her and then raveled out her cotton stockings for thread to use. Her nearest neighbor was a mile away. Her father was not in favor of the match, but gave him all the land he would clear up. He afterwards moved to Ohio.

34. Gideon Wakeman,<sup>6</sup> of Bedford, N. Y., was a graduate of Yale, 1759, and was the hero of the Hasty Pudding story.

The Hasty Pudding story is about as follows: One day when Gideon Wakeman was about to go to his class in college for recitation, he had occasion to pass through the kitchen, where an old mammy was making hasty pudding, and as he was always bent on some mischief, together with an abiding desire to raise Cain generally, he hastily filled his pockets with the hot hasty pudding concoction, and with bulging pockets, proceeded sedately into the class room. Instantly the professor exclaimed: "What have you in your pockets, sir?" "Pudding, professor." "What?" "Pudding, sir." Thereupon the irate professor rushed down upon Gideon, exclaiming, "I'll pudding you!" and thrust his hand deep into Gideon's pocket. What followed can be imagined, for in 1759 "our special artist was not on the spot," neither was the snap shot. And all physicians agree that hot mush makes an excellent poultice, being one of the best, because of its great ability to retain heat.

41. Capt. Stephen Wakeman,<sup>6</sup> of Greensfarms, Conn., and Balston Spa., N. Y., served in the Colonial troops, being appointed ensign in the 4th Conn. Regt., October, 1769, and lieutenant May 1774. He also served in the Revolution, and was appointed captain of the 6th Company, 4th Regt., January, 1778, Col. Whiting's Regt., 4th Militia, Lieut.-Col. Jonathan Dimon, and served at Peekskill, 1777. Captain Stephen Wakeman, who served before and during the Revolution, lived in Greensfarms in an old house back of where Mr.

Fairchild now lives. He sold this place in March, 1789. In the deed he is mentioned as of Balston, N.Y., where he had been to found a new home, from which trip he returned to Greensfarms with his daughter Mary on horseback, and received the money for his old home. Before leaving Greensfarms he called on Sarah Whitehead, who was engaged to his son Stephen (she m. him June 29, 1789), and expressed the pleasure they felt that she would soon join them in their new home. His daughter Mary preferred to return by boat on the Hudson, so he started to go on horseback, and stopped at Squire Adam's inn in Weston. Miss Grace Cable was staying there at the time, and has told her descendants her recollections of it: that Asa Belden, of Wilton, was also there that day, and after a pleasant stay Capt. Wakeman started to go, but was urged to remain over night. He said no, that he wanted to join Short Molly that night; so he went out and saddled his horse and started. Asa Belden went out immediately after, and Mr. Wakeman was never seen again. As he did not return to his home at Burnt Hills, near Balston Spa, his wife went to Connecticut on horseback to find him, taking her son Stephen with her. At Albany they consulted a clairvoyant, who told them that Capt. Wakeman had purchased a couple of speckled handed jackknives for his boys. She gave them a few more statements and asked them to come again, but that they must keep it in confidence. They found the purchase of the jackknives was true, but did not keep quiet; so when they returned she refused to tell any more. Another account says that Belden overtook him, or waylaid him with an axe that he was cutting wood with, and when Capt. Wakeman spoke of the fine springs at Balston, replied that he had one that was fine, and wanted Capt. Wakeman to drink of it, and while he was drinking, Belden killed him and threw his body in an old well and filled it up (some say it was an old mine). It was also said years after that Belden was trying to cheat his sister, Mrs. Hull, of Redding, out of her patrimony, and in her anger she accused him of murdering Capt. Wakeman, and said she washed his bloody shirt. He was arrested, and she gave evidence against him in court. Then he settled with her, and she signed a libel, and asserted that her statements were made in anger and wholly false; so nothing could be done. Some time after this Belden was taken sick, and wanted to have Mrs. Wakeman sent for, but his family would not consent, as they said that he was crazy. He seemed to be in great distress of mind, and the doctor said that it was some secret that he wished to reveal, and that he should have a chance to do so. He said that he could not die in peace until he had confessed it to the doctor, whom he told about killing Capt. Wakeman, and putting the body in a well and filling it up. After Belden was dead, the doctor had the well dug out to satisfy himself of the truth of the story, and found the bones there, but none of the money was recovered. Moses Jennings was hired to care for Belden during his illness, and was put under bonds not to reveal anything Belden might say. Belden died in 1828 or 1829.

Capt. Wakeman stopped at his sister's, Mrs. Benjamin Banks, of Greenfield, and started from there on his return trip to Balston Spa. Mrs. Craft says that when she was in Wilton she learned for a fact that Belden buried the body of Capt. Wakeman under that part of his house where there was no cellar, and it is said that Belden's bed stood over this place.

It is said that when Asa Belden was ill he had a young man who was a neighbor of his write a letter for him to Benjamin Banks or his wife, and that in this letter Belden made confession of the murder of Capt. Stephen Wakeman, and that the body would be found under a certain heap of stones.

This young man is also said to have written or told Mr. Banks that he had better put an attachment on Mr. Belden's place. It is also said that some of the Belden family got wind of this letter, and went to Mr. Banks, who was old, and got possession of the letter.

The papers that disappeared with Capt. Wakeman caused his family much trouble, as some were receipts for money that had to be paid again. Capt. Wakeman deeded, April 20, 1789, land in Weston to his wife Mary. This land came from her father. She sold it in 1791 to John and Samuel Lord.

66.. Abijah Wakeman,<sup>6</sup> of Greenfield, was a soldier in the war of 1812, in October and November, 1814. His father gave him a vessel which he built for him when Abijah was eighteen. He worked hard to build the boat, going on horseback after his day's work was done, to the forge in Redding, to get iron and bringing back what he could. The vessel was lost after a few trips; Mr. Sturges was captain. Abijah then came home, learned saddle-making and moved to New York state. He m. May 27, 1802, Mary Buckley (b. 1788; d. She died at her brother's at Oyster Bay, N. Y., and was a native of Greenfield Hill. Under circumstances of singular difficulties she prepared herself as a teacher and was sustained by the convictions of early piety and the friends they gained for her.
In commencing her career as a teacher in New York City, and vicinity, she began her public work with Principal McElligott of the old Mechanics School, which antedated and helped to prepare for the success of our public school system. For many years after it was suspended she conducted, very successfully, a school for young ladies in New York City.
She was active in the sunday school of the Presbyterian church under the pastorship of Drs. Potts, Philips and J. W. Alexander, at Duane and Church streets, who upheld at that day, on the west side of the city, the cause of religion and education. They were the active supports of a widespread influence, the results of which still survive, although its promoters seem to have vanished as completely as the old church. She afterwards conducted a parochial school near New Hamburg, N. Y., and later taught in Astoria, N. Y., until failing health prevented. She will be remembered by those who knew her for her faithful and consistent Christian life and her devotion to the duties of every situation in which she was called to act.

That he entered the service of the United States, and served as herein stated; that he was born in the town of Fairfield, County of Fairfield and State of Connecticut, on the tenth day of May, one thousand seven hundred and sixty-two, as he believes and as it appears by his family bible now at his home; that when called into service he lived in said town of Fairfield, and since the Revolutionary war resided in Redding in said County of Fairfield twelve or fourteen years, and then moved to the town of Thompson, now in the said town of Fallsburgh, where he has lived ever since. That in the year 1777 he was drafted in the Militia and served three months in Captain Ebenezer Hill's company, of which Lewis Goodsell was Lieutenant, and in the regiment commanded by Colonel Jonathan Dimon, and served out the said turn on the lines. In 1778 he enlisted with Captain Eliphalet Thorp, Samuel Taylor, Lieutenant, belonging to Colonel Webb's Regiment of Militia, and served six months, kept guard on Sheppard's point and performed various other duties, and served as Sergeant in said Company for six months. In 1779 enlisted for one year as Sergeant in an Artillery Company of Militia Commanded by Captain Eliphalet Thorp, Lieutenant Samuel Sturgis and Isaac Jarvis in said Colonel Dimon's Regiment, and served the whole time as Sergeant. At Black Rock Fort was in the following different engagements, viz.: When the British landed at Fairfield, at Ridgefield when Danbury was burnt, at Cumber Hill when Greens Farms were burnt, also when Norwalk was burnt and a number of skirmishes on the lines. In the year 1780 served for three months under Captain Jabez Botsford and Lieutenant Dunkins on the lines near Horseneck. Besides the above regular service he frequently volunteered in Colonel Sheldon's Regiment, and also on board of whale boats commanded by Captain Brewster; was wounded in the wrist in the taking of Captain Hoyt, a Tory, who commanded a British privateer, and generally lay at or near Hamburgh; never received any written discharge, and believes that none were given to the Militia in that quarter.

He hereby relinquishes every claim whatever to a pension or annuity except the present, and declares that his name is not on the pension roll of the agency of any State.

Sworn to and subscribed the day and year aforesaid.

The following Bear story with James Wakeman (see No 211) as one of the principal actors, was supplied by Mr. G. B. Wakeman, of Unadilla, N. Y. :

"During the winter of 1815, big black bears had depleted the sheep of James Wakeman, grandfather of the writer. Mr. Wakeman had made a number of attempts at shooting these big bears, but without success, and finally concluded to try the virtues of a bear trap possessed by his brother Benjamin. The trap was accordingly set in the woods and a carcass of a sheep, lately deceased, was placed in the crotch of a sapling near by, and the trap deftly covered with leaves. On the fourth morning thereafter, as Mr. Wakeman was casually strolling in that immediate vicinity, he was pleased to notice that a big black bear of the male persuasion was caught in the trap by a rear leg, the trap having been fastened to a large log of wood to prevent it from being carried away without leaving a trail. Mr. Wakeman went home with speed and from thence to the house of his brothers, Benjamin, John and Abel, whom he informed of the interesting situation. The four hastily repaired to the woods, and as Mr. Wakeman wished to take the big black bear alive, he made the following proposition which was agreed upon by all: 'John, you cut a good withe and make it into a running noose which you can get over the bear's head.' The bear in the meantime had been prodded with saplings and had been rushing at the four brothers until he had gotten near the edge of the woods from which no amount of urging or torture would tempt him. The log attached to the strap was finally made fast, when the fun began in earnest. John finally got his noose over the bear's head and immediately snubbed it around a tree. 'Now boys,' said Mr. Wakeman, 'we have him. I have here some cord to tie him with; now Abel I want you to take enough in your teeth to tie his hind legs together, and Benjamin and I will each rush in and each take one of his fore legs. Remember, this boys, we have all got to hang on, for if one lets go his hold the others are going to get hurt. Now then, all ready, catch him !' The three rushed in and each caught his leg as directed and a lively tussle ensued lasting at least some time, and I have heard my grandfather say, that he never in all his life saw 'stars' so fast as he did while the bear was threshing his and Benjamin's heads together. The bear was finally tied, and a sapling run through his legs lengthwise of his body. The brothers then shouldered him and carried him to the house. A jointed ring was made and put about his leg, and he was tied to a tree in the back yard where he was kept about two years, and finally shot by grandfather and it weighed 323 pounds."

HON. ABRAM WAKEMAN.

(From the New York Times, June 30, 1889.)

Abram Wakeman, one of the active contemporaries of Thurlow Weed, William H. Seward, Horace Greeley, Henry J. Raymond and Preston King in the organization of the old Republican party, died early yesterday morning at his residence, 46 East Twentieth street in this city, after an illness of more than three months from a complication of painful ailments, succumbing finally to rheumatic gout.

Mr. Wakeman was born May 31, 1824, at Fairfield, Conn. His beginnings in life were much like those of the average New England youth. He was schooled at the academy in Fairfield, which was founded by Prof. Timothy Dwight, who is now the President of Yale University. At fourteen years of age he started out to make his way in the world alone and unassisted. He taught school at first at New Rochelle, and afterward in Lockport, N. Y., and then, resuming his studies, was graduated from Herkimer Academy. Then he studied law with Capron & Lake at Little Falls. Coming to New York city in 1846, he continued his law studies with Horace Holden, and a year later was admitted to practice and to a partnership with Mr. Holden. Mr. Wakeman early took an active interest in politics, supporting with ardor the candidates of the Whig party. In 1850 he was elected a member of the legislature from the Fifth Ward, and was re-elected in 1851. His legislative record was distinguished by successful efforts to secure a revision of the public school laws. He also supported Hamilton Fish in his election to the United States Senate. In 1854 he was elected alderman from the Twelfth ward on the reform ticket, and was largely instrumental the same year in securing the election of Gov. Preston King, the Free Soil and American party candidate. In 1856 he was a member of the Republican National Convention that nominated Gen. John C. Fremont for president, and was a member of the national committee from this state during the twelve succeeding years. He himself was elected to Congress in 1856 as the candidate of the Free Soil and American parties, that subsequently became merged in the Republican party. For a few years he continued the active practice of the law, his firm being Wakeman, Latting & Phelps, the junior member of which was the minister of the United States to the Court of St. James', under Mr. Cleveland's administration.

Mr. Wakeman attracted the favorable attention of Mr. Lincoln in the campaign of 1860, and although he had been a supporter of William H. Seward in the convention, a warm friendship sprang up between "Big Abe" and "Little Abe," as they familiarly called each other, and continued until Mr. Lincoln's tragic death. At the outbreak of the war Mr. Wakeman raised a regiment of volunteers, the Eighty-first Pennsylvania, and was appointed its colonel, but he resigned the position at President Lincoln's earnest request to become postmaster of this city. The administration thought he could do better service in helping to keep down the fire in the rear in those troublous times, and in doing this Mr. Wakeman was exposed to many dangers. During the draft riots he was marked for a victim by the rioters, and had his residence, containing his large law library, in Eighty-seventh street, near Fifth avenue, burned by them. As postmaster he reorganized the service and established the district system, which remains in force at this day. During Mr. Lincoln's second term and to the end of Johnson's term Mr. Wakeman was surveyor of the Port of New York, but having sided with Seward in his stand by the Johnson Administration, he incurred the enmity of a branch of the party, and from that time on was out of politics. The pride of his after-life was that he had retained throughout their lives the trusted friendship of Lincoln and Seward.

After his retirement from politics Mr. Wakeman resumed the practice of law and became actively interested in railroads on Long Island. He organized the Bay Ridge and Manhattan Beach Roads, and was largely instrumental in establishing and improving the pleasure resorts on Coney Island. He sold his interest in all these enterprises to Austin Corbin and other members of the purchasing syndicate. Mr. Wakeman was twice married. His first wife and one of her children were burned in the Cambridge flats fire several years ago. There survive Mr. Wakeman his second wife and two of the children of his first wife, a daughter and a son.

In the great revival which prevailed there from 1828 to 1832 he was converted, and united with the Presbyterian Church with seventy-two others, several of whom entered the ministry. He studied at Prattsburg Academy and at Auburn Seminary from 1841 to 1844. After supplying the church at Dansville a few months, he accepted a call to Almond, where he preached for twenty-one years, building up a strong church. He preached in Painted Post, from 1865 to 1868; Campbell 1868 to 1872; at Almond again, 1872 to 1874; and at Milburn, 1874 to 1879. He then retired, living in Painted Post until four years ago, when he moved to Campbell to spend his remaining years with an adopted daughter. He was very active in the temperance and anti-slavery movements, and a very popular speaker. He was also much sought after in revival work. He wrote two volumes on temperance, viz.: "The Satanic License," which was widely circulated, and "The Golden Horn." He received the degree of D.D. from Alfred University. In 1862 he recruited a company in the 132d Regiment, of which he became captain. After his discharge from disability he served on the Christian Commission. He preserved his faculties to the last in a ripe, useful, and cheerful old age.

I cannot do better here than to give the following sketch of Mr. Talcott B. Wakeman, from the pen of his friend, the Hon. T. S. Gold, of West Cornwall, Conn.

"I am happy to recall my memory of my old time friend, Talcott B. Wakeman, and give a few lines as my testimony to those characteristics of the man as he appeared to me. Mr. Wakeman had a genuine love for his calling—agriculture—and was an honor to it by its successful prosecution. Though educated in the old time ways of the early part of the nineteenth century, he kindly and readily sought and accepted the teachings of modern science. His farming was thorough and his executive ability in conducting his affairs, and managing his men, rendering labor efficient, excited my admiration. He had no use for the idle or inefficient. He made short work with any of that class that sought employment. Skillful and industrious himself, he encouraged and developed the same spirit in others; everything was kept in order on his premises. Yet he found time for his public duties as a citizen and his sterling integrity gave weight to his counsels. Connecticut agriculture depends more for its prosperity upon such men as was Mr. Wakeman, than upon the natural advantages of the state in soil, climate, or location. Such examples should ever be remembered and honored as an encouragement to 'keep the boys on the farm' if they are fit for the business. Farming is a hard business for those who have no love for husbandry, who can see no beauty or pleasure in rural life. I view Mr. Wakeman as having a heart as large and free as was his physical frame, who will always live in the kindly memory of those who knew him."

Captain William Webb Wakeman, when a young man, was engaged in business with his father at Mill River, now Southport, Conn., where his early life was spent. He branched out for himself after a short period, and became master of his own vessel, which was employed in the coasting trade between New York, Boston, and Salem, Mass.

During this period of his business life his vessel was wrecked near Holmes Hole, Mass., and in this emergency his characteristic coolness and determination were strongly manifested; for every man on board was sent ashore in safety before he consented to leave his vessel.

He was next engaged in the coasting trade between New York and Georgetown, D. C., and at a later period extended the business to Savannah, Ga., and Galveston, Texas, where regular lines were established under the name of the Star line. Mr.

Wakeman was at the same time extensively engaged in the East India and China trade under the firm name of Wakeman, Dimon & Co., which he organized. This firm was one of the first to send vessels to California after its annexation to the United States.

At the outbreak of the war of the Rebellion, in 1860, steamships were added to the prosperous lines of sailing vessels, which were employed by the government as United States transports.

About this time the firm name was changed to that of Wakeman, Gookin & Dickinson, but subsequently to W. W. Wakeman & Co.

After the close of the war a line of steamships was established between New York and Savannah, Ga., under the old name of the Star line, which was maintained for several years. In addition to their heavy shipping interests, this house became largely interested in gold and silver mines in California and Nevada, and at one time acted as New York agents for various mines.

Mr. Wakeman was by nature a man of marked energy and force of character, and thus made his influence felt, and often paramount, in whatever he undertook. These qualities not only gave him success in business, but made him a valuable acquisition to any cause which he espoused.

In all public movements that promised moral and material improvement to those among whom he lived he was ever ready, by personal effort and generous contributions, to render efficient aid.

He strongly advocated and was one of the committee to erect a suitable building for a graded public school in Southport during the years 1851 and 1852. He was one of the original trustees of the Southport Savings Bank when it was organized in 1854, and at a later period a director of the Shoe and Leather Bank in New York city. He was an incorporator and original trustee of the Oak Lawn Cemetery Association of Southport, Conn., and was ever deeply interested in its development and success. He became a member of the Southport Congregational Church in the year 1847, and a deacon in 1849.

His church life, like his daily life, was earnest and faithful wherever duty called, allowing no ordinary obstacle to hinder or defeat its conscientious performance. True to his convictions, prompt in his engagements, and with open-handed bounty to the poor and needy, he was always found a staunch friend on the side of right and justice, and an outspoken foe to whatever he esteemed to be wrong. His works live after him, not only in his wholesome example and consistent religious life, but in his testamentary benefactions to the church and to the leading benevolent institutions of the day, bearing testimony to his interest in those objects which in later years lay very near his heart.

He passed from mortal life to the immortal at his home in New York city, April 19, 1869, to which he returned smitten with a fatal malady from California, where important business had summoned him a few months previous, and when realizing his critical condition, with heroic resolution, commenced immediate preparation for the long sea voyage home from San Francisco to New York, which he patiently endured, and with deep gratitude and satisfaction reached the haven which he earnestly longed to gain ere life should end. The desire was granted, and, surrounded by his family, his last hours were passed in the home which was ever the nucleus of his keenest happiness.

204. Maurice Wakeman,<sup>7</sup> of Southport, Conn. He was in the flour business in Boston, in the early '30's, and later became interested in realty in Brooklyn. He went to Chicago in 1836, on horseback, and became largely interested in real estate in Oswego, Buffalo, Cleveland and Chicago, mostly at the latter place, and in some adjacent towns. In 1837 the panic caused his failure for a large amount. He recovered some of the land by his father's aid, and settled in Southport, Conn., in 1846. Thereafter he followed his scholarly tastes and love of literature and English poetry, having his library stocked with the standard works. He also took much interest in the political affairs of the world and

It appears that there was a settlement prior to 1758-9 in New Paltz, Ulster County, N. Y., of some of the Wakeman name, who are not descended from John of New Haven. As the settlement was principally Dutch, and the records kept by Dutch scribes, the name was variously spelled by them. Below is given such data as has been obtained from these records through the kindness of Miss Annie R. Winfield, followed by such subsequent lineage as has been obtained.

ADDITIONAL ENGLISH DATA.

THE following data was procured by Mr. Emory McClintock, by personal research in the British Museum, in the Spring of 1900. It shows, as he says in a personal letter, that "It would appear that our uncle John was Prior when the Abbacy became vacant, and hurried to London to see about it; that Cromwell held up the 'temporalities' until he could secure a satisfactory man for Abbot; that John agreed to be satisfactory; that Cromwell sent inspectors to threaten the election of a stranger unless the monks allowed the King to choose among themselves; and that after six days' caucusing the monks gave up their right to elect on a compromise by which the King should not choose a stranger."

"The letter of John to Kingston the moment it was over shows that the whole thing was cut and dried."

LETTERS OF ABBOT WAKEMAN IN GAIRDNER'S LETTERS AND PAPERS, HENRY VIII. (POLITICS OF THE PERIOD.)

Vol. VII., 189: 11 April, 1534. John Wyche, prior of Tewkesbury, to Sir Will Kingston: "I thank you for your great diligence in my behalf at my last being in London for the election. On Tuesday, 7 April, Dr. Tregonwell and Dr. Bagard delivered to me and the convent the King's letters. When I had read the same before my brethren, we returned the King hearty thanks, and on the morrow, observing that we were referred to their credence, I was informed by them that we should take the form of a compromise in our election, referring the matter to the King's pleasure, which we did, four only excepted."

Vol. VI.: 1533 [error for 1534], 11 April, Tewkesbury. John Tregonwell and Thos. Bagard to Cromwell: "We have this instant obtained the election of the abbot of Tewkesbury by compromise. As it was noised among the brethren that great labor and suit were made for a stranger to be abbot, we could not by all our policy during these six days obtain more, unless we had promised that one of their own convent should be abbot. We were the more ready to consent, because you told me, John Tregonwell, at my departure, that the King did not intend to prefer a stranger, and that such a compromise would not be unacceptable. We beg you will move the King to respect our promise."

Petition of Convent, 6 May, 1534: royal assent at Greenwich May 15: ratified "with restitution of temporalities" 10 June, 1534. (It would seem that his majesty held up the "temporalities" till he was suited with the election.)

Vol. IX., 229: 24 Oct., 1535. John, Abbot of Tewkesbury, to Cromwell: "I thank you for your goodness at my preferment, and for your loving commendations to the King when he was at Tewkesbury, as yet undeserved of me." Says he sends Cromwell a horse and £20 to buy a saddle.

King Henry signed a patent from the Monastery at Tewkesbury on 29 July, 1535.

HOW THE WAKEMANS MAY HAVE GOT THEIR LANDS IN GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

Dugdale's Monasticon, II., 84, 85, mentions among lands belonging to Tewkesbury abbey the following places: Southwike, Muyth, Forthampton, and Didcot, the latter in parish of Beckford.

Tanner's Notitia Monastica, article "Tewkesbury," says that the Abbey had "lands in Becford"—not the Beckford Priory lands.

Fosbrooke's Gloucestershire, II., 280: "The demesne of the manor of Tewkesbury in this place [Mythe] . . . was granted to Daniel and Alexander Perte, who had license (Pat. 7 Edw. VI.) to alienate to Will Thorneby and Rich. Wakeman." This seems to have been separate from the Abbey lands in the Mythe, which seem to have been in Richard's possession earlier. A patent of 1 Edw. VI., refers to lands in the Mythe which had been "in the tenure of Rich. Tyndall and Rich. Wakeman."

List of "Pentions," 12 Jan., 31 Henry VIII., in Dugdale II., 83: "J. Wakeman, late abbot, to have the house of Forthampton with the demaynes belonging to the same and the tithes of the tenants of Forthampton aforesaid and Swynle in ferme for the yerely rent of £8:13:1," and pension per annum of £266:13:8.

Atkyns' Gloucestershire indicates that Richard of Beckford bought much of his land from Coningsby, who married heiress of Sir R. Lee. This purchase seems to have been late in the sixteenth century. Perhaps he began with some small holdings, favored by the Bishop.
